year for the first time in U.S. According to the bureau. of history. but inflation eliminated the 53.3 million families in the United States. 27.6 million or 51.7 per cent received income of $10,000 or more in 1971.

The bureau figured that median family income, or the middle point of family income. was $10,285 last year. The figure is not an average.

A year earlier median family income was $9,870. Purchasing power was unchanged because of rising prices. the bureau said.

The bureau said there were 9.9 million families or 18.5 per cent with incomes between $7,000 and $10,000, 6 million families or 11.2 per cent between $5,000 and $7,000, and 9.8 million families or 18.5 per cent with incomes below $5,000.

The midpoint of annual income for black families was $6,440 This was about 60 per cent of the middle income for white families, or $10,670.

Midpoint

The midpoint of family income where the head of the family worked fulltime the year round was $12,440.

In a report last week. the bureau said the number of Americans living below the poverty level was essentially unchanged in 1971 over 1970.

That report showed that the official poverty level rose from $3,968 in 1970 to $4,137 because of inflation.

The number of people living below the poverty level last year was 25.6 million compared with 25.4 million a year earlier. Because of sampling errors, the bureau said, there is no statistical difference between the two numbers.

Riot in Maryland

Prison Quiet

JESSUP, Md. (AP) — The Maryland House of Corrections remained quiet early today as officials tried to assess the situation at the maximum security prison following a 12-hour riot that left four guards and four inmates injured.

"It was the worst damage I've seen," said Gov. Marvin Mandel, whose agreement to meet with an inmate delegation finally prompted the last few hundred of the rebelling prisoners to return to their cells about 5 a.m. Sunday.

Many fires had erupted sporadically almost from the onset of the inmates' rampage. Officials said the trouble began Saturday evening with an escape attempt in the outdoor recreation yard.

Initial estimates of damage ran as high as $1.5 million.

Mandel, after meeting with the inmate delegation, said he would look into some of the grievances. He said there were no demands voiced by the inmates.

Specifically mentioned, the governor said, were the areas of medical service and the classification board, which assigns inmates to the various institutions within the state corrections system.

As of early today there were still no communications within the 1,500-inmate, predominantly black institution.

However, State Police were maintaining a command and communications post on the grounds for the 25 or so troopers on hand as a precautionary measure, a spokesman stated.

The entire western portion, the focal point of the fires and destruction, was soaked with water late Sunday and troopers said the air was still acrid from burned-out mattresses, benches and furniture.

Several officials blamed a lack of guards and other alleged inadequacies for the uprising which prison officials admitted ran "out of control."

Inmates of the Maryland House of Corrections, many of them wearing towels across their faces to avoid identification, mill around the prison's recreation yard Sunday during a disturbance that left two guards and four inmates injured. The prison was quiet this morning. (AP Wirephoto)

Planning for Campaign

McGovern Rests, Starts to Build Staff

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. George McGovern, the Democratic presidential nominee, flew today to the Black Hills of his native South Dakota for two weeks of rest, staff reshuffling and strategic planning for the fall campaign against President Nixon.

The vacation spot picked out weeks ago in anticipation of McGovern's victory in last week's Miami Beach convention is a lodge at Sylvan Lake in Custer State Park, near the gold rush town of Custer, south of famous Mount Rushmore.

Small Staff

The South Dakota senator will be accompanied by a small personal staff. Starting later this week, his top political advisers, financial planners, and his running mate, Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, of Missouri, will come to the lodge for conferences.

The shape of McGovern's campaign organization is largely settled.

Gary Hart, the 35-year-old Denver lawyer who managed the senator's drive for the Democratic presidential nomination, will head the organization, with George Cunningham, a McGovern aide for 17 years and now his administrative assistant, as deputy.

The three regional coordinators are expected to be Eli Segal, who managed McGovern's California campaign; Harold Himmelman, number two man in the Ohio primary; and Rick Stearns, who supervised the senator's efforts in non-primary states. Their exact roles are scheduled to be worked out later in the week when Hart and Frank Mankiewicz, the senator's national political director until now, return from a brief Virgin Islands vacation.

Traveling Advisers

Mankiewicz and Frederick G. Dutton, who joined McGovern in California and has been at his side since, are scheduled to be the top traveling advisers.

Dutton and Richard Dougherty, a former political writer, and novelist who will be campaign press secretary, were the only top-level aides to accompany McGovern on the flight to Rapid City.

Dougherty, who has handled speech writing and other chores for McGovern until now, will replace Kirby Jones who is scheduled for a position in McGovern's campaign headquarters in Washington.

One major decision that will have to be made before the end of the South Dakota stay, expected to be July 29, is how to allocate the time of both McGovern and Eagleton in the five weeks between then and the traditional Labor Day start of the formal presidential campaign.

Eagleton said Sunday that a McGovern administration would probably grant draft resisters amnesty on a case-by-case basis, and he added on taxes:

"I think at some time in the future, perhaps in the year '74 or so . . . if we are going to accomplish some of the things we must do domestically . . . we must have the added revenue to do it."

Income Redistribution

Eagleton, on the CBS television-radio program "Face The Nation," also said McGovern's proposal for a $1,000-per-person income redistribution plan is undergoing a complete overhaul.

While Nixon was at the Western White House in California, Chairman Clark MacGregor of the Committee for the Re-election of the President and Sen. Robert Dole, GOP national chairman, took over the political ticking.

Speaking up for the Republicans, MacGregor and Dole said their party is ready for any attempt to make the Vietnam war a campaign issue.

Both men said it is too early to tell how much of an issue the war will be. But Dole added: "If they want to make it an issue, we're ready."

MacGregor appeared Sunday on ABC's "Issues and Answers" and Dole on NBC's "Meet the Press."

MacGregor, asked how the President would counter McGovern's antiwar stand, said, "A lot depends on how much Sen. McGovern stands in the way of progress at Paris." He referred to the Paris peace talks.

The chairman of the Democratic National Committee, Jean Miles Westwood, said at her home in Salt Lake City that party "reforms so far have been good, but they have not had enough public input and study."

Discord Follows Boston Festival

BOSTON (AP) — Police blame "the heat and two much beer drinking" for a rock-throwing rampage involving an estimated 2,000 which broke out following a Spanish-speaking festival here.

Nineteen persons were hospitalized and at least 35 persons were arrested in the Sunday night disturbance, police said. Of those hospitalized, six were policemen, including one who suffered a broken arm when struck by a tire iron.

Two of those hospitalized, neither of them policemen, were in critical condition.

One fireman and four policemen were injured but were not hospitalized. Police said numerous other persons suffered minor injuries, mainly from thrown rocks.

Israeli Court Convicts Japanese Radical of Lod Airport Massacre

By MARCUS ELIASON

LOD, Israel (AP) — An Israeli army court convicted Japanese radical Kozo Okamota today for his part in the Lod Airport massacre but postponed sentencing him until later today. He is expected to get life imprisonment.

The 24-year-old defendant stood and listened impassively as the verdict of the three lieutenant colonels was read. After it was translated into Japanese, he sighed deeply.

He was found guilty of all four charges filed against him. Death is the maximum penalty for three of them, but Israel has executed but one person, Nazi war criminal Adolf Eichmann. And the prosecution asked for a life sentence.

Okamoto had pleaded guilty in court and before the trial signed a confession admitting that he and two other Japanese attacked the crowd in Israel's international airport on May 30 with machine guns and grenades, acting on behalf of a Palestine guerrilla organization. Twenty-eight persons were killed, including the other two terrorists, and 70 were wounded.

Continue Attacks

In a statement Thursday at the end of the four-day trial, Okamoto said his organization in Japan, the United Red Army, would continue its attacks in the cause of world revolution.

The president of the court, Lt. Col. Abraham Frisch, said Okamoto's declaration was "a mixture of unripened ideas . . . concerning his and his friends' frustration" with the modern world, its social structure and regimes.

He said Okamoto had taken on the massacre "willingly and in full consciousness."

In the early stages of his interrogation before the trial, Okamoto asked repeatedly to be executed or to be allowed to commit suicide. The military commander for the Lod area, Maj. Gen. Rehavam Zeevi signed an agreement with Okamoto promising him the general's pistol to kill himself with if he made a full confession. Zeevi testified that he later told the young Japanese the agreement was dead because Okamoto had not providd "truthful information."

Okamoto's attorney appointed by the court, Max Kritzman, repeatedly asked the court for a sanity hearing for his client, but Okamoto said he would not agree to one, and the court rejected Kritzman's requests.

Pope Enjoying Summer Estate

CASTEL GANDOLFO, Italy (AP) — Pope Paul VI says the current rest he is taking at his summer estate in the Alban Hills will be good for him physically and spiritually.

The pontiff's praise for the "silence of the country" and the rest it would give him was contained in his Sunday noon blessing before a crowd of 3,000, the first of the year from his summer estate.

Vatican observers took the pontiff's reference to spiritual rest as reflecting his deep concern about criticism from within his own church, particularly on such matters as birth control, celibacy and papal infallibility.

Government Declines Comment

U.S. Surveillance of World Reported

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Government officials have declined comment on a Ramparts magazine article which says U.S. intelligence can pinpoint the location of Soviet military and space craft and monitor every transatlantic telephone call.

The Western White House in San Clemente, Calif., the Department of Defense in Washington and a spokesman for the National Security Agency at Ft. Meade, Md., would not respond to the article entitled "U.S. Espionage: A Memoir." The article, appearing in the August issue of the magazine which went on newsstands today, is based on an interview with a man purported to be a former NSA analyst.

The ex-analyst, identified by a spokesman for the magazine as "Winslow Peck,"—a pseudonym—is quoted as saying flights over Russian territory are made routinely by jets "which climb high enough to reach the edge of outer space."

Flights Denied

Knowledgeable sources other than the Defense Department denied that U.S. reconnaissance planes fly over Russia.

Contacted in San Diego at a telephone number supplied by Ramparts, a man who said he was "Peck," 26, refused to give his real name but said he was employed by NSA for 3½ years after enlisting in the Air Force was disillusioned in Vietnam in 1966.

The Ramparts article said he said he quit because he the United States monitors every government in the world, including its allies and listens in on all transatlantic telephone calls to or from this country, even those by private citizens.

"As far as the Soviet Union is concerned we know the whereabouts at any given time of all its aircraft, exclusive of small private planes, and its naval forces, including its missile-firing submarines," the former analyst said in the article.

Asked whether the United States makes surveillance flights over Russia, "Peck" replied:

Routine Trips

Routinely, as a matter of fact, over the Black Sea, down to the Baltic. Our Strategic Air Force flies the planes, and we support them. By that I mean that we watch them penetrate the Soviet air space then analyze the Soviet reaction—now everything from their air defense and tactical air force to the KGB reacts."

He said he also had indications that U.S reconnaissance planes had flown over China.

He said he briefed then-Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey on the Soviet tactical air force in 1967 and once listened to a tearful conversation between Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin and a Russian cosmonaut about to be killed during re-entry.

Families Leave Belfast Battle Area

BELFAST (AP) — Nearly 4,000 Roman Catholic women and children camped overnight in a football field after leaving their homes in a Belfast battle zone to protest the British Army's occupation of the area.

Five more deaths Sunday pushed Northern Ireland's toll this year to 236 killed, already the worst since 232 died in sectarian battling in 1922. A land mine killed two British soldiers at Crossmaglen; a policeman and a civilian were shot in Belfast, and an 18-year-old youth died in a riot in Strabane.

The Catholic women and children followed their priest, Father Jack Fitzsimmons, out of the Lenadoon Avenue area Sunday claiming the army's show of force was "endangering their lives."

The troops and gunmen of the Irish Republican Army have been squared off in the area since last Thursday. Despite army fears that the exodus was planned to clear the ground for a massive IRA attack, there were only sporadic incidents.

Father Fitzsimmons and other community leaders negotiated until after midnight with British officials in an attempt to get the troops pulled out. Meanwhile, the women and children bedded down in the open or in tents at nearby Casement Park.

The Lenadoon area is a modern housing development where the IRA's 13-day cease-fire broke down last week in a row over housing allocations.

Early today, troops claimed they had shot two gunmen in a squad of four that traded shots for two hours with the army across the Andersonstown area, of which Lenadoon Avenue is part.

Shop Operates for Charity

A small white front store on Glendale stands with quiet dignity on the tree-lined street It could well be one of the homes surrounding it until one looks closely at the large plate glass windows

Posters listing open hours stare out at passersby and a neatly painted sign with bright orange lettering reads, "Put 'n' Take Shop"

The name aptly defines its function in the community as area residents 'put' in their wares while others 'take' them out.

Fifth Birthday

Begun five years ago as the brain-child of the Chalice Circle of The King's Daughters, the shop grew both in popularity and purpose out of commitment and is celebrating its birthday this month.

The purpose is three-fold: To provide a place to sell for anyone; to provide a place to buy at a nominal price, and to earn money for charity

Said the president of Chalice Circle, Mrs. Wilbert Spanagel who also doubles as store manager, "We want to give where it's needed, not necessarily where we personally want it" She stressed that in order to bring in needed revenue to keep the project operative, there was a need for being selective in their acceptance of goods adding that the store wasn't "a rummage shop"

Woman Hours

Twenty-six volunteers share their appointed tasks of selling or marking items In their short five-year history, they have compiled a total of 12,635 woman hours.

Marking is done for the most part on Monday in a neat but cramped back room of the shop. The women date the items that has been brought in, print the name of the article, its price and code number for the previous owner on a ticket and staple the information to the clothing Sales are always recorded.

Shifts for the women who handle sales of the store's 12-and-a-half-hour week, are divided from 1 to 3.30 p.m. on Mondays, 11 to 5 p.m., on Wednesdays and from 9.30 to 11 30 a.m and 1 to 5 p.m. and 7 to 8:30 p.m. on Thursdays.

Residents bring in merchandise and receive 50 per cent of its sale. The other 50 per cent is divided for operational expenses and the implementing of selected charities.

Diverse Causes

These charities are as diverse as the items that make giving possible. Since Oct. 1, 1971 over 15 projects were undertaken.

Fifty destitute Indian families from the St. Croix Band at Siren, were asked what was needed. Their response was ... school supplies and paper for their children. It was delivered.

Over $3,000 was provided for a kidney machine for an Appleton resident and over $2,000 for four educational televisions for the city's high schools.

Other areas of interest were Casa Clare, the Appleton Public Library, the Appleton High School-East trip to the Orange Bowl, the Christ Child Society, Cancer Society, United Fund, Salvation Army, Silvercrest Home for Girls, the State Indian Project, Hemoplegic Clinic at St. Elizabeth Hospital, the Appleton-West singers and Meals on Wheels

Said the circle president, "We don't do church work We just practice what we preach."

Europe's Gone Square

B YODETTE MENGIN
AP Fashon Writer

ROME (AP) — Wearing square does not have to make you one

That was the consensus Saturday of Italian designers for men as they unveiled their fall-winter collections.

Prince of Wales patterns, large or small checks, fancy plaids for trousers or shirts were the dominant features in most of the six showings.

Waterproof silk was the last word in raincoats for designer Siviglia who makes them as light and easy to wear as the nylon ones Jackets more often than not in his collection were replaced by knitted cardigans with a tie-belt

Also loosely tied were the numerous coats and long jackets shown by many designers Some designed them in suede with a wide collar and belt in shiny leather Others used camel hair or dark blue wool or the eternal checks

One designer did away with lapels on most of his jackets and combined patterned trousers with plain tops. Others closed the jacket very high, hiding most of the shirt.

Coccoli introduced wide-brimmed felt hats, in dark but luminous blue, so soft that they could be made into any given shape. But hats were not often seen in other collections

Ties on the other hand, were very much in the limelight One designer made them wide and short, stopping where the jacket buttoned. Another matched them to the jackets in heavy upholstery-like material. Yet another preferred oversize bowties worn with brightly patterned shirts or with a jewel pinned in the center for evening wear

In the tuxedo line were satin trousers and velvet jackets coupled with an open-necked satin shirt in a symphony of grays. These also were worn with dark knitted vests embroidered with bright flowers.

Consumers Helped by AHAM Certification

Whether you're looking for a refrigerator just big enough for your extra beer or a freezer to hold half a beef you've undoubtedly found a wide choice of styles, models, colors, sizes and prices.

Appliance manufacturers sponsor an industry-wide program to help reduce confusion by assuring you that the unit you buy will be the size you want.

It's called "Certification"

Conducted by the industry's national trade association — the Chicago-based Association of Home Appliance Manufacturers — the program sets procedures for precisely measuring the cubic feet of usable refrigeration and freezer space The square feet of shelf space in refrigerators and upright freezers is certified, too.

Nationwide Use

Measurements are made by all manufacturers in the same way according to standards in nationwide use They are also certified by an independent laboratory and are published in Certification Directories which the appliance association distributes to dealers throughout the United States every six months

The newest, dated June 1 1972, lists a record 33 brands and 1,177 models It covers virtually all of the more than 7 3 million refrigerators and freezers industry economists estimate Americans will buy this year

Every certified unit is also identified by a distinctive seal verifying that it has been measured in the prescribed manner

"Only the certified capacities may be advertised or listed in product literature explains AHAM's technical director Herbert Phillips

By referring to the directory the buyer who, for example, wants a compact single-door refrigerator for his bar, office or den can quickly determine that one model will offer exactly 2 81 cubic feet of refrigeration space, 13 cubic feet of freezer space and 5 0 square feet of shelf area Another provides 1 83 cubic feet in the refrigeration area 22 cubic feet of freezer volume and 4 1 square feet of shelf space

How Much Space?

Since both units might look about alike and could be similarly priced it's important to know exactly how much space each will provide However, the buyer of an uncertified brand would have no way of determining these vital facts, Mr Phillips pointed out

"In shopping for a new refrigerator or freezer you should make sure the unit is certified by looking for the seal displayed on it Be especially wary of capacity and price claims for uncertified brands," he warned

In addition to the capacity and shelf area information, the directories list the names and addresses of all manufacturers (or brand owners) of certified units; give the model number for each unit and tell whether it is a single door, top freezer, bottom freezer, side-by-side, chest or upright model

"It's up to the buyer to determine which space features best meet his particular needs," Mr Phillips said "However, certification gives him the precise information he needs to make the wisest decision"

The number of models being offered to meet buyer demands is constantly increasing and there has been an increase in the number of firms — both U S and foreign — participating in the program and voluntarily complying with its strict rules regarding measurement and advertising of capacity and shelf space

Sip of Scotch Sealed Contract In Scotland

Marriage contracts may be sealed with a kiss now but years ago in Scotland they were more likely to be sealed with a sip of Scotch

According to a 1682 account, parents and friends of the prospective bride and groom would meet at some point midway between the two homes if arrangements were worked out satisfactorily everyone would drink from a bottle called the agreement bottle

Prior to the 19th century English lasses were often barmaids as well as brides on their wedding days, as it was a common practice for young ladies of low fortune to sell ale on their wedding day with the invited friends contributing money or goods for the brew

Also in early England it was common for people to drink at the church during weddings This was necessitated by the fact that homes and taverns were usually not big enough to accommodate the crowds of the entire countryside for a festive wedding

According to researchers at Black & White Scotch, in 17th century Holland, the importance of spirits to a new marriage even extended beyond the ceremony itself On the day after the wedding the bride would often appear with her head covered to present guests with a drink to symbolize her new role as mistress of her home.

Hard Trend Vanishes From Haute Couture

BY ODETTE MENGIN

ROME (AP) — Italian fashion houses began unveiling their fall-winter collections today with designers trying to entice rather than command

"There is no longer a hard trend in haute couture," said American-born designer Tiziani, normally one of the pacesetters for the jet-setters

Despite what he said Tiziani's style is a classic sportswear look for daytime or evening wear Coats are looser with modified kimono-type sleeves

Designers are trying to eliminate such superfluous features as padding, and to keep the lines simple and sober But they have made up for it in other ways

Fancy jewelry is an eye-catching feature of many collections including chains, strass necklaces and brooches pack beads and pearls

Also in vogue are the soft cloche hats, little caps and berets so soft they can be stuffed into a handbag or pocket when not needed and pushed back into shape later

Talitzine offers fur turnups as an option

Some designers still favor trousers, baggy for evening wear while others feature the easy-to-wear shirtwaist dress Dresses have the last word in a bid for greater femininity Skirts are mostly knee length, in daywear at least, but one designer plans to lower hemlines at the back into a sort of train

Planters in Deck

Recessed planters in a deck of western wood keep foliage at a low, natural level

All Purpose Mink?

BY ODETTE MENGIN
AP Fashion Writer

ROME (AP) — An Italian designer is giving blue jeans the high-priced look, mink shirts to go with the all-purpose pants.

On the first day of the fall-winter fashion shows in Rome on Saturday trousers and dresses played second fiddle to furs, from broadtail to beaver.

One designer went in for a bit of monkey business, trimming his jackets with hairy monkey fur Sand-colored Persian lamb rivaled with slinky lynx

Together with other couturiers, Tivioli was all in favor of the expensive mink He decided this fur would make comfortable shirts, open-necked and flaps hanging over trousers, in narrow colored stripes

His "1,000 lines" collection was made, he said, of "furs cut up like spaghetti" and stitched together in contrasting colors Loose coats in autumn shades of moss green and rust mink stripes sided with sky blue or white beaver

After the furs, American designer Martieri inaugurated the first collection of clothes dedicated to women in his showing

The couturier gave almost equal roles to trousers widening out almost into a dress for evening, and two-piece dresses.

He wrapped or pleated skirts and topped them with blouses or long matching tunics with blown-out sleeves and a gold chain belt.

Also fond of layers, Martieri designed a pale pink chiffon cocktail dress with fluted edges, the top tier forming a cape over the widened sleeves

Black and white were his other principal colors. He blended them in exotic flowery prints for evening coats and dresses in velvet.

Earlier, in men's fashions, designers showed that wearing squares did not have to make you one

Brevity Underneath

This fall there's an elegant new development in the panty hose revolution' For the first time a whole wardrobe of different panty hose styles will have ego-flattering brief top designs, with a tiny bit of panty knitted on smoothly at the waistband, exactly matching the briefs you've been wearing underneath for years This innovation by Burlington which spans all of your leg to advantage and eliminates traditional trunk line panty hose construction culminates a century-long fashion trend toward brevity underneath

Improper Fitting Affects Feet

Proper fit of children's shoes and socks, too, is essential to good foot growth and general well-being A large number of foot ailments can be traced directly to poor fitting shoes worn during childhood

In infancy, bones are extremely soft and pliable — no definite shape or strength has developed There is no real arch, and foot muscles are not yet strong enough to support body weight Bone composition is very soft and gristly It may easily be squeezed out of shape by confining shoes, or even too tight stockings and booties worn in the first few months of life.

The fact is that the bone and muscle structure of the foot does not completely finish growing until we are 20 years old Before maturity, the arch and instep are still developing Poorly fitted shoes may push toes out of their natural shape cause corns and bunions and even create fitting problems that last a lifetime

Sauce for Beans

Rapid Growth Taken Into Account

An infant grows rapidly and his clothes should be designed to accommodate this fact In the early ages, before he reaches his first birthday, clothing purchases should be limited to a few items that can be laundered frequently They should be designed for ease in frequent changing

As he grows older and begins to move around more — crawling, walking, playing — clothes should be designed to avoid frustrating his desire for movement By the time he is two the youngster enjoys dressing himself and clothes should be made to provide him the opportunity for doing so.

Add Garden Bench

A retaining wall is a natural place to add a garden bench, built of western wood and attached with angle irons

Save Time, Money

Care requirements for clothes are important whether you are buying clothing for children or adults The many easy care features developed over the last few years not only save time and energy — they also help families save money by cutting down wardrobe needs This is particulary desirable for children's clothing which is outgrown rapidly.

Easy care coupled with modern laundry facilities makes it possible to get along with fewer garments that can be laundered often.

Women Vote Mamie 'Most Respected'

For the second consecutive year, the widow of President Eisenhower rates "a great deal of respect" from most of the women in America.

Asked for their attitudes toward 27 prominent females, women throughout the United States gave first place to Mamie Eisenhower, second to Mrs. Pat Nixon, and third to Queen Elizabeth of England. Last year, Queen Elizabeth rated second, while Mrs. Nixon tied for third place with Sen. Margaret Chase Smith of Maine. Sen. Smith placed fourth this year.

Former First Lady Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis placed 12th on the list of most-respected females, tying with Rep. Shirley Chisholm of New York. Last year, the two shared 14th place.

Feminist authors Kate Millett and Germaine Greer rate equally as the low women in the Poll, with just 5 per cent each.

According to the 1972 Virginia Slims American Women's Opinion Poll, conducted by Louis Harris and Associates, Mrs. Eisenhower is respected "a great deal" by more than two-thirds (67 per cent) of the women surveyed: Mrs. Nixon by 56 per cent and Queen Elizabeth by 51 per cent. Sen. Smith follows Queen Elizabeth by six percentage points. Mrs. Ladybird Johnson, wife of the former President, and Golda Meir, Prime Minister of Israel, share equal high-respect ratings from 44 per cent. Mrs. Coretta King, widow of Martin Luther King, Jr., and Indira Ghandi, Prime Minister of India, are rated "most respected" by 42 per cent.

The Poll, the most in-depth study of women's attitudes ever undertaken, was conducted by the Harris organization in late 1971 among a representative cross-section of 3,000 American women. According to John Granville, Virginia Slims manager, "This second Poll continues and expands our investigation of the attitudes and opinions of American women, and takes a profound look at their influence and effect on American politics and the national economy."

Difference

This year, as last, the survey shows that black and white American women exhibit significant differences in attitude toward the women they admire most. A full 88 per cent of black women (36 per cent of white) indicated their high respect for Mrs. King — a number far greater than the separate or combined totals for any other single individual. Black women also influenced the selection of black opera star Marian Anderson in eighth place with a 58 per cent vote, as compared with 35 per cent of the white women's vote. Mrs. Onassis gained her position with votes from nearly half the black women (40 percent) and just 17 per cent of white.

Other well-known women who are highly respected by a third or more of those polled included author and former diplomat Mrs. Claire Booth Luce (37 per cent); former child star and United Nations delegate Mrs. Shirley Temple Black, and advice columnist Ann Landers, both with 36 per cent of the vote. Low-rated on American women's respect lists are actresses Vanessa Redgrave, Julie Christie and Jane Fonda, black activist Angela Davis, writer Gloria Steinen, and Rep. Bella Abzug.

Peanut Butter Good Food for Kids

Do you feel a twinge of guilt when you slap together peanut butter and jelly sandwiches for your kids lunch? Do you feel as though you should be taking more time to fix them something that is more nourishing? Well, don't says Kathryn Smith, Winnebago extension home economist. Peanut butter is good for you. In fact, if every child got two peanut butter sandwhiches and a glass of milk for lunch, he or she would be receiving a good lunch at a low cost.

Nutritionists say that the protein in peanut butter is of a higher quality than most other vegetable proteins and is therefore a good supplementary food in the diet. Proteins are necessary for proper growth of children, and adults also need protein everyday to rebuild body cells.

Peanut butter also ranks near the top of the food list in food energy, fats necessary for body balance, phosphorus, thiamine, and niacine.

By Federal regulation, commercial peanut butter is nothing more than shelled, roasted peanuts, ground and blended with salt, sweeteners, and emulsifiers. Ninty per cent of the peanut butter must be peanuts. No artificial flavors, artificial sweeteners, chemical preservatives, natural or artificial color, purified vitamins or minerals are allowed.

The ten per cent optional ingredients, however, need to be listed on the label so that the consumer knows what he is getting. The total fat content of the finished product may not exceed 55 per cent and the proportion of vegetable oils other than peanut oil may not exceed three per cent. A roduct that does not conform to the standards laid down by the Food and Drub Administration must be labeled "imitation peanut butter."

Two Styles

Peanut butter is available in two styles: creamy smooth and chunk-style. It can be used in a variety of ways which will tempt everyone in the family.

In talking with homemakers who use a lot of peanut butter, here are some peanut butter ideas that they have used.

To get a little variety in the traditional peanut butter sandwhich, try mixing with grated or finely chopped carrots. Peanut butter with sliced bananas or honey also make good sandwhich combinations, Mrs. Smith says.

Fresh vegetables, such as carrots, celery, or cauliflower can be dipped into peanut butter. This makes a great high energy snack.

One recipe that a homemaker passed on to me makes a delicious no-bake peanut butter cookie. Its a recipe that is easy and the kids can help you make it.

No-Bake Peanut Butter Cookie

- 1 cup sugar
- 3 tablespoons sugar
- ½ cup instant dry milk
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- ¼ cup water
- ¼ cup peanut butter
- 1½ cups rolled oats
- 1 teaspoon vanilla

Mix sugar, cocoa, dry milk, butter or margarine, and water in a pan. Bring to a boil. Stir and boil for 2 minutes. Use the timer on your oven to signal the minutes. Remove from heat and add peanut butter. Stir until peanut butter is melted. Add rolled oats and vanilla. Mix well. Drop by spoonfuls on wax paper. Cool at room temperature. Makes 2 dozen cookies.

Do Marriage, Politics Mix?

BY ANN BLACKMAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Politics may not improve a bad marriage, but it can make a good one more interesting, says Louella Dirksen, widow of the colorful Republican senator from Illinois, Everett McKinley Dirksen.

Mrs. Dirksen, commenting on recent stories that politics and marriage often spell divorce, said political wives must cater to their husbands' erratic time schedules to keep the marriage together.

"If your husband is going to be in politics, you have to make the adjustment," she said, admitting her views might be considered old-fashioned and counter to many women's liberationists.

Faith Pays Off

"It's lonely at times," she said in an interview, "but the main thing is you have to be flexible. You have to have faith, but it pays big in the long run."

Mrs. Dirksen has written a book, "The Honorable Mr. Marigold," which chronicles her 42 years of marriage with Dirksen who died almost three years ago while he was minority leader of the Senate. She refers to her husband as "Mr. Marigold" because of his longtime effort to have the marigold named America's national flower.

The book is a love story that highlights the couple's 37 years in Washington's political arena. Like many politicians' wives, Mrs. Dirksen said she had sole responsibility for disciplining their only child, Denise, and many of her days were spent alone.

Hurlt by Vindications

"There were many times during Everett's first term in office that my heart ached for him," she writes. "Being so new and naive in the game of national politics, I was shocked, appalled, and hurt at the vilifications my husband received for not going along with President Roosevelt's sweeping New Deal program."

Mrs. Dirksen suggests that young politician's wives should seek out the wife of one of their husband's colleagues for firsthand information on what makes Washington tick.

"Some women can adjust better than others," she said, "but it's a trying task for anyone. It helps to have someone who knows the ropes and understands the strains you're under."

Mrs. Dirksen also warns politicians' wives to be wary of the press, "especially if they're young, attractive and full of charm."

"You can't just plunge right into Washington and say what you think," she said.

"I often thought if I kept still, my husband wouldn't have to account for anything I said. If I wanted to soapbox, I'd wait until he came home at night. I'd use him as a sounding board. It was safer."

Approval Sought

By the time your youngster is four he will want his friends to notice his clothes and will want their approval of what he wears. He will want to look as everybody else does.

Husband Can Play Role In Wife's Total Health

CHARLESTON, S.C. — When a woman aches or itches, the reason can be psychological as well as physical, says Dr. James Semmons of the Medical University of South Carolina here. And her husband might be the cause of the trouble, he adds.

According to the physician who combines counseling with his gynecologic practice, a woman with marital problems may see her doctor frequently for physical complaints, rather than seek the psychological help she needs. "We may have the medicine or salve to give for the purely physical side of it," Dr Semmens points out, "but I think we have to provide a certain amount of understanding for the emotional aspects of her difficulty as well."

A common problem Dr. Semmens encounters in his practice is that of women in their early 40's, whose physical complaints are often related to their need "to re-identify their female role in the home." While their husbands are then concentrating most of their efforts on the vocational goals they set for themselves in life, the wives have "already achieved their goal," Dr. Semmens notes. "Their children are raised and out of the home. The women now have to look for other areas of identification." Because their husbands are "selfishly" preoccupied with their own concerns, the doctor points out, they tend to ignore their wives at that time. This produces certain physical reactions in the women, he explains.

Sensitive to Stress

"In my practice, I see so many women in their early 40's with menstrual disorders, which are — more or less — based on emotional upsets," the doctor asserts. "Unless there are laboratory findings to the contrary," he goes on, "we assume that as the woman goes into her menopause, the uterus is quite sensitive to stress." Then, as some women get older and experience other changes, Dr. Semmens says, they may need various kinds of assistance. When their ovarian function tapers off at menopause, he explains, so does their production of the female hormone, estrogen. To compensate for this deficiency, many physicians now prescribe estrogen replacement therapy to help some women — who are having a difficult time of it — regain their equilibrium.

Dr. Semmons advocates involving the husbands in the treatment of their wives. "We try very much to impress on these gentlemen," he says, "the fact that although their wives will support them in their efforts to get ahead professionally or in the business world, those wives do need affection and the reassurance that they're very much a part of their husband's plans. We gynecologists and family physicians are particularly adept at doing this kind of counseling," he maintains, "because we believe it's not the individual — but the entire family situation — that's the patient."

Dr. Semmens asserts that husbands and wives who are fortunate enough to maintain their health and who remain physically active "can have a pleasing sexual life" well into their advancing years. "I don't know who made the statement concerning such activity," he says, "but it certainly does add life to our years and years to our lives."

Easy Care Feature

Some notable easy care features to look for in clothes are Perma-Prest finishes to eliminate or lessen the need for ironing, clothing with soil resistant or soil release finishes to keep it clean longer and cut down on launderings. Laundering success can be insured if the fabric is colorfast and preshrunk.

The items should be sturdily constructed to withstand frequent washing and wearing. Trims should be washable, securely attached and colorfast. If the material is machine washable and dryable the laundry process will be speeded up.

Quality in Making

Quality construction is especially important for youngsters' clothing that will be worn and laundered frequently. Even though most children outgrow their clothing rapidly, these garments receive hard wear in the short period of time that they are worn.

Knees, armholes, seams, pocket edges and plackets should be reinforced. Seams should be flat, smooth and properly finished to prevent raveling or pulling out. Fabric allowances should be generous for seams, pleats, lapels and fit.

Paint Decorates Home Exterior

Paint is used principally to decorate a house, not protect it, despite thinking to the contrary Properly applied, sidings of western wood will last generations without any coating at all

Owners often have a hard time deciding between paint or stain, and the answer depends primarily on whether the house is to blend with its setting or dominate it

Siding painted any distinctive color, including white, will emphasize a house Muted shades, natural wood tones or weathered wood siding will let the house blend in with the site

Where style is not a determining factor, stain may be preferable, as it requires less maintenance and generally lasts longer as it penetrates the wood, rather than coating it

A transparient stain can be used to accent the wood's natural grain characteristics and pigment can be added in various amounts depending on the color desired

Save the Children Widens Program

NORWALK, Conn — A remote mountain valley on an island in the Carribbean may well be the 70's landmark in child welfare that formation of Save the Children Federation was in the depression days of the 30's

In a bold new move to widen the impact of SCF's world-wide child sponsorship program, David L. Guyer, the executive director of the federation and the Community Development Foundation, has chosen the Hipolito Valley bordering the mountain frontier in the Dominican Republic to launch a new concept in sponsorship which will benefit the lives of 1,000 children under 15 years of age in this impoverished area

"We have long been aware that the one child, one sponsor concept more often than not left out many equally needy youngsters in any given area," Mr. Guyer said. Under this new form of sponsorship the two agencies will cooperate in projects through which entire villages or communities will receive pooled sponsor funds This extension of SCF's historical role in sponsorships will benefit directly hundreds of children in a given area.

However, the vital ingredient of contact between sponsor and child will be maintained, Guyer emphasized. Sponsors will still receive photographs and case histories of a child, as well as information on self-help community development projects in progress. The sponsor also will be put in touch with and can correspond with an individual child in the area.

In addition, the sponsor will receive status reports and two letters annually from one child who will, in effect, be writing for all the children in the sponsored village or area.

"These letters will attempt to bring the sponsors into closer contact with all the children — their problems, their successes. In short, these letters will seek to give the sponsor a closer involvement with the total society of a region as seen through the eyes of their sponsored child," Guyer added. SCF has sponsors and contributors in every state in the Union and is celebrating its 40th year of service to children.

Under the new format, sponsorship funds will be designated for community use with the one important stipulation that one-half of the allocated funds will be applied to projects directly benefiting all children. The remaining half will be available for community development projects selected and carried out by the entire village.

"Under this new plan," Guyer said, "a child, in a sense, becomes a spokesman for his community to the outside world. And rather than deriving all the benefits of the sponsorship relationship, he learns to share them with his brothers, sisters and his friends in the community."

The federation is registered with the U. S. State Department Advisory Committee on Voluntary Foreign Aid, is a member of the International Union for Child Welfare and the American Council of Voluntary Agencies for Foreign Service and of the International Council of Voluntary Agencies. An individual school or group interested in helping a child should contact Save the Children Federation, Norwalk, Conn. 06852.

Cotton Is Cooler

BY FRANCES DIETRICH

When a teen-age girl makes her mother's clothes, that's different. When she uses cotton knit, a fabric older generation home-sewers shy away from, that's another switch.

Recently, I admired a cotton knit pants suit worn by a luncheon companion and learned it was made by her 16-year-old daughter It was perfectly tailored from buttonholes to placket to pants. The girl started to sew for herself two years ago She is tall and has a problem finding happy choices in ready-mades Now, her mother is a beneficiary of her love of sewing.

Her choice of soft-textured cotton knit for summer provides a welcome change from the crisp-to-hard finish of polyester doubleknits. Cotton is naturally cooler The fiber absorbs moisture, which dries out quickly This action is speeded up by the knit structure, that literally pumps air in and out

The teen-ager also saved money for her mother The fabric was $1 a yard less than a comparable weight polyester doubleknit in the same width

Not Sure of Knits

Why are teen age sewers in general more partial to cotton knits than their elders? The fabric is styled to attract the tremendous number of young home-sewers, but there are plenty of pattern choices for womenswear The real answer lies in the built-in fear of cotton shrinkage Women know cotton woven fabric can be controlled for shrinkage but aren't sure about knits

Actually, any knit fabric will shrink, if not given shrinkage control at the mill During knitting the loops are stretched out in length 10 to 30 per cent beyond normal Unless a mechanical or chemical finish is applied the loops will return to normal during home laundering The fabric will be shorter and wider

The 16 year-old home sewer noted that the fabric she bought was labeled "machine washable" This implies that it is safe to machine washing As the degree of shrinkage was not given, she wisely washed the fabric before cutting.

This is advisable with any fabric, when you expect to wash the garment In addition to helping to compact the knit, it removes excess finish that may cling to the sewing machine needle and contribute to skipped stitches

She used a full tub of lukewarm water and dried the fabric at medium heat, removing it the second the dryer stopped. The fabric was patted out on a table and allowed to relax for several hours before cutting.

Loosely Woven

If she had been working with a loosely woven cotton knit, it would have been advisable to machine wash in cool water with a wool wash detergent; and to dry the fabric over a smooth rod in the bathroom or laundry room

When buying cotton knit ready-to-wear or fabric for home sewing, look for information on the label with regard to percentage of shrinkage that may be expected. Follow directions for care of the fabric. Most cotton knits are now pre-shrunk, but in varying degrees

However, I am told by cotton product research and development men "We are currently perfecting new finishes, which will reduce the shrinkage of knitted cottons to below one per cent Those will be offered commercially within the next six months." This means they will be available to you next spring, and you will get advance information in full detail in this column

YMCA Women Slate Lecture, Style Show

Two special events have been announced by the women's department of the YMCA and by its auxiliary.

Kathleen Hitchkock, a yoga expert from Milwaukee, will present a lecture at 2 p.m Thursday at the Y. A teacher of yoga, Miss Hitchkock presents a weekly television program over a Milwaukee station and has written many articles and books on the subject. She will give a half-hour lecture and then a demonstration.

Those interested in physical culture and wanting to participate in the demonstration may wear exercise clothes. Refreshments will be served. Free sitter service will be available.

Plans for a fall fashion show are being made. The event is slated Sept. 20 at North Shore Golf Club with fashions by Gimbels. Included will be a 7 p.m. dinner. Tickets are available and reservations may be made at the adult department

Both events are open to the public.

Desire Washability

Washability is important for children's clothing — both for convenience and economy. It also saves time and energy if the bulk of a child's wardrobe can be washed along with other family laundry. Permanent press is particularly desirable for children's clothes. It is a blessing, considering the speedy soiling and frequent clothing changes most children require. New fabrics and finishes almost eliminate the need for ironing.

Your Problems

Her Excuses Are Endless

DEAR ANN LANDERS This morning when my neighbor came over for our regular 10 o'clock cup of coffee she had in her hand a letter her husband had brought home from work. He thought it was pretty funny. We wonder how much kidding on the square was involved Here's the letter, Ann. Please decide

Dear Loving Wife

During the past year I have tried to make love to you 365 times. I recorded 229 excuses and 36 successes. I kept track of the reasons which accompanied the refusals Here they are:

We'll wake the children — 17 times.
It's too hot — 10 times
It's too cold — 5 times
I'm too tired — 32 times
It's too early — 15 times.
It's too late — 23 times
Please, dear, I'm asleep — 35 times.
Windows open, neighbors might hear — 9 times.
Backache — 18 times.
Headache — 16 times.
Toothache — 2 times.
Drank too much — 4 times.
Ate too much — 14 times.
Not in the mood — 21 times.
Mud pack — 2 times.
New Hair-do — 17 times.
Company in next room — 11 times.
Wouldn't you rather watch the late TV show? — 40 times.
Is that all you men think about? — 29 times.

Thanks, dear. Your Loving Husband (But Not Enough)

How about it, Ann Is it funny? — Paradise, Calif

Dear Paradise: Yes, it's funny, but like a great deal that passes for humor. I sense a lot of kidding on the square.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Since your column appears in the Rapid City Journal we feel that you are a member of our community. Will you plaese give us a hand? As you know, the people in Rapid City are trying hard to recover from the worst disaster ever experienced in this ten-state area. Almost every family in town has lost relatives, friends, property and possessions not covered by insurance.

The major industry in the Black Hills is the tourist business. Almost all our local people are dependent, ithr directly or indirectly, on the tourists who visit Mt. Rushmore and the Black Hills in July and August. If the tourists stay away, the financial impact of the flood will be multiplied many times.

The people of western South Dakota are more interested in having an opportunity to contribute earning a living than in receiving massive doses of federal aid. Please, Ann, tell the world that the Black Hills are as beautiful as ever None of the major tourist attractions was damaged by the flood. Fewer than one per cent of the motels, resorts and campgrounds were in the flood area. Tourists will also find the local people as friendly and helpful as in the past. — J.W.H., President, National College of Business

Dear J.W.H.: I have visited in Rapid City and loved it. Here is your letter with an added word from me to all of you who have never been there. Go this summer if you haven's been. You'll have the time of your life — and the community needs the money.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE

World Champions

by IRA G. CORN JR. TEAM CAPTAIN

The bridge player who has good luck with finesses leads a happy life Most of his contracts come home and going down for him is a rarity. However, sometimes even the most competent of finessers must watch his step Things may not always be what they seem.

Today's game hand was played by the luckiest of finessers. It is an example of how a declarer can get overconfident to lose his contract.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 NT	Pass	3 NT	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Queen of hearts.

South opened a standard 16-18 one no trump and North raised directly to game. Take note of North's bid. Usually only the invitational raise of two no trump is warranted with 8-9 high-card points. However, North's good five-card suit promoted his trick-taking value and he justifiably bid the game. Had his long suit been a major suit rather than a minor one, his proper bid would have been three spades to investigate game possibilities in spades.

West led the heart queen and our lucky declarer made the correct play of winning with his ace. He saved the heart king in dummy for an entry to dummy's diamonds.

At the second trick declarer led the jack of diamonds and all followed low. East's thoughtful defense paid off. Convinced that his finesses were working again declarer got a little careless. He forgot that suits divide 4-1 as well as 3-2 Thinking his contract was now made, he decided to try for the spade finesse.

He led a low diamond to dummy and when West discarded he had lost the hand. If he played dummy's queen, East would win and knock out the heart king. Declarer could take his winning spade finesse; however, the diamonds would be blocked and he would go down one.

If declarer instead took the diamond ace and then led a low one back to his ten, East could refuse this trick and once again declarer could make only eight tricks, since he would be limited to only three diamond tricks.

The winning play is to continue the diamond by leading the ten at trick two instead of thinking about other finesses. After East is forced to take his diamond king, declarer is assured of four diamond tricks, two hearts and a club. This totals seven tricks and, since his finesses always work, he can now take the spade finesse to score his contract.

'Great Waltz' to Prove Film Economy Possible

Andrew Stone Says Musicals Need Not Take $10 Million to Produce

By BOB THOMAS

VIENNA (AP) — Andrew Stone is a film maker who believes that a musical need not cost $10 million. He's trying to prove his theory by making "The Great Waltz" for one-quarter that amount.

No mini-musical is this. You realize that when you watch Stone direct a scene with a hundred dancers in 1850 costumes waltzing to a full orchestra under the dazzling chandeliers of the Imperial Palace of the Hapsburgs.

Stone, a kindly-looking man of 70, gives commands to his English-German crew in a scarcely audible voice. He seems more like a college professor pushing retirement. But there is no doubt that he is in total control.

Carefult Watch

"You have to keep your eye on everything on a set if you want to make pictures the way I do," Stone remarks.

The way Andrew Stone makes pictures is the way that American film companies have finally come around to doing. That is, fast and efficiently, with small crews, portable equipment and no studio overhead.

"I haven't shot inside a studio for 24 years," he said proudly. "When I made my last picture for Warner Brothers, the studio sent 15 five-ton trucks full of equipment when I went on location. For my next picture, I carried all my equipment in a station wagon.

"Now everybody is shooting the same way. Finally I am vindicated."

Maverick Always

Stone has been a maverick for much of his 46 years as a director. Starting in the silent era, he played the studios' game until he rebelled at what he considered archaic methods. Then he cut out on his own.

As writer, director and producer, he developed his own pattern of on-location shooting which is the norm for today's film makers. He specialized in suspense films like "Julie," "Cry Terror" and "The Last Voyage."

Having made earlier musicals like "The Great Victor Herbert" and "Stormy Weather," he decided in 1970 to attempt "Song of Norway," an operetta based on the life of composer Edvard Grieg.

"The picture should have cost $2.25 million," said Stone. "But because AB Cwas a new film company, the executives panicked and the final figure was $3.5 million. That was more than I expected, but a lot better than 'Goodbye, Mr. Chips' at $17-18 million or 'Hello, Dolly' at $24 million."

"I don't know what 'Song of Norway' will make, because it's hard to get accurate figures. But I think it will be safe to say that it has made at least $10 million."

Stone's economical ways impressed the new money-conscious managements of Hollywood. When he proposed a new film version of "The Great Waltz," he had four takers. He chose MGM, which had made a previous version in the 1930s. The picture deals with lives and works of Vienna's famed waltz writing Strausses, father and son.

"But my version is not related to the old movie, nor to the stage operetta," the film maker emphasized. "Both were fictional accounts. Mine is based entirely on historical fact."

Operating from London with only himself and a secretary as a production team, Stone put together the company. His cast was international: German Horst Buchholz as the junior Strauss, Englishman Nigel Patrick as his autocratic father, Italian Rosanno Brazzi as a wealthy baron, American soprano Mary Costa as his mistress.

"Now You See Him, Now You Don't" is a Walt Disney Productions comedy spoof about the instant-fading friend (actor Michael McGreevey) of Debbie (actress Joyce Menges) and Dexter (Kurt Russell). In this scene, Dexter has just covered disappearing Schuyler with an invisible, anti-fade spray. The screenplay was written by Joe McEveety from the original story by author Bob King. Other actors in the comedy are Cesar Romero, Jim Backus, Joe Flynn and William Windom.

Bail Refused in Murder Appeal

FOND DU LAC, Wis. (AP) — A Circuit Court judge Friday denied bail to a Kewauskum man, convicted of murder in 1968, pending a retrial ordered by the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals at Chicago.

Judge Jerold Murphy ordered Chester Dombrowski, 38, returned to the Wisconsin State Prison at Waupun. He had sought bail.

The court of appeals had recently ruled Dombrowski was convicted on evidence seized without a search warrant. He was convicted of the first degree murder of Herbert Mc Kinley of Chicago in Fond du Lac and was sentenced to life in prison.

Lost World On Ancient Americas

BY TV SCOUT

7-8 — Channels 11-9 — In Search of the Lost World, a GE-Monogram Theater presentation, contains visual and audio riches. It's a study of ancient American civilizations: Mayan, Olmec, Aztec, Incan and the Mound Builders of North America. You'll see, for instance, relics from Nov. 4, 31 B.C. and you'll hear Dr. Louis Leakey who believes man was in North America some 50,000 years ago. Elmer Bernstein's musical score for this is perfect and so is the narration of E. G. Marshall, an amateur archaeologist yearning for his own TV series from various dig sites. (R)

7-8 — Channels 2-7 — Buddy Ebsen comes to Gunsmoke, playing a well-known mountain man bent on revenge after an outlaw kills a woman friend and seriously injures her son. After he sees that the boy will live, he is deputized by Matt Dillon and trails the killer and his gang. Only his aim is not a legal one. (R)

7-10 — Channels 5 — Monday Night Baseball has the St. Louis Cardinals meeting the Houston Astros at Houston's Astrodome. Curt Gowdy and Tony Kubek are commentators.

8-8:30 — Channels 2-7 — Kim (Lucie Arnaz), tired of mama Lucille Ball's constant quizzing about her dates, moves into a small garage apartment on Here's Lucy. But that doesn't stop Lucy, who is there every second and, when she's about to be caught, winds up trapped in a chimney. Tim Matheson plays Kim's bearded boy friend. (R)

8:30-9 — Channels 2-7 — Cesare Danova returns to The Doris Day Show as (Carlo), the artist she met in Rome in an earlier episode. This time he is in the U.S. to do a cover for her magazine but he can't paint. She tries the old jealousy routine on him, to help "unlock" his paint brushes, with Rory Calhoun as Exhibit A. The painting you'll see was rented from the artist — a student at Otis Art Institute, Los Angeles Municipal art school. (R)

Millions Undergo Plastic Surgery

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

A million Americans, hopeful that a change of face will give their life a change of pace, now undergo plastic surgery each year. Back in 1946, only an estimated 15,000 people had face-lifts.

If your teen-ager is moping because he can't make up his mind what career to follow, tell him to take heart from Bob Hope, the multimillionaire superstar. He had the same trouble. Before going into show business, Hope worked as a dance instructor, clerk, boxer, and newspaper reporter.

How well New Guinea head-hunters treat your skull after death depends on whether you're a member of the family or not. If you're a relative — even a mother-in-law — they string up your jawbone in a place of honor. If not, they use it to make ornaments and weapons.

Hunters don't have to hit ducks or geese with their pellets to kill them. A study showed that three per cent of the wild fowl population wintering in the United States dies each year of lead poisoning from swallowing shotgun pellets that have fallen into their feeding waters. That is a million birds each year destroyed inadvertently by hunters.

Quotable notables: "Every life is a work of art, shaped by the man who lives it." — G. Lowes Dickinson, famous English scholar.

Not enough: Can you name a deficiency—and I don't mean in pocket money—that at least one out of five people in the world suffer from? It's a deficiency of iron in their system.

Unusual legislation: In Elizabethan England you could be hanged if you opened and read the message in a floating bottle. The law was passed after a fisherman found a bottle containing an important political secret. The Queen then appointed an official "Uncorker of Bottles" who was solely authorized to read their contents.

Good catch: As a child, when you ran around with your mouth open, were you ever startled to have a bug fly into it? Well, that's why mother chimney swifts teach their young to fly around with their mouths open. They catch more insects.

Tip to fat men: if you're traveling and don't have a shoehorn, a folded envelope or two can be used as a handy substitute.

Mighty waters: Ocean currents are one of the strongest forces visible in nature. They may travel only a mile a month or as fast as 100 miles a day. The largest in the world is the current around Antarctica. According to the National Geographic Society, it carries more than 100 billion tons of water a second.

Worth remembering: "Nothing makes a man go places like a woman who likes to."

Safety note: The reason experts warn motorists against excessive smoking while driving is that smoking puts more carbon monoxide in the blood stream. This can deprive the brain and eyes of the total amount of oxygen they need to function at top capacity.

History lesson: Who was the greatest pool player among U.S. presidents? It probably was either John Quincy Adams or James Garfield. They were the only presidents who made a hobby of billiards.

It was the philosopher Goethe who advised, "Whatever necessity lays upon thee, endure; whatever she commands, do."

Girl Who Gave Nixon His Theme May be Worker

CAREY, Ohio (AP) — Vickie Lynn Cole, the Ohio school girl whose placard provided the 1968 inaugural theme for Richard Nixon, says she has been invited to work for the President's re-election and she says she thinks she'll accept.

Vicki said the Ohio Republican committee sent the invitation to her Friday night in a telegram.

Vickie was was 13 when she went to the Deshler, Ohio, railroad station with her eighth grade class to hear a Nixon campaign speech. She carried a sign reading "Bring Us Together Again." Nixon spotted the sign and later said the sight inspired his theme "Forward Together."

Three Drownings Listed in State

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Three drownings, including that of a 2-year-old boy Sunday, were reported in Wisconsin waters during the weekend.

Edward Benish of Roseau, Minn., the 2-year-old son of Mrs. and Mrs. Clayton Benish, drowned Sunday in Nicaboyne Lake when, Burnett County sheriff's department officials said, he apparently fell in from a pier.

Rodney Knobel, 22, of Richland Center and Dennis Jensen, 24, of Madison both drowned Saturday while wading in the Wisconsin River —Knobel at Boscobel and Jensen near Spring Green.

Nuisance of Salmonella Overrides Its Danger

BY G. C. THOSTESON, M.D

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My doctor tells me I have a germ called salmonella. He has given me antibiotics for it, but it doesn't seem to clear up. Is it dangerous and can it be cured? —Mrs. G.M.

Selmonella infection, at last getting some deserved publicity, is vastly more prevalent than people suppose, largely because it is passed off as "something I ate" or "intestinal flu" or some other such vague identity.

The germ is harbored in the intestinal tract and in the excreta, and is spread largely through food that has become contaminated, or by the fingers.

Recent warnings about turtles as pets are an example of this. Turtles often carry the germ, and youngsters who play with the critters and then forget to wash their hands can easily be infected.

Other domestic animals (cats, dogs, cows, chickens, pigs) also can carry the germ Salmonella is, indeed, a very common germ.

Salmonella also can multiply very rapidly, and a small contamination can become a flourishing one quite rapidly. It accounts for a great deal of the "food poisoning" at church or community dinners, on picnics, etc.

They symptoms are in the digestive tract — diarrhea, vomiting, abdominal cramps. They appear from one to several days after exposure.

Generally speaking, salmonella infection is more a nuisance than dangerous, but it can make life thoroughly miserable for a few days.

Antibiotics usually subdue it readily, but having it once doesn't protect you from having it again. If your case hasn't responded to treatment, I would suspect some source in your environment from which it keeps recurring. Cracked eggs, for example, are a possible source — the germs multiply with great rapidity in raw egg. But cooking destroys the germs, and that's why I am suspicious of raw eggs and want mine cooked.

Some individuals become chronic carriers of salmonella — which I suppose could be the case with you. A more potent antibiotic may be necessary. I presume you have told your doctor that you don't seem to be throwing off the germ as readily as expected.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I don't understand the operation to sterilize females. I know the tubes are tied, but what I don't understand is the physical problems I may have later, ovulation, early menopause, etc. — M.V.

The Fallopian tubes — through which the ovum from the ovaries travels each month — are cut and the ends closed or "tied."

The operation has no physical consequences except that the ovum cannot pass through the tubes to reach the uterus, so pregnancy no longer is possible.

There is no change (other than that) in ovulation; there is no effect on when menopause will come; nothing else happens. The ovum each month, which is so small you need a microscope to see one, is readily absorbed and disappears.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Does butter, left at room temperature, lose any of its properties? I have been refrigerating it, but I like soft butter. — Mrs. R.H.

No, it won't lose any of its properties in the length of time you are likely to be using a given amount of butter. Left out too long, unrefrigerated, it can turn rancid, but that will be apparent from its taste and odor.

Mini-Explo: A Fine Afternoon for Jesus

BY BILL LEACH
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

They came by car and on foot, on bike, trike and piggyback to hear the word and to get religion.

They sprawled on blankets and sat on the damply cool, clover-fragrant grass. Bright park benches, folding chairs and picnic tables formed an ever-widening crescent around the solitary building in Appleton's City Park Sunday afternoon as Fox Cities residents clustered around to "Pass It On."

The rally for Christ, sponsored by the Luther League of First English Lutheran Church, created a montage of Sunday-go-to-meetin' clothes, religious garb, cut off faded blue jeans, granny dresses, long hair, sandals, bare feet and clean shaven and hirsute countenances

It was a mini-Explo 72, an outgrowth of the recently completed youth evangelism crusade in Dallas, Tex., which drew approximately 80,000 young people to the Cotton Bowl

There were about 300 people in City Park Sunday — some had even been to Explo. But the main difference between the Dallas get-together and the Appleton rally, besides size, was in the group make up.

A good share of "over-30s" had come here — perhaps out of curiosity or skepticism or just because it was too nice an afternoon to stay at home in front of the television set or out in the back yard drinking beer.

Regardless, they were there. Everybody together under the great vaulted canopy created by spreading oaks, elms, basswoods and maples.

Amid Flowers

They sat there amid the City Park flower beds, bright with red, white, blue and yellow blossoms, and shared the joy of song and holy word that echoed from the stage

"Gimme a J," the youthful cheerleader in darkly patterned bell bottoms and blue T-shirt screamed from the podium. He got one right back. By the time the crowd of about 300 had gone through the remaining E-S-U-S and shouted, "Jesus," "Jesus." "Jesus," to his, "What's it spell?" the audience was warmed up.

Epithets of "Praise the Lord" and "Praise Jesus" echoed softly in the semi-circle around the stage with its backdrop of "Praise the Lord" in big orange and white letters on a red, white and blue ground.

They swayed to the hand-clapping, finger-snapping electric guitar and drum-beat music of the Leaguers and a group called JOY (Jesus first, Others second, Yourself last)

Electric Words

"If I had a hammer, I'd hammer in the morning . . ."

"Amazing grace, how sweet the sound . . ."

"How many roads must a man walk down, before they call him a man?"

A brown and white spaniel wandering around, like brown and white spaniels do, as Dave Jones, director of Campus Crusade for Christ International at the University of Wisconsin-Madison, said the answer to racism, war and pollution could only come through Jesus Christ

The change must start with Jesus coming into us, he said, and then working through us

"Jesus Christ's the one to make the change possible." Jones told the crowd

Just a Start

He said Explo was the "beginning of a massive spiritual change across the country We'll saturate the entire State of Wisconsin with the Gospel by 1976 at this rate."

Cool, refreshing breezes

It Was a Time for singing Sunday afternoon at Appleton's City Park when 300 Fox Cities residents got together for a rally for Christ. This offshoot of the recent Explo 72 in Dallas, Tex., saw smatterings of raised index fingers — the "one way" symbol indicative of the only route to salvation. Above, Grant Garriot, Marsha Ackerman, Bruce Duller and Sue Winkle clasp hands and raise their fingers in a symbolic gesture during one of the many singalongs, while an elderly couple, right ,separated by a picnic table top, sings in quiet reserve from the makeshift hymnals. Job Push Set for Fox Cities Poor

BY DON CASTONIA
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

A National Alliance of Businessmen (NAB) program is being planned for the Appleton area to provide jobs for disadvantaged people

Marion Gregory, president of the Madison Chamber of Commerce and metro director for the Madison NAB, explained the program for members of the Appleton Area Chamber of Commerce this morning

Under the program, Gregory explained, training assistance funds are available to businesses contracted to hire disadvantaged persons "This is an alliance between business and government " Gregory said

We don't ask that an employer make a job " he explained, "but we ask that when an opening occurs that the employer will pledge to hire a disadvantaged person

The National Alliance of Businessmen was set up at the request of President Lyndon Johnson and works in conjunction with the Departmet of Labor

Employment Office

Locally, Gregory said, NAB works through the Wisconsin State Employment Service offices Leadership for NAB is provided by business which loans executives. Gregory said that NAB can provide up to $30 000 a year for operating an office

There are two types of program contracts which local businesses can sign to provide jobs for the disadvantaged, explained Tom Dichraff of the Madison WSES office

One is an on-the-job training contract of from 8 to 45 weeks in which the employer is reimbursed up to 50 per cent of the starting hourly wage during the training program

The second program, Dienraff said, is called Job 70 and provides a flat 50 per cent reimbursement during the training period but can involve additional job-related training such as technical schooling and makes special counseling mandatory

No Obligation

Employers are not obligated to keep any employe hired under either program, Dienraff said although that is the object of NAB

Gregory said the national retention rate among employes hired under NAB is about 60 per cent

The classification of disadvantaged does not necessarily mean minority groups, Gregory said The term applies to those receiving welfare assistance and those whose income is classified as below the poverty level

Many people have been blocked out of the job market for many years Gregory said This provides an opportunity for the business community to do something in this area

2 Firemen Injured

Blaze Kills Appleton Man

A 63-year-old Appleton man was killed and two fire fighters injured in a late Sunday evening blaze that gutted a six-unit apartment building at 705 N. Appleton St.

It was the city's first building fire death in several years A six-year-old girl died of burns last year when her clothing caught fire while she was playing with matches in her basement

Dead apparently of carbon monoxide poisoning in the apartment blaze was Clarence L Herzfeldt, a retired Kimberly-Clark Corp. boiler room employe and watchman He was found fully dressed on the floor of his second floor room.

Fire fighter William Schultz was taken to St. Elizabeth Hospital after suffering from heat exhaustion He was listed in good condition this morning after being removed from the intensive care unit

A second fire fighter, Thomas Buss, sprained a toe when he tripped over an object while searching the second floor for occupants He said he had just helped remove two persons from the building.

Initial reports from Outagamie County Coroner Bernard Kemps and the fire department indicated that there were only two persons in the building when the blaze broke out The second, Albert Krueger, 64 who lived in a room adjacent to the victim s escaped injury

According to Kemps, Krueger was awakened by nearby church bells about 10 15 p m , after having fallen asleep during the evening radio news. Krueger then smelled smoke, grabbed his billfold and pushed out the window screen, crawling out on the porch roof, Kemps said.

"I hollered out to the neighbors to call the fire department " Krueger s statement to Kemps indicated

Krueger stated further that "While I was up there I thought I heard Clarence groan. Black smoke was coming from his window " Kemps said that Krueger also said that Herzfeldt was in his room when Krueger came home about 8 p m

There apparently were six persons living in the two-story unit which included three rooms and three apartments

Fire department officials said that the fire marshal had been called in to assist in further investigation of the cause However they reported that the most extensive damage occurred in the downstairs hallway near the bathroom

Russell Luebben deputy fire chief, said the downstairs front hallway was gutted and there was a "lot of heat damage upstairs " He said the entire front entrance was in flames when fire fighters arrived

Fire fighters, who apparently were called by a neighbor had the fire out in minutes after they arrived but were hampered by heat and smoke in their search for victims The department received the call at 10 56 p m and sent four major units including a rescue squad The last unit returned at 1 01 a m today

Probably the first person on the scene was Charles McKendry Jr , 20, a neighbor, who had just returned home from work He said he had been in his home "not more than two or three minutes" when he heard Krueger calling for help

"I stepped outside and saw people standing outside, " he said "And then I saw Mr Krueger on his roof "

McKendry, who lives with his parents, Mr and Mrs Charles McKendry Sr , 709 N Appleton St , said he brought a ladder to the roof where Krueger was trapped "

"I got up there and then he (Krueger) said there was a man in the next room I had my father hand me an ax, and I broke the window (of Herzfeldt's room).

"I tried to get in but the heat and smoke drove me back," he said There was no possible way I could get in "

McKendry said his "only fear was getting Mr Krueger, a big man, down without getting both of us knocked off " Fire fighters assisted in getting him down when they arrived

Several neighbors had come over near the burning apartment building at that time, McKendry said

The building is owned by Orville Myse, 1432 S Memorial Drive It reportedly had been rewired, at least partially a short time ago

Kemps said today that he had ordered further tests to determine the exact cause of the death of Herzfeldt He said that the victim had first second and third degree burns over 75 per cent of his body He was dead on arrival at St Elizabeth where he was taken by the fire department rescue squad

Kemps said that the police department fire department, coroner s office and the fire marshal would be involved in further investigation

The residents of the apartment house included Krueger and Herzfeldt in the two upstairs rooms. Miss Sharon Seidl upstairs apartment Ronald Kempen, upstairs apartment, and Mr and Mrs Ed R Allworger the downstairs apartment A downstairs room was vacant

Herzfeldt is survived by two sons, Richard, Maywood, Ill , and John a student at Charleston College, Charleston Ill a sister Mrs Roland Arndt 1630 Ravinia Place Appleton

Private services will be at 11 a m Wednesday at Wichmann Funeral Home with the Rev Thomas MacLachlan officiating Interment will be in Riverside Cemetery There will be no visitation

Albert's Only Real Friend

BY BILL KNUTSON
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Albert Krueger sat on the front porch steps at what used to be home

He started at a crack in the sidewalk His clasped hands dangled to his ankles

His white shirt was stained brown with smoke His long underwear bottoms showed under the cuffs of his gray work pants He wears long underwear all year because of his arthritis

Albert was just sitting there, talking with curious neighbors who strayed over, and waiting for someone to come over with a ladder so he could retrieve his false teeth which were still in a plastic cup on the porch roof

He left them there after he crashed out the window of his smoke clogged bedroom late Sunday night

Albert is 64 He's lived alone most of the 15 years he's been divorced. He had a little room in the quaint round turret that juts up from the blackened second story of the house at 705 N. Appleton St

"Nice and Cool"

He moved in there the last day of winter last year

He liked it there

"It was real nice." Albert signed "They treated me real

Support Lacking for Mayor's Freeze

BY CLIFF MILLER
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Public employes' reactions to Mayor James Sutherland s appeal for a voluntary pay and benefit freeze next year range from outright opposition to serious reservations There is little if any unqualified support

Underlying comments by 19 employes questioned by The Post-Crescent Friday and this morning is the feeling that if there is a freeze, it should apply universally or not at all

While some say all public employes in Appleton should be included, others go so far as to insist that a nationwide freeze is the least they would accept.

Employes questioned ranged from department heads to hourly wage earners in several departments, including union officers, rank-and-file members of bargaining units and employes who are without a bargaining organization

550 Employes

The mayor sent copies of his request to all city, school district and water department employes There is an average of about 550 employes on the city payroll alone

"I think everybody's entitled to a raise each year " said one secretarial worker Another reported that conversation among City Hall office workers Friday was "not good — not favorable" to the mayor's request. A mechanic said he "didn't think too much of it."

A number of employes brought up the Nixon Administration's efforts under Phase 1 and Phase 2 to hold down inflation through a freeze in wages, prices and rents.

One secretary said her pay was frozen last year by the federal action "I don't think it's fair " she said of Sutherland's request "I can t take it again "

Sacrifice

Others agreed that they had been counting on gaining this year what they missed out on last year due to the freeze Some city bargaining units had negotiated raises before the federal freeze took effect, and others hadn't, they added Sutherland had acknowledged in his letter that a freeze would mean sacrifice, and that it would "fall unevenly" because of some previously negotiated agreements.

Department heads are apparently divided on the question The mayor said in an interview Friday that in a conference with department heads that morning "There was some discussion of the no-man- is- an- island Concept "

"We'll go along with it if everyone else goes along with it too " said Welfare Director Merton Ehricke But City Atty David Geenen, who, unlike Ehricke is elected rather than appointed, said he is "not impressed at all" with the proposal

If city pay levels stay unchanged, private pay rates in Appleton will go up, and the cost of living also can be expected to increase, he said

He also took issue with Sutherland's claim that in general public employes are "relatively well-provided for " Another department head agreed with

New Social Worker Posts Before Winnebago Board

WINNEBAGO — A problem at the county mental hospital —lack of enough social workers to meet a spiraling demand — will be left up to the Winnebago County board Tuesday night.

Two resolutions, one of them asking for creation of two new social worker positions and another asking for the hiring of a temporary replacement for another social worker who is seriously ill, will come before the board for consideration.

Both resolutions were submitted by the county board's labor relations committee

The request for additional assistance at the hospital is not new but will run into automatic resistance: the county policy of creating no new positions this year

The resolutions were sparked by a letter to a number of county officials Friday by Donald E. Zboray, county institutions superintendent, who wrote that the "entire treatment program at the hospital is in serious jeopardy due to the chronic lack of social workers."

Ironically perhaps, four positions were authorized by the county board in January, including the two Zboray said in his letter he urgently needs. But then in February, in an about face, the county board reconsidered and refused to create them.

In his letter, Zboray cites that turnabout and said that the lack of enough personnel has been discussed in several county committees since early 1970, without resolve

"Since that time," comments Zboray, "we have made key county officials fully aware of the steadily worsening situation at frequent intervals. Necessary corrective action — the provision of two additional professional social workers for the county hospital — has not been taken."

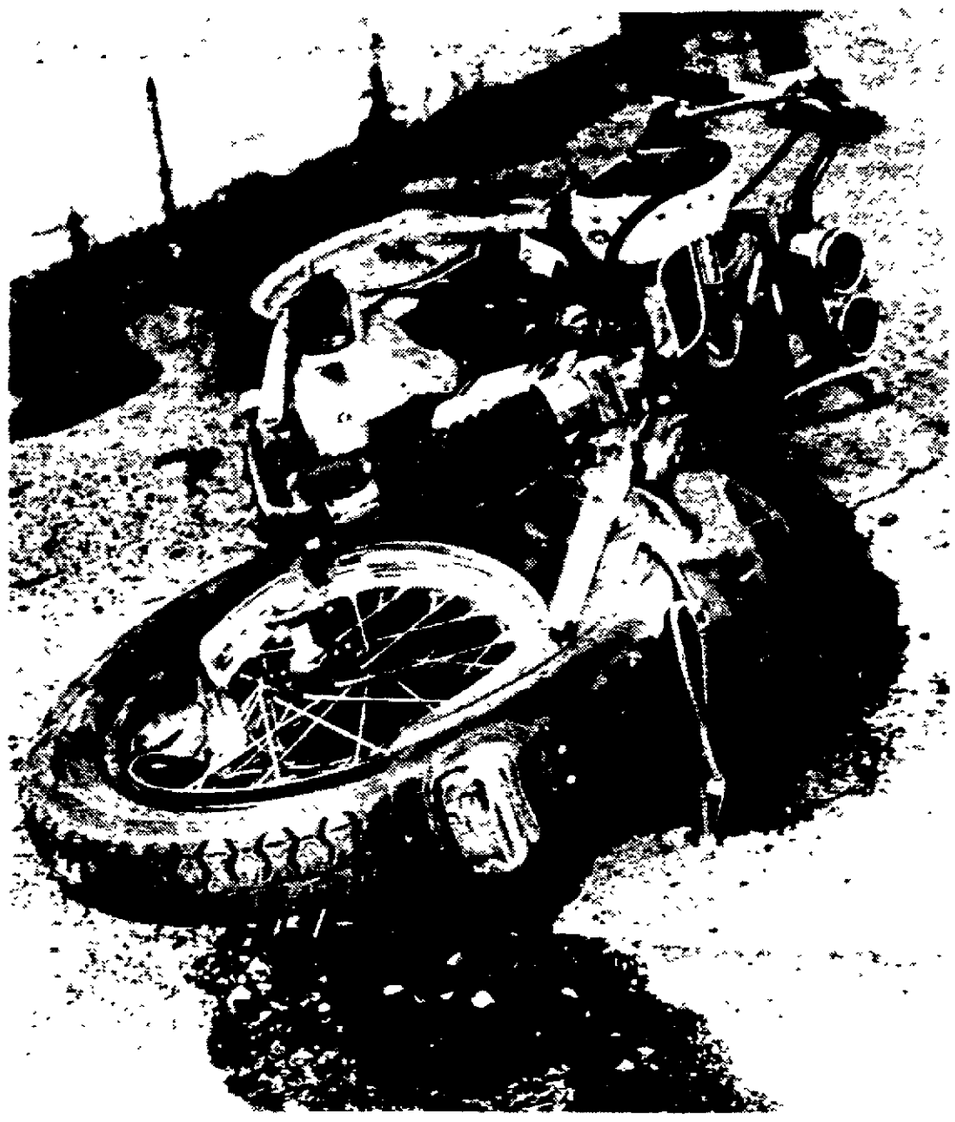
In another part of the letter, Zboray stated, " .In spite of our extreme efforts to meet patient treatment needs in this respect, we are ailing rapidly. Recently, the effect of the tremendous pressure caused by the lack of these two desperately needed additional social workers appears to be resulting in a collapse of our programs."

Some indications of the "collapse," Zboray says, are an inadequately-met workload in the foster home program which has nearly doubled since January; no social worker assigned to the women's social service program (caseload 180) because the worker assigned has contracted pneumonia; and the men's social service program, also with a caseload of 180 clients, which is only being met partially by one social worker.

In this latter program, Zboray said, most of the social worker's time is consumed in a "professional response to the social needs of male patients with frankly acute, or immediately incipient, psychotic episodes."

Contributing pressure to the situation in January were threats to cut off funding to the Title 19 program by the Wisconsin division of health unless federal social services staffing standards were met.

Salaries and fringe benefits to the four employes, had they been hired, would have totaled $29,641 for the remaining 11 months of the year at that time, with the actual cost to the county falling at slightly less than $6,000. The jobs are reimburseable at roughly the rate of 80 per cent.



A Wrecked Motorcycle lies as mute evidence of the death of John Olson Jr., 22, 1483 Fatima St., Menasha, who was killed after the motorcycle he was driving went out of control, and struck a parking meter and building on N. Commercial Street in Neenah.

Winnebago Workers Seek 10 Per Cent Boost in Paychecks

OSHKOSH — A 10 per cent across the board salary increase, in addition to regular step increases, is being asked by the Winnebago County Courthouse Employes Association in its item list for negotiations for the 1973 contract.

The list of items were in packets distributed to all county supervisors. The county board meets Tuesday night.

Other points of the contract, which will be negotiated by the association and the county board's labor relations committee, were:

—A request for incorporating into the agreement a step-by-step procedure for classification of an employe.

—A request for amending the daily work hours to 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., the year round. At present, these are the the daily work hours in the summer season only. During winter, employes must work until 5 p.m.

—A request to amend the agreement so that an employe qualifies for two weeks vacation after one year of work, and that several editing changes be made in other portions of the contract.

—A request that the employes not now covered by any bargaining unit be included in the Recognition and Unit of Representation portion of the agreement.

—An amendment proving that unused sick leave with pay shall accumulate to a maximum of 120 days.

—An amendment providing that the county contribute an additional $10 toward the county's group hospitalization insurance plan.

—That the contract contain a fair share provision requiring that all members of the bargaining unit contribute an amount as measured by association dues toward the cost of collective bargaining expenses as a condition of their employment.

Airplane Crashes In Adams County

MONROE, Wis. (AP) — An Illinois man was hospitalized in critical condition today after his light plane crashed in Adams County.

Phillip Briggs, 22, of Melrose Park, Ill., had taken off from a landing strip Sunday and apparently did not have enough power to clear some trees, the Adams County sheriff's office said.

St. Joseph's hospital at Marshfield, said Briggs suffered head, arm and leg injuries. A passenger, Wayne Jasinski of Melrose Park, suffered a broken arm.

Leave Record of License Number

MADISON — Col. Lewis V Versnik, director of the department of transportation's bureau of enforcement, has reminded people leaving on vacation trips to make certain they leave their car license number with neighbors or relatives.

Versnik said the State Patrol is often asked to contact travelers about emergencies at home, and can readily spot a license number.

Neenah Sidewalk Dispute Before Court

NEENAH — City officials were scheduled to be in Winnebago Circuit Court at 1:30 p.m. today to defend the order to install sidewalk on E. Peckham.

At stake is more than the 2,100 feet of sidewalk. The real challenge is whether the city has the authority to order in the improvements after a public hearing.

A group called the East Peckham Road Advancement Association stopped the sidewalk installation about a month ago when it filed suit before Circuit Judge William E. Crane.

The group argued that sidewalk would "irreparably harm the area is to its ecological balance without any accruing advantage" to the people living on the street. They also argue that it's a road and not a street.

The city, in its answer, cited state statutes which give the council power to act "for the health, safety and welfare of the public."

City Atty. Duane Philis argues that the street is a major route for "200 children under the age of 10 years who use East Peckahm Road and Street to travel to and from Coolidge School."

It also points out that it is the only through street going east and west between Commercial and S. Park making it "one of the more heavily traveled streets."

The decision from Judge Crane is expected to solve a dispute which has been waging for about two years concerning sidewalks and a new street on E. Peckham.

Philis argues that the ciy planner and Neenah police department had determined that a dangerous condition existed since the children had to walk in the street.

Philis went on to deny that the sidewalk would destroy the ecological balance and damage would be caused by "the ribbon of concrete."

Bill Controversial

Safety Act Political Liability for Steiger?

GREEN LAKE — Rep. William A. Steiger, R-Oshkosh, admitted Sunday that the job safety legislation he co-sponsored in 1970 could be an obstacle in his fight for re-election to Congress in 1972.

"Anytime that you have an issue that is as emotional as this one is, it can conceivable be a (campaign) liability," Steiger told a group of newsmen during a press conference in Ripon.

Steiger also said that Democratic Presidential candidate George McGovern's claims that he would have all troops out of Vietnam within 90 days of his inauguration could be "very self-defeating" for the candidate's own hopes of ending the Southeast Asian war as soon as possible.

"I must say in all honesty that you do run the risk" of tempting the North Vietnamese to "wait until after November" rather than sit down with Nixon administration negotiators now to seek a negotiated settlement of the conflict, he said.

The press conference Sunday preceded a Steiger fund-raising dinner ($25 per plate) at the Tuscumbia Country Club here.

Steiger, who is running for his fourth consecutive term in Congress this year, has found himself in the midst of a national controversy over the administration of the Occupational Safety and Health Act, otherwise known as the Steiger-Williams Act, passed in 1970 to cut down the number of job-related deaths and injuries in the U.S.

On recent trips into his home district, Steiger has been confronted by a large number of employers who've complained that the complicated regulations are too much.

Steiger, although he himself has admitted to some shortcomings in the bill, has continued to stand strongly behind it as "valid and good" legislation that will work, once both labor and management fully understand the rules.

Steiger contrasted McGovern's Vietnam pledges with President Nixon's stand during his 1968 campaign, when he said he would make no statements regarding the conflict that would hinder President Lyndon Johnson's efforts to negoiate a settlement to the war (Nixon did say, however, that he had a "secret plan" that he would implement as President).

Steiger said McGovern's statement could work to postpone a settlement past the November election.

"There is a possibility that some more serious negotiations can take place" with the North Vietnamese, Steiger said, after statements over the weekend by North Vietnamese officials that they are ready to hold more private talks with the Americans.

The fund-raiser at Tuscumbia was attended by about 290 supporters from throughout the Sixth District. It was the second fund-raising dinner held for the Congressman in the last week. About 470 attended both dinners (the first was in Kiel).

James Smith, administrator with the Farmers Home Administration (FHA), was scheduled to speak at Sunday's gathering but was taken ill and could not make the trip from Washington.

At the press conference, Steiger also:

—Said the economic situation is getting better, and should not be a problem for Richard Nixon and his re-election drive in 1972.

"Things are just a lot better off" than they were a few months ago, Stieger said, noting that the rate of unemployment has declined slightly while productivity and the rate of inflation are also improving.

Steiger said both labor and management people he had talked with throughout the district indicated they were happy with the way things were going, and "I don't see the economy being a liability" for Nixon's re-election in 1972.

—Predicted vice President Spiro Agnew will again be second man on the Republican ticket in 1972. Steiger did not agree with speculation that former Treasury Secretary John Connally could become Nixon's running mate.

Net Income For K-C Hits $14 Million

Quarter Figures Reflect Gains in Sales Here, Abroad

NEENAH — Kimberly-Clark Corp., citing strong improvements in both domestic and foreign operations, today reported that net income for the quarter ended June 30 increased to $14 million, or 60 cents a share, from the year-earlier profit of $8 million, or 35 cents a share.

Second quarter sales were $243 million compared with $226 million a year ago.

For the first six months, net income increased 52 per cent to $27.9 million, or $1.20 a share, compared with $18.4 million or 79 cents a share, in the 1971 period. Sales were $496 million, up from $462 million.

Darwin E. Smith, chairman and president, said results for the quarter were attributable to across-the-board gains from the company's U. S. consumer and service products, paper and forest products and foreign operations.

The improvement in paper and forest products, he said, reflects increased demand and the effect of the 1971 decision to dispose of four paper mills. The 1972 figures do not include sales or earnings from those mills, three of which have been sold. Arrangements for sale of the fourth mill are nearing completion.

Smith said second quarter lumber sales continued at a high level, paralleling the rapid pace in home building, a pickup in general construction and the export demand for hardwoods.

Strengthening demand and the continuing positive effect of manufacturing efficiencies contributed to improvemet in both sales and profits for Kimberly-Clark consumer and service products. Earnings gains have more than offset heavy introductory costs of several new consumer periods including Teri disposable towels and New Freedom napkins, both of which are in national distribution, and Kimbies diapers, Smith said.

The company now has seven diaper production lines in operation and is selling the product in about 10 per cent of the country.

Operations outside the U. S., which have posted an approximate 25 per cent sales gain in the six months, also contributed to the upward trend in Kimberly-Clark earnings, with subsidiaries in Mexico, Canada and France showing particularly strong improvement.

In June Kimberly-Clark started a 65 ton-a-day tissue manufacturing machine in West Germany. Another 65 ton-a-day machine is scheduled to begin operation in Japan next month. Both supply tissue for a variety of consumer products.

Delegates Have Wrinkled Memories

BY DAVID WEITZ
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Wrinkled campaign banners and once-jaunty straw hats, footprints of the Democratic convention, clutter Miami. Mimeographed reports, subjects of bitter fights, lay discarded. Memories survive. Memories of 50-cent coffee and three-hour waits for buses. Exhausted Fox Valley delegates see a kaleidoscopic picture of Miami, of exhilarating victory and violent dispute.

It was a time for high goals, for the tempering of a political machine and for frustration at hard chairs, lost sleep and snafu'd air conditioning

It was a rematch of 1968 for Sandy Utecht, Oshkosh, who had worked in Chicago as a backer of Sen. Eugene McCarthy. The difference was that in 1968 "we knew we were lost," and this year the McGovern organization controlled the votes on crucial issues.

"God! Was I proud to be a Democrat," she says. In 1968 the issues were lost. This year, in a different city, in a convention unmarred by violence, Sandy's candidate won.

Reforms changed the party and brought new faces, different kinds of people to the convention. "People who were on the streets being beaten four years ago were plugged into the machinery," she says.

Security was tight. Everyone entering Convention Hall was checked and Secret Service agents and police were scattered throughout the hall. But the feeling in the hall was different. "In comparison to 1968. . .the security was less fascist, the people were less uptight."

If the convention was a happy one it wasn't because of outside accommodations. "The food stank and the prices were off the wall," she says.

Shuttle Bus

Delegates paid $8 apiece for a shuttle bus throughout the city to find the busses were often late, overcrowded, or simply nonexistant Sandy paid $1.17 for a coffee and orange juice and a duplicate order to go.

In her hotel the "shower dripped at you but couldn't get itself together enough to run in a stream."

James Mulligan, Green Bay, got his introduction to Miami Beach while checking in to the hotel. "When I stepped into the room the bellman pulled the cord to pull the drapes and the whole thing fell down. . .it was never repaired."

Service in the crowded city was poor and prices inflated. Tapwater in Mulligan's room was "the color of orange juice." But the important place was Convention Hall and there the setup worked — at least for Mulligan as a McGovern delegate

Every ten McGovern delegates shared a phone. Banks of parlimentarians staffed strategy trailers outside the convention center ready to do battle in a complex legalistic joust that never was started. "Within a matter of a couple of minutes this information (on strategy) could be relayed so every delegate on the floor knew what it was," he says.

A new attitude was stirring in the convention and aldline party members were disturbed. The "pot-bellied, bejowled, cigar smoking old men" just weren't there.

The mood was serious and when McGovern captured the California delegation Monday there was little doubt that he would win the nomination. "The whole ABM-Anybody But McGovern- movement collapsed," says Mulligan.

Neopit Indian

The convention was chance for Mrs. Shirley Daly, Neopit, a Menominee, to speak up for Indians on a minority platform plank.

"You felt like you were in front of the whole world," she says. Her speech, which advocated giving Indians first priority for allocation of federal surplus lands, came about 4:30 a.m. during Tuesday's marathon session. Brushing elbows with Lawrence O'Brien, national party chairman, actresses, and party leaders she stepped forward to appeal for support for the minority plank later adopted by the convention.

The marathon was exhausting for Mrs. Diane Kriven, Green Bay. "I wasn't sure when I should be eating, when I should be sleeping."

Members of other delegations wandered through the hall and delegates crowded together had a fight to find even a comfortable seat. "Space was at a premium."

She remembers incredible floor fights which paralyzed action of some delegations. Georgia Gov. Jimmie Carter was seated behind Diane and the split delegation was a trouble spot thoughout the session.

But after Monday the conclusion was sure, she says. Delegates were active and "fantastically enthused."

Humphrey Delegate

McGovern's nomination was disappointing to John Anderson, Stevens Point one of 13 from the state championing Hubert Humphrey. The nomination was a foregone conclusion, he says, after Monday's credentials fight. "We knew it was the end of the ball game."

But Anderson isn't displeased with Miami — even with the prices, as are other delegates — and he'll work for McGovern.

It's one thing to fight within your own family, but you don't leave home.

good and it was so nice and cool."

He paid $10 a week. He usually wrote a check for five or six weeks at a time.

"It was just a place to sleep. I never cooked there or had food. "Oh, once in a while I'd have a banana or something like that, but I almost never ate there," he said.

He had the privacy that old men who live alone like. There were other people living in the apartment house. But they came and went and Albert never really paid much attention.

He thinks there was a girl named Sandy living there. Once in a while he'd talk small talk with a few of the occupants, but names meant little to Albert.

His only real friend in the big house was Clarence Herzfeldt, who was a year younger and slept in a bedroom next to his.

Used to Sit, Talk

He pointed to the place on the front porch where he and Clarence used to sit and talk. Sometimes they'd walk down to the Arcade Bar. But Albert said it's been almost a year now since he's had a drink. His health isn't the best. He has to sit down five or six times between home and downtown.

"But I've got the time," he smiled.

Albert and Clarence were the only people home when the fire broke out.

Clarence died in his bedroom.

Albert, who got out onto the porch roof after being awakened by the smothering smoke, was outside his friend's window when firemen arrived to get him down. He heard Clarence groan a couple of times. But the smoke was just too thick and the room was like a furnace.

Albert put his upper plate in a cup every night when he went to bed. He grabbed the cup and his billfold when he went out the bedroom window in his underwear.

Wouldn't Descent

A neighbor put a ladder up to the porch, but he refused to come off the roof until the firemen arrived. He was worried about his bad back.

Firemen later went into his room and brought him the shirt and pants and his bank book, his union book and some Social Security papers. He's been on Social Security disability since 1958.

Albert is convinced the fire was sabotage. He is sure "someone is trying to burn down this place" It was the second fire in two weeks at the big house, he said.

At 11:15 p.m., July 3, the fire department was called when fire started in a mattress and bedding in an unoccupied first floor apartment. Albert was home then, too. He heard noises downstairs before the fire was discovered.

Albert doesn't know where he'll go now. He thinks he would have stayed in the apartment house for quite a while — at least until he turned 65. Then it would have depended on his health. If it got worse, he had thought about trying to get into a nursing home.

Now he just doesn't know

"Where My Friends Are"

He spent last night on the davenport in a house across the street. He might stay with a son on the south side for a little while.

But he wants to be near downtown.

"It's where my friends are," he emphasized. They're the people he likes to sit and talk with.

And he has to go downtown regularly for treatments at the chiropractor's.

"I'll find something someplace," he assured as he lifted himself from the porch steps.

"Right now, I've got to go and lay down again for a while."

wafted through the trees and caressed the people in the park each time the clouds moved in front of the sun.

"Shur'nuff, Jesus, send me where you want me," the people sang. "Jesus Christ, the sinners' friend has a place for even me."

And then Pastor Elden Davis of Calvary Baptist Church in Neenah took over the podium.

"Christ is the answer," he exclaimed. Do three things, he said, and salvation can be yours:

"Recognize that Jesus Christ died for you."

—"Recognize the fact that you are a sinner."

—"Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ and you will be saved."

Small Groups

"Jesus needs you to pass it on," the Neenah pastor said, and with that, the assembly broke up into small groups to talk about how Christians can put their faith into action, spread the word and recruit others for Christ.

Young people from the Fox Cities who had participated in Explo in Dallas conducted the action groups, illustrating their approaches with literature received at that big rally and urging their listeners to "receive Christ by personal invitation."

Tiny youngsters became restless as the afternoon wore on, whimpering more forcefully. Elderly folks began to shift uncomfortably in their lawn chairs. Enough sitting is enough sitting.

Slowly and in a manner undictated by any set pattern, the crowd started to disperse. Some held hands and others put arms around shoulders and nuzzled in a way that may have been influenced by what they had heard and seen that afternoon.

It was a lovely feeling. The atmosphere was relaxed and smooth. Not a ripple of harsh discontent

A few more songs — "Kum ba yah, my Lord, Kum ba yah." "Allelu! Allelu! Everybody sing Allelu!"

"I wish for you, my friend, this happiness that I've found; I want to pass it on."

It was obvious they pretty much had come to realize that "Jesus Christ is the ultimate solution," as a tieless Appleton Mayor James Sutherland had told the crowd earlier in the rally.

It was over and the park was quiet again.

Freeze

Geenen that city employes are at present about at par with private employes, and a freeze would be in effect mean losing ground.

"I'm all for it — as long as nothing else goes up," remarked another desk worker in the street and sanitation division. He said he meant taxes, prices, and other living costs. "It's the food," added a coworker. "You should make enough to cover that," he said, noting that groceries have risen in price due to exceptions in the federal freeze policy.

A large number of employes said they believe Sutherland is sincere in seeking the voluntary freeze. Others suggested his motives are political.

"I think he's just doing his job," said a clerical worker. Said Geenen, "I think he's sincere. He doesn't do anything he's not serious about and hasn't thought about."

"Popular Thing"

"It's the most popular thing for a new mayor coming in to do," said another employe.

Several employes pointed out that a similar suggestion was made by Sutherland's predecessor, George Buckley, a year ago. Some employe groups said they would go along if others did, but the effort failed when one bargaining unit refused. "It's a practically impossible thing to get all the units to go along," observed Ehricke.

One secretarial employe who holds an office in her bargaining unit added another dimension to the discussion. "Two years from now, people will expect so much more, and the wages will go up that much more," she argued.

One employe at the municipal garage pointed to upper-echelon employes who have received raises. In hiring a new finance director, the City Council "gave him a $900 raise before he even started," he argued. He also objected to an assistant being appointed in the mayor's office for the summer, under a program financed largely with federal funds, and to the fact that the mayor's salary itself was raised last year, before the election

It's Boris' Turn For Protesting

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (AP) — American challenger Bobby Fischer forced the third game of the world chess championships off the stage and into a private room, gained the initiative from Russian titleholder Boris Spassky and was given a good chance to win when play resumes today.

But the future of the competition remained in suspense as aides of Spassky warned that the Soviet champion would refuse to play any additional games in the private room.

Play was to resume at 12 p.m. CDT with the referee opening a sealed envelope in which Fischer wrote out his 41st move at Sunday's adjournment.

The 29-year-old Brooklynite backed down on a threat to fly home Sunday and appeared for the third game in a small upstairs room of the Reykjavik sports hall. Spassky, 35, playing the white pieces, had already made his first moves.

Fighting to overcome the Russian's 2-0 lead, Fischer forced Spassky to the defensive midway in the 5-hour, 18-minute session. At adjournment he was in a position to threaten the Russian's king. At the pause, each player had his king, queen and one bishop remaining while Fischer had six pawns to Spassky's five.

Pawn Edge

Isaac Kashdan, the international grandmaster analyzing the match for The Associated Press, said Fischer had excellent winning chances. He said in a clash of grandmasters, the one pawn advantage could be decisive.

Spassky won their opening game at Reykjavik last week and was declared winner of the second by forfeit when Fischer failed to appear because he objected to hidden television cameras filming the match.

Officials overruled the American's appeal against the forfeit, and until the last minute it was uncertain if Fischer would continue. He and two lawyers assisting him in Iceland had seats booked on a Sunday afternoon flight to New York, but they did not leave. Instead, at Fischer's insistence, the match was moved to the small room and the audience of paying fans in the big sports hall downstairs watched on closed circuit television. Aparently Fischer had no objection to that TV equipment.

But Referee Lothar Schmid announced he had moved the third game into the private room "just for today ... just to save the match."

Schmid said the rest of the games would be played in the hall.

Spassky's aides described the offstage room as a "chess cupboard" and warned that the Russian would not play any more games in it.

Rolling Stones Gear Is Bombed

Blast Under Truck Shakes Huge Forum Building in Montreal

MONTREAL (AP) — A bomb exploded outside the Montreal Forum early today under a truck loaded with equipment for a concert in the arena tonight by the Rolling Stones, a police spokesman reported.

No one was reported hurt, but the windows on the north side of the building were broken.

Peter Rudge, manager of the British rock group, said the concert would take place as scheduled.

The Forum building covers a whole block and is the home of the Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League.

The building watchman, Gaston Lesage, 56, was sitting by the back entrance about 15 feet from the truck.

"There was a hell of a bounce," he said. "All those windows broke, a ball of fire came out from under the truck, and then there was a lot of smoke."

The motive for the bombing was not immediately apparent.

Pioneer 10 Enters Belt Of Asteroids

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Calif. (AP) — Hurtling through space at 56,000 miles per hour, America's Pioneer 10 space probe has begun a risky journey through the Asteroid Belt on its way to Jupiter.

It was the first time an object launched from earth had entered the belt, a spinning circle of dust and mammoth rocks which orbit the sun between Mars and Jupiter.

Despite the fact that a tiny speck could damage the spacecraft, officials at the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Ames Research Center at Moffett Field were optimistic about Pioneer 10's chances for a safe passage.

They estimated the spacecraft has about a 90 per cent chance of making the seven-month trip through the Asteroid Belt without serious damage.

Pioneer 10 is expected to reach Jupiter on Dec. 3, 1973.

The spacecraft is now 115 million miles away, the greatest distance ever traveled by an object launched from earth.

The Asteroid Belt contains millions of particles ranging in size from sand pebbles to rocks as big as the state of Alaska. The belt is 1.8 billion miles around, 175 million miles wide and 50 million miles thick.

Two From Wisconsin Die in Plane Crash

OSAGE BEACH, Mo. (AP) — Two Wisconsinites were killed in the weekend crash of a light plane at a small airport near this Lake of the Ozarks community.

Pilot John Antunk, 33, of Beloit and passenger Cecile Lisecki, 36, of Burlington lost their lives Saturday when, authorities said, their craft skidded off a runway and burst into flames.

"Ride 'em Sheila," they yelled, and that she did. Sheila Bussey of Longview, Tex., kept aboard the bull named Snake long enough Sunday to win her second go-round in the Girls Rodeo Association Western Roundup — and win all-around cowgirl honors at Pueblo, Colo. Earlier this season she won the only other GRA-sanctioned all-girl rodeo at Duncan, Okla. (AP Wirephoto)

Enemy Positions Blasted By Bombers, Navy Gunships

SAIGON (AP) — Nearly 100 U.S. B52 bombers and a naval task force of more than a dozen cruisers and destroyers blasted North Vietnamese positions on both sides of the demilitarized zone today in some of the heaviest bombardments of the war.

The raids were in support of a 20,000-man South Vietnamese counteroffensive on the northern front. They had the two-fold objective of destroying North Vietnamese troops and supplies already on the battleground and cutting off reinforcements and war materials reportedly moving south.

The Saigon command reported light fighting on the edges of Quang Tri, the provincial capital which fell to the North Vietnamese May 1. It said South Vietnamese paratroopers driving from the East had inched their way to within 200 to 300 yards of the Citadel, the 19th century fortress in the heart of the city.

A dozen B52s struck north of the demilitarized zone on both sides of the port city of Dong Hoi against elements of two North Vietnamese divisions. U.S. military sources said the troops were on the move southward, presumably to join two badly battered divisions in Quang Tri province.

More than 80 giant Stratofortresses struck to the North, West, South and Southwest of Quang Tri city, dropping about 2,500 tons of bombs on North Vietnamese positions.

The U.S. Navy said the destroyer Shelton destroyed nearly 30 North Vietnamese emplacements and triggered 10 secondary explosions in bombardment near Quang Tri city. Other ships of the 13-vessel task force firing from offshore included the guided missile cruiser Oklahoma City, flagship of the 7th Fleet, and the destroyer escort Hepburn.

Another task force made up of the destroyers Robison, Hammer, Warrington and Hull bombarded transshipment points and storage areas above the DMZ. The 7th Fleet said the Hull and Robison also destroyed two boatloads of supplies taken off freighters—presumed to be Chinese—at a point southwest of Hon La island, about 30 miles northwest of Dong Hoi. The freighters were not attacked.

The U.S. Command reported that American fighter-bombers flew more than 240 strikes against North Vietnam on Sunday. All of the raids were well below Hanoi in the southern half of the country.

Proxmire Against Cut in Federal Milk Program

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. William Proxmire strongly objected today to a Nixon Administration proposal that almost $12 million be cut from the federally subsidized school milk program.

"As long as children arrive at school without a decent breakfast, or any breakfast at all, in their stomaches, that mid-morning milk break will continue to be all-important," the Wisconsin Democrat said. "Studies hae shown that hungry children simply are not able to absorb knowledge."

Proxmire said the House-approved reduction from last year's $104 million appropriation is not really a saving of federal money.

"Milk not purchased under the school milk program will in all likelihood have to be bought and stored in powdered form at the taxpayers' expene under the price support program," he said.

Proxmire is a member of the Senate agriculture appropriations subcommittee, which will consider the measure soon.

Eagleton States Position On Amnesty, Taxes, War

WASHINGTON (AP) — As president, Sen. George McGovern would grant amnesty on a case-by-case basis and limit it to draft resisters, his Democratic running mate says.

Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, picked by McGovern Thursday as the Democratic party's vice presidential candidate, also predicted higher taxes by 1974. And he said there will be no mass defections of leading party figures to the Republicans.

The Missouri Democrat said there is no basic difference on amnesty between McGovern and President Nixon. Neither man would grant automatic amnesty to deserters and both would delay the question until the fighting stops, he said.

Eagleton commented Sunday on the CBS television-radio program "Face the Nation."

Eagleton said he would discuss campaign strategy with McGovern at a South Dakota resort later this week.

The 42-year-old senator also:

—Said the draft should continue as long as the shooting does because "the risk of dying should be shared equally."

—Acknowledged McGovern would leave Air Force and Naval forces in Thailand and elsewhere in the Pacific after U.S. troops were withdrawn from Indochina. These forces might be reduced gradually later, he said.

—Said he believes the Vietnam war would not be ended as long as South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu is in office.

—Declared McGovern's $1,000-per-person income redistribution program is being substantially reworked.

—Declared up to $10 billion could be pared from the defense budget this fiscal year.

—Said that, if elected, he expects to specialize in law and order and urban affairs.

Navy Admits Flaws in F14

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Navy found 43 major flaws in test models of its new F14 fighter plane during a preliminary evaluation late last year, according to congressional testimony made public today.

Sixteen of those deficiencies related to safety.

The Navy told a House Appropriations subcommittee that "corrective action is under way" and that a majority of the repaired aircraft would be ready for testing this summer.

This testimony, which also reported 75 minor problems with the F14, came during closed-door budget hearings last April.

An F14 crashed into Chesapeake Bay June 30, killing its civilian test pilot. Navy sources said divers still are recovering pieces of the plane and that cause of the crash has not yet been determined.

The specific problems detected during evaluation flights by Navy pilots last November and December were referred to only sketchily in the April report to the House subcommittee.

But testimony by senior admirals under questioning indicated deficiencies involved engines stalling, difficulty in recovering from spins, and flight range, among other things.

In addition, the congressmen were told that 10 deficiencies were found in the system controlling the Phoenix missile, the F14's principal weapon. Most of these problems, too, will be straightened out, the Navy assured the subcommittee.

The F14 is designed to serve the Navy in fleet air defense and air superiority missions in the late 1970s and the 1980s.

Despite Pentagon claims that the F14 is indispensible for the Navy in future years, the project has come under intense fire for congressional critics because of its escalating costs. The Pentagon lists the price of an F14 at $16.8 million, up from $11.5 million last year.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., claimed Saturday that the cost will be $20.8 million.

Present plans call for an eventual purchase of 313 F14s.

The Grumman Corp., builder of the F14, has notified the Navy that it is financially unable to build the next batch of 48 F14s unless its contract terms are improved.

The Navy has taken the position that it has a valid contract and that it expects Grumman to perform under its terms.

Moscow Bound Peterson Called For Conference

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — Secretary of Commerce Peter G. Peterson, bound for trade negotiations in Moscow, was called to the Western White House today to confer with President Nixon.

Invited to sit in on the session were Henry A. Kissinger, the President's assistant for national security affairs, and Peter M. Flanigan, assistant for international economic policy.

Peterson is chairman of the American delegation on the U.S.-U.S.S.R. Commercial Commission. This group, which begins its meetings Thursday, will work out some further details of the Soviet agreement to purchase $750 million worth of American-produced grain during the next three years.

The commission also will seek to negotiate a broad, long range trade agreement between the two countries.

4 Players Tie for 2nd

Colbert Withstands Charge To Capture GMO by 1 Shot

By MIKE O'BRIEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Jim Colbert said he played the best pressure golf of his life in posting his second victory in seven years on the pro tour, but the Greater Milwaukee Open nearly lasted one hole too long Sunday for the 31-year-old Kansan

Colbert was 14-under par for the meet and nursing a two-stroke lead when he bogeyed the 72nd hole Then he watched under heartstopping tension while charging George Johnson and steady Bud Allin the final twosome, each barely missed birdies which would have forced a sudden-death playoff

Colbert's final 69 on the par 71 Tripoli Golf Club course earned him $25,000 with a 13-under total of 271 Johnson who had shared the second and third round leads with Colbert finished a stroke behind along with Allin Grier Jones and Chuck Courtney

Courtney's 64 Sunday was the tournament's best single round but it was Johnson one of seven blacks on the tour who electrified the crowd of 13,250 with a spectacular finishing kick

Johnson, whose only pro victory was in the 1971 Azalea satellite meet fell to seven-under with a double bogey on the third hole and bogeys on each of the next three

But he started the back nine with a birdie eagled No 11 and birdied 12 and 13 to close to within two strokes

Johnson missed the birdie he needed on No 18 when his 12 foot putt hit the right of the cup and spun out Allin who had been two strokes down after three rounds almost birdied 18 with a 20-foot chip shot that rolled over the hole

Expected Win

"I never played as well as I did this week with the heat on" Colbert said "I didn't feel like I was going to win—I expected to win coming down the last few holes I kept telling myself to just keep doing the same things I've been doing"

Colbert who had won only $18,571 previously this year said he was aware of Johnson's charge "but I knew he had a long way to come"

"I didn't worry about anybody else until the last green" he said I thought a four there would end the ball game"

But after a good wood shot on 18 he chose to use an eight iron from 170 yards away instead of the seven his caddy suggested He pulled the ball into a left bunker then had what he called a "pathetic" shot that left him 20 feet away from a par His putt touched the hole but twisted out

Courtney, who had finished much earlier than Colbert Johnson and Allin, barely missed a 12-foot birdie on 18

Colbert's closing bogey was only his fifth in 72 holes He also bogeyed the par 3 third hole Sunday, but birdied Nos 8, 9 and 11

"I thought I played better today, even though I had no bogeys yesterday," the 1969 Monsanto winner said "I didn't make a whole lot of long putts, but I can't think of one all week I missed from under six feet"

Johnson 33-year-old Atlantan, said he "just collapsed" with his disastrous double bogey and three bogeys

"I thought it was all over if I didn't birdie one of the last three holes of the front nine, and I didn't," he said "But when I birdied 10, it gave me inspiration, and after an eagle and two more birdies I thought I was going to win."

Johnson said he thought he

Consistent Machine

Hanby Unable to Match Hansen in NEWGA Amateur

BY GENE LILLGE
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

KAUKAUNA — There wasn't much Tom Hanby could do when he matched up with Manitowoc Branch River's Pete Hansen in the finals of the Northeastern Wisconsin Golf Association Amateur Tournament at the Fox Valley Golf Club course Sunday.

Hansen, operating like a consistent golf machine, defeated the Fox Valley ace 4 and 3 to win the championship

"It's just not your day," Hanby said, referring to the fact that although he missed only one green, he could manage but two birdies.

Hansen, who lost in the finals, 6 and 4, to Pete Benson at the first two greens but still managed to halve them with pars.

Bird on Third

Hanby won his only hole of the day when he birdied the 498-yard third

The 6-8 Hansen, who graduated from Northwestern University in June and who hopes to enter Marquette Dental School this term, took the lead for good when he birdied the 472-yard sixth and the 274-yard seventh.

Hansen, who eliminated defending champion and fellow Branch golfer Gene Heino in the semi-finals, had Heino caddy for him in Sunday's finals

Hanby nearly went three down at the turn when Hansen missed a five foot birdie putt.

Hansen won the first three holes on the back side with two birdies and a par on the 193-yard 12th. Hanby missed the 12th and took four, while Hansen dropped a seven-foot recovery putt for par. His first putt, from some 45 feet, hit the hole but rolled by.

The finalists halved 13 and 14 with pars, as well asd 15 with birdies.

Hansen nearly eagled the 15th after drilling a two-iron second shot on the 541-yard hole 10 feet past the cup

"I hit my irons good," Hansen said after the match. But it was his putting that won the title. "I made the short ones I had to make," he said.

In Sunday's other finals, Jerry Pantel of Sheboygan Riverdale best Branch River's Ron Lese, 1 up, to win the President's Flight, and Butte des Morts' Harvey Lhost shot 1-under par golf to beat Bill Wixcox, 6 and 4, in the Seniors Flight.

KAUKAUNA — Dick Trickle continued on his way to sweeping the State Championship Series as he gunned his '70 Mustang '427 to victory in the White Race before 6,142 sun-drenched fans at Wisconsin International Raceway Sunday afternoon

Fluff Furo, Junction City Wis., won the first heat in a '69 Dodge 440, Joe Shear of South Beloit, Ill., copped the second race in a '72 Camaro 427 and Kimberly's Roger Regeth took the third event in a '69 Camaro 454

Trickle regained the lead on the 52nd lap and did not yield his position during the rest of the race

"He had a bigger engine than I did (454-cubic inches-427) so I had to do my best on the curves," a heavily perspiring Trickle noted after the race

Could Not Compete

Appleton's J J Smith, one of Trickle's top challengers, could not compete because he blew an engine Thursday night

A J Mouldenhauer set a new track record on the half-mile oval in the time trials as he powered his '70 Chevelle 454 around the course in 21.60 seconds for an average of 83.33 mph Joe Shear, who finished third in the feature in his '72 Camaro 427, was the second fastest qualifier with a time of 21.67 seconds Both drivers bested the previous track record set during the Red Race by Madison's John Ziegler (21.74)

The first heat had the closest finish with Furo holding on to nose out Jim Olson in a '69 Mercury 427 Shear beat Trickle out by a few car lengths in the second race

Regeth Wins

Dennis Sobkowiak's '71 Plymouth 426 rolled on its top on the second lap of the third race The accident began as Rick Davis' '71 Torino spun out, a '69 Dodge 426 driven by Lyle Nabbefeldt hit him and Sobkowiak

Angels' May Hurls Shutout

Brewers Split Twin Bill

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Baseball fans with pitchers for heroes got an eyeful Sunday when the Milwaukee Brewers and California Angels split a doubleheader, the Angels winning the opener 1-0 and Milwaukee the nightcap 2-1

The split evened the weekend series at two games each

California's Rudy May was awesome in the first game completing a start for the first time this season and lifting his record to 3-7

Only one Brewers batter got to second base, only six balls were hit out of the infield and May gave up just two hits, struck out seven and walked only two in the shutout performance

Milwaukee hurler Jim Colborn was almost as effective giving up just three hits, walking two and striking out four in the loss which dropped his record to 2-1

Only Run

The only run of the game he gave up a walk and a single scored in the third when Ken Berry walked, took third on a single by Leo Cardenas that just cleared the outstreched glove of Brewers' third baseman Mike Ferraro and scored on Vada Pinson's sacrifice fly

Tommy Reynolds had Milwaukee's hits—both were singles—in the fourth and seventh innings

The Brewers only scoring threat came when May issued both his walks in the first inning But one of the runners was retired attempting to steal second and Reynolds was called out on strikes to end the uprising

Still Hasn't

Bill Parsons (7-7) was the winner for the Brewers in the nightcap with a save from Frank Linzy

Angels' starter Lloyd Allen, who has yet to go nine innings in the majors, was relieved by Rick Clark in the seventh after But Clark, 4-9, gave up four hits and both Brewers' runs in the eighth as Milwaukee gained the split

The Angels took the lead in the fifth inning when Sandy Alomar singled, advanced to second on a sacrifice bunt stole third, and scored on a single by Berry

The lead stood up, and Milwaukee's string of scoreless innings off Angels' pitching extended to 18, before the Brewers finally pushed something besides dirt across home plate

Ron Theobald pinch hit for Parsons to lead off the eighth and singled, and a pitcher, Skip Lockwood, was inserted as a pinch runner for Theobald

Rick Auerbach beat out a bunt, and Bob Heise was inserted as a pinch runner for pinch runner Lockwood

Brock Davis beat out another bunt loading the bases and sending the pinch pinch runner to third, and George Scott singled, driving in two runs

The pinch batter-pinch runner-pinch runner strategy was the plan of Brewers Manager Del Crandall

"When the first guy up in the inning singled, I didn't want to use a player we might need later so I sent in Lockwood," Crandall said "But then we got men on first and second and this is our chance to win the ball game so I sacrifice a little speed at second base for experience by sending in Heise to run for Lockwood"

"It worked pretty good that's all I know," Crandall said

Parsons, without a victory since June 8 and pitching from the bullpen since June 1, blamed his woes for his pitching problems

"While throwing on the side and in the bullpen I tried to analyze what I was going wrong Parsons said "Actually the only thing that needed analyzing was my head

"My fast ball was the best one today and now I'll work on the other pitches," he said

Clemente Back After Suffering Intestinal Virus

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Pittsburgh Pirates said rightfielder Roberto Clemente was expected to be back in uniform today after a one-week bout with an intestinal virus

Clemente 37, needs 40 more hits to reach the exclusive 3,000-hit plateau Eleven more and he'll surpass Honus Wagner as the all-time Pirate leader.

The Pirates meet Atlanta tonight, and although Clemente was to be in uniform, there was no word on whether he would play.

Packer Coaches Awe-Stricken by MacArthur Lane's Speed Display

BY LEE REMMEL
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

GREEN BAY — Careening to a stop 20 yards past the "finish line," moustachioed Gale Gillingham circled back and anxiously inquired, "What was my time?. . .Five-four?"

Packer coaching aide Red Cochran, looking up from his stopwatch, cryptically rejoined, "I got 5.3."

Beaming at this intelligence, Gillingham flexed his muscles a la Charles Atlas, threw out his ample chest and triumphantly challenged? "Where's them rookie guards?"

This revealing little tableau took place late Sunday morning as Packer veterans ran the 40-yard dash against the clock in full pads, an exercise held in conjunction with the annual "Picture Day" on the South Oneida Street practice field.

Whatever Gillingham's actual time was (he was clocked by several watches and Coach Dan Devine later was careful to explain, "Gillie's official time was a little slower than 5.3") it was no surprise to the coaches — or the railbirds.

"Super Guard," a relatively svelte 262 pounds at this point, always has accelerated with startling facility for one of his heft.

But there were more than a few elevated eyebrows when MacArthur Lane, Packer payoff in the Donny Anderson deal, oburned the 40 yards in 4.7 seconds not once, but twice.

The Pack's brain trusters knew Lane was fast — particularly Cochran, who coached the former Utah State star at St. Louis in 1968 — but even they were impressed.

All of the returns obviously will not be in for some time but Lane's straightaway performance suggests the Packers can safely claim an early edge in the trade. Anderson, it has been reliably reported, was caught at a somewhat surprising 5.4 in the Redbirds' early camp dash trials — in shorts.

Ellis Sets Pace

Although MacArthur outstripped all his fellow running backs and was only five-tenths of a second off the pace of squad leader Ken Ellis. Lane was not happy with his time — even if Devine was.

"I thought it was slow," he said with a disapproving curl of the lip. "I wanted a 4.6."

Devine, meanwhile, clearly regarded Lane's show of swift as yet another indication of his potential.

"Yesterday," DD pointed out, "he was first in all of the sprints (there were 18) by our backs."

Exhibiting a facetious smile, DD admitted, "How many times he crosses the goal line is something else. . .But I've never seen a better conditioned athlete at this stage of the year."

Although he declined to disclose all of the 40-yard times, noting that such information would give great comfort to the enemy, the Packer headmaster did volunteer, "There are two I'd like to point out. . .Mike McCoy had an exceptionally good time for a big man and Ray Nitschke had a good one, too.

"Aside from that, the only general observation I have is that the offensive line times were poor — any way you want to measure them. Which means they're getting pretty good mileage out of their ability.

"It's to their credit, in other words. It means the guards are pulling good and it is an example that, although speed is important in football, so are other things like wanting to get out in front of the ball carrier.

"This just goes to show our offensive line did a fine job last year (the Packers finished second in the NFC in rushing) considering there are no barnburners out there."

Initial squad cuts can be expected momentarily, although they are not likely to be extensive at this point. Most of the current personnel will be needed to provide balance and competition for the intra-squad game, to be staged in Lambeau Field Wednesday night, July 26.

PACKER PATTER — Devine, updating an earlier report on the status of veteran placekicker Lou Michaels, said Sunday, "As it looks now, I would say Lou will not be reporting.

"Chester Marcol's ankle is better (Marcol presently is in the College All-Star camp) and Tim Webster has been kicking well, so I doubt if we will be bringing Lou in. . .All we'd be doing is doing an injustice to Lou."

Mike McCoy, a billowy 304 pounds when he checked in as a rookie in 1970, proudly reported Sunday, "I'm 273 right now." The massive defensive tackle, a twinkle in the eye, added, "I lifted weights in the off-season and that helped me redistribute the mass.

Macs Sweep Pair From Madison '9'

MENASHA — The Menasha Macs rebounded from Saturday's loss to first place Beloit by sweeping a doubleheader from Madison, 8-6, and 20-3, here Sunday.

The twin victory boosted the Macs' Wisconsin State League record to 10-9.

The Macs came from a 6-0 deficit to score seven runs in the fourth inning of the opener. Madison had tallied five times in the third.

Dan Ferry went the distance for Menasha while starter Stan Wagner took the loss.

The nightcap, called after 4½ innings by agreement, was featured by a 13-run second inning by the Macs. They collected 12 hits in the frame.

In all, the Twin Citians banged out 20 hits, none of them homers. Skip Oberbrunner had a 2-run circuit clout for Madison in the fifth. Bob Meyer was the winning pitcher.

Lee Analyzes British Open

Nicklaus in Class by Himself, But Nobody Can Win All the Time

MUIRFIELD, Scotland (AP) — Lee Trevino, still bubbling over his second straight victory in the British Open Golf Championship, admits that his great rival, Jack Nicklaus, is a better player.

By winning the British title Saturday, Trevino put an end—for this year—to Nicklaus' dream of capturing the first Grand Slam in modern golf—sweeping all four major professional titles.

Trevino survived a charge by the 32-year-old Nicklaus in the final round over Muirfield's 6,892-yard, par 71 links.

Then the man who calls himself "Super Mex" paid this tribute to Nicklaus: "I don't think I am in the same class as Jack.

"Nicklaus can be beaten, simply because nobody can win all the time. But to beat him, you really have to play well," Trevino said.

"There was no one in the field who could honestly say he was in the same class as Jack."

Trevino said he hoped Nicklaus would go on to win the Professional Golfers Association Championship next month at Birmingham, Mich., the last of the Grand Slam tourneys.

"Then I'll be known not just as the British Open champion but as the man who stopped Jack from doing the big one this year," Trevino said. "There's a kind of immortality in that alone."

Impossible Dream

Nicklaus had already won the 1972 Masters and U.S. Open and needed the British championship and the PGA to achieve the all-but-impossible dream.

Trevino picked up the winner's pay check of $14,300 with a 72-hole total of 278, six under par. His rounds were 71-70-66-71.

Nicklaus took second place, one stroke behind with 70-72-71-66—279.

"I rate my last round as one of the finest I ever played," Jack said.

His 66 matched the course record, set earlier in the week by talented young Johnny Miller and later equalled by Trevino.

Exciting Finish

In one of the most exciting finishes in the history of this ancient tournament, Nicklaus made up a six-shot deficit and at one stage actually overtook Trevino, the third-round leader.

Lee holed a chip shot from a green-side trap at the 17th for a par five that saved his title when it looked like it was slipping away.

Oakland Widens Lead Over Chisox

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Oakland utilized its power Sunday to defeat New York, 5-2, in the American League.

In other Sunday action Milwaukee won the nightcap, 2-1, after losing the opener to California, 1-0; Detroit shut out Kansas City 2-0; Boston whipped Minnesota 6-1, Texas defeated Cleveland 3-2 in 12 innings and Baltimore downed Chicago 6-1 in the rain-abbreviated first game of a scheduled doubleheader. The nightcap was washed out.

Oakland completed a sweep of its four-game series at New York and opened a 7½-game lead over Chicago in the Al's West Division.

The A's got home runs from Joe Rudi and Mike Epstein to build a comfortable early lead over the Yankees and were able to ride out John Ellis' two-run homer in the bottom of the ninth.

Epstein's 16th

Epstein's homer was his 16th of the year, fourth best in the AL, and he hiked his runs batted in total to 47, fifth best in the league "My bat has been dragging," said the solidly-build first baseman. "I can certainly use the All Star break."

In the East, Detroit maintained its one-game lead over Baltimore, shutting out Kansas City while the Orioles were knocking off Kansas City.

Norm Cash and Aurelio Rodriguez tagged home runs, giving rookie Bill Slayback all the offense he needed to defeat the Royals.

Slayback scattered five hits for his first major league shutout. Cash's homer was his 17th and Rodrigurez hit his fourth.

Boog Powell bombed his third homer in four games for two runs and Brooks Robinson also drove in two as Baltimore kept pace with the Tigers by knocking off Chicago.

The game was called in the seventh inning when a rain squall soaked Baltimore's Municipal Stadium.

Powell's ninth homer of the season came in the sixth inning and helped Jim Palmer gain the victory. Palmer, 13-4, allowed only three hits and one unearned run.

Marty Pattin hurled a four-hitter and Danny Cater and Reggie Smitch crashed home runs, helping Boston beat Minnesota.

Pattin, who hurled a one-hitter in his last start, improved his record to 7-8 besting Bert Blyleven, 9-11.

Dave Nelson's 12th inning single scored Lenny Randle with Texas' winning run as the Rangers edged Cleveland

The game started at 7:30 p.m. local time by special permission of the American League to avoid the hot Texas afternoon weather.

Pirates Sweep to Hike East Lead; Reds Beat Cards

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

"We hit the ball and they caught it," said Lee May of the Houston Astros. "They hit the ball and it was in the hole. That's baseball."

No, that's the Pittsburgh Pirates. The Pirates use the home field advantage as good as any team in the National League—and Sunday turned it to their advantage again.

Base hits whistled through the infield on the hard, artificial surface at Three Rivers Stadium and the Pirates literally ran off with a pair of 3-2 victories over the Astros.

The Pirates killed two birds with the double triumph. For one thing, the East leaders moved 4½ games up on second-place New York Mets lost a 7-3 decision to the San Diego Padres. For another, they dropped the Astros five games behind Cincinnati in the West after the Reds beat the St. Louis Cardinals 4-1.

Elsewhere in the National League, the Los Angeles Dodgers cut down the Montreal Expos 4-2; the San Francisco Giants defeated the Philadelphia Phillies 10-7 and the Chicago Cubs downed the Atlanta Braves 5-3.

The Pirates' first-game victory was fashioned with the help of speed, combined with that Tartan - Turf surface. The contest was tied 2-2 when Willie Stargell opened the 10th inning with a walk Stargell raced to third when Sanguillen rifled a sharp single through the infield.

After Rennie Stennett was walked intentionally to load the bases, Bob Robertson was struck on the right wrist with a Fred Gladding pitch, forcing in the winning run.

"I'll do almost anything to get an RBI—but not this," said Robertson good-naturedly while rubbing a bruise left by the pitch.

In the second game, the Pirates took a 1-0 lead with an unearned run in the first inning—then used that tailor-made combination of speed-and-playing surface again to build their lead.

The Pirates scored their eventual winning runs off Houston's Don Wilson in the fourth when Al Oliver singled and scored on Stargell's double. Stennett then drilled a ball through the Astro infielders for a run-scoring single.

Bruce Kison got the second-game victory with last-out relief help from Dave Giusti, who nailed it down after giving up a two-run single to May.

"A little luck, a few breaks and we'll be back in the pennant race," said a still-optimistic Walker.

Throwing errors by pitchers Jerry Koosman and Danny Frisella helped San Diego break a tie with four runs in the seventh inning as San Diego defeated New York.

The Padres tied the game 3-3 on Enzo Hernandez' two-run single in the sixth inning, then pinned the loss on Koosman after Dave Roberts walked to open the seventh.

Bobby Tolan hit a tie-breaking home run, then doubled and scored again as Cincinnati took St. Louis behind Jack Billingham's eight-hitter. The Reds' victory was their sixth straight, boosting their front-running lead to its biggest of the year.

Bill Buckner ripped a two-run triple to highlight a four-run first inning and Don Sutton scattered seven hits to lead Los Angeles over Montreal. It was Sutton's 11th victory of the campaign.

Tito Fuentes hit his first major league grand slam home run and rookie Garry Maddox added a three-run shot to pace San Francisco over Philadelphia.

Jose Cardenal, who hit a home run in the second inning to drive in Chicago's first run, knocked in the tie-breaker with a single a s the Cubs scored three times in the eighth inning to defeat the Braves.

Jim Colbert of Kansas City, Kan., crouches and hides his face as a putt on the 18th green missed the hole by inches Sunday during the final round of the Greater Milwaukee Open. Colbert's bogie on the hole nearly cost him the championship, but opponents failed to overcome his one-stroke lead. First place was worth $25,000. (AP Wirephoto)

Jack's Rose Hill Wins KRA Crown

KIMBERLY — Jack's Rose Hill defeated Oregon Clothing, 5-2, Sunday to capture the Kimberly Recreation Association softball tournament title.

In the consolation game, Ron Dart supplied the impetus as Military Golfland won a thrilling 11-inning game from Green Bay rival Benkowski Budweiser, 7-6.

Jack Coenen hurled the win for Jack's Rose Hill. Jack's touched loser "Diz" Neitzel for a pair of runs in the first on single by Dick Mowry and Hank Peerenboom and a double by Gene Peerenboom.

Carl Bowers slapped a solo homer in the third and Jack's tallied twice in the sixth on a single by Gary Weigman, triple by Coenen and single by Jim Steger.

Oregon tallied a run in the fourth on a single by Terry Young, sacrifice and single by Hal Malnory. The other run came in the fifth on a single by Larry Rakow, walk and hit by Ray Neveau.

Dart crashed a 3-run homer in the seventh to force the consolation game into extra innings. Dart brought home the winning run in the 11th after Fred Steger singled and an error. Steger went 4-for-6 in the game.

Coenen was named the most valuable pitcher and Fred Steger the most valuable player.

into the dugout allowing Bart Johnson to score from second.

Danville's only threat off McCauley came in the second when Charlie Moore socked a one-out triple. McCauley whiffed Price Thomas and retired Rick Oliver on a fly. The Warriors never got a man past second after that.

Fred Norton extended his batting streak to 12 games with a hit. Bart Johnson's single extended his hitting streak to eight games.

McCauley overpowered the Danville hitters with his fast ball and mixed in a good curve.

7 New Records Set in Archery Flight Shooting

LITTLE CHUTE — Seven new records were established as the Wisconsin Archers Association flight shoot was held Sunday at the Urban Coenen farm, north of Kuakuana.

Four members of the Wildenberg family of Little Chute had a hand in setting six of the seven new marks.

In the men's amateur division, 50-pound pull class, Fred Lederer of Milwaukee set a new record by shooting an arrow 621 yards, 12 feet 6 inches. Tope Takes Trans-Am

McRae Captures Road America Event

ELKHART LAKE, Wis. (AP) — Graham McRae, the New Zealander who had built up a comfortable lead in the L&M Continental Series for formula 5000 cars, added to it Sunday with a victory in the Road America continental event.

McRae, driving his McRae-Chevrolet, won the first heat by 12 seconds over Sam Posey's Surtees-Chevrolet, then settled for second place in the second 96-mile heat, finishing 15 seconds behind Skip Barber's March-Ford.

"I was going to pass him later in the race," McRae said after the second-phase finish, "but I figured I had one win and he can't beat me out overall. Why take a chance. I like the money."

In Saturday's feature race, Warren Tope, driving a Ford Mustang, captured the 200-mile Sports Car Club of America Trans-American series race after favorite George Follmer blew an engine.

A fifth place finish in the final heat of Sunday's continental event gave Posey second overall and also moved him into second place in the series.

McRae won $22,100 for first in the two-race series, and Posey $12,950.

David Hobbs of England, series champion the last two years and second in the series before this race, failed to collect a point after the engine failed in his Lola-Chevy.

Barber won the pole position and the second heat, but missed the overall title when he stopped because an oil line leading to the pressure gauge became disconnected while he was leading the first heat.

Third, in a McLaren-Chevy, was Derek Bell, fourth was Robert Muir in a Lola-Chevy, and fifth was Brett Lunger in a LOLA Pontiac.

In a companion race Sunday for sedans running the 2-5 series, John Morton of Torrence, Calif., beat Mike Downs in a 1 hour, 15 minute race. Both drove Datsuns.

Follmer, who took over as factory driver for American Motors when Mark Donahue was injured, had already clinched the drivers' and manufacturers' title before Saturday's 200-miler along Road America's hilly, winding, four-mile course.

His car blew its engine after a strong start, and Tope held on despite fading brakes for a five-second victory over Milt Minter's Pontiac Firebird.

Tope, of Bloomfield Hills, Mich., averaged 89.824 miles per hour and took first prize money of $5,450.

Minter was second; Bill Collins third in a Javelin; Gene Harrington fourth in a Chevrolet Camaro, and Dick Brown fifth in another Camaro.

Roger Paul Cops Feature At Shawano

SHAWANO—Roger Paul, New London, drove his Chevelle to his first feature win of the season Saturday at Shawano County Fairgrounds.

Dan Welyker, Belgium, was second and Jerry Muenster, Green Bay, third.

Jerry Smith, Medina, was black-flagged early in the race because the hood of his car wasn't latched down.

M.J. McBride, Shawano, was the fastest qualifier with a :26.053 time but had overheating problems in the race.

Jerry Schultz, Underhill, won the semi-feature after he and Berlin's Willy Schoppenhorst bumped in the No. 4 turn. Schoppenhorst spun out and had to drop out of the race.

Heat winners were Corney Schmidt, Pella; John Diemel, Navarino; LeRoy Raddant,

Training Camps Step Up

Bengals Have the Horses

The tempo began stepping up over the weekend around the training camps of the National Football League; and from the lair of the Cincinnati Bengals. Coach Paul Brown said 1972 could be a championship year for his team.

"It doesn't mean I'm assuring the public now that we'll be in the Super Bowl," said Brown. "But it does mean we have the horses and the depth to compete for it."

He recalled his pledge when the franchise was granted to Cincinnati in 1968 "that in five years we could compete for any championship."

Returning veterans joined rookies at the Bengal camp in Wilmington, Ohio on Sunday.

Over Achieved

Discussing the Bengals' division title in 1970 in the old American Football League, Brown said his team probably "overachieved, but it was an important step. It meant we were doing something right."

Brown, in talking to his players, repeated his long-standing edict that politics, religion and social issues have "no place in our football." But he said he was making one addition: "This is an election year. Cast your votes as citizens, for what you believe in. But don't bring your political beliefs into our football."

There were two weekend trades. The New York Jets sent tight end Pete Lammons to the Philadelphia Eagles for future considerations. In the other deal, defensive end Ike Lassiter was obtained by the Washington Redskins from the New England Patriots for an undisclosed draft pick.

Cowboy Injured

Cornerback Mark Washington sprained a knee in the Dallas Cowboy camp and a team spokesman said he'd be out for at least two days.

The Patriots went through stiff physical evaluation tests in hot, humid weather at Amherst, Mass., and several players failed to complete the mile run in the required eight minutes. Veteran wide receiver Reggie Rupcsker collapsed from heat exhaustion while running the mile but was revived and appeared to be in good shape later.

Philadelphia Eagle rookies, with No. 1 draft pick John Reaves passing 28-yards for one touchdown, beat the Washington rookies two touchdowns to one in a controlled scrimmage.

And Los Angeles Rams' newcomers on offense scrimmaged against a unit of rookie defenders from the San Diego Chargers. For the Rams, John Walton, on the taxi squad the past two years, threw two touchdown passes.

Area Counties Share Funds For Highways

State Department Of Transportation Mails $4.7 Million

The state department of transportation has mailed checks to every Wisconsin county totaling $4,774,325 from the state highway user fund.

The payment is a statutory distribution of $35 million, which is allotted on the basis of numbers of motor vehicle registrations and total highway miles exclusive of city and village roads and streets. In addition, a payment of $65 is made for every mile of county trunk highways.

Area counties received the following payments: Calumet, $30,578; Outagamie, $89,897; Waupaca, $67,545; and Winnebago, $79,546.

The basic highway aids for county trunks are the second of three major allotments made to counties each year.

A first installment of supplemental aids was distributed in April and a final installment will be made in September. These funds do not include federal money which may be allocated on certain construction projects.

With the county aids and payments made to communities under various highway revenue sharing programs, the state eventually will return close to half total net highway user revenues to local units of government.

year for the first time in U.S. According to the bureau, of The bureau figured that me-history, but inflation eliminated the 53.3 million families in the dian family income, or the middle point of family income, was $10,285 last year. The figure is not an average.

A year earlier median family income was $9,870. Purchasing power was unchanged because of rising prices, the bureau said.

The bureau said there were 9.9 million families or 18.5 per cent with incomes between $7,000 and $10,000, 6 million families or 11.2 per cent between $5,000 and $7,000, and 9.8 million families or 18.5 per cent with incomes below $5,000.

The midpoint of annual income for black families was $6,440. This was about 60 per cent of the middle income for white families, or $10,670.

Midpoint

The midpoint of family income where the head of the family worked fulltime the year round was $12,440.

In a report last week, the bureau said the number of Americans living below the poverty level was essentially unchanged in 1971 over 1970.

That report showed that the official poverty level rose from $3,968 in 1970 to $4,137 because of inflation.

The number of people living below the poverty level last year was 25.6 million compared with 25.4 million a year earlier. Because of sampling errors, the bureau said, there is no statistical difference between the two numbers.

Riot in Maryland

Prison Quiet

JESSUP, Md. (AP) — The Maryland House of Corrections remained quiet early today as officials tried to assess the situation at the maximum security prison following a 12-hour riot that left four guards and four inmates injured.

"It was the worst damage I've seen," said Gov. Marvin Mandel, whose agreement to meet with an inmate delegation finally prompted the last few hundred of the rebelling prisoners to return to their cells about 5 a.m. Sunday.

Many fires had erupted sporadically almost from the onset of the inmates' rampage. Officials said the trouble began Saturday evening with an escape attempt in the outdoor recreation yard.

Initial estimates of damage ran as high as $1.5 million.

Mandel, after meeting with the inmate delegation, said he would look into some of the grievances. He said there were no demands voiced by the inmates.

Specifically mentioned, the governor said, were the areas of medical service and the classification board, which assigns inmates to the various institutions within the state corrections system.

As of early today there were still no communications within the 1,500-inmate, predominantly black institution.

However, State Police were maintaining a command and communications post on the grounds for the 25 or so troopers on hand as a precautionary measure, a spokesman stated.

The entire western portion, the focal point of the fires and destruction, was soaked with water late Sunday and troopers said the air was still acrid from burned-out mattresses, benches and furniture.

Several officials blamed a lack of guards and other alleged inadequacies for the uprising which prison officials admitted ran "out of control."

Inmates of the Maryland House of Corrections, many of them wearing towels across their faces to avoid identification, mill around the prison's recreation yard Sunday during a disturbance that left two guards and four inmates injured. The prison was quiet this morning. (AP Wirephoto)

Planning for Campaign

McGovern Rests, Starts to Build Staff

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. George McGovern, the Democratic presidential nominee, flew today to the Black Hills of his native South Dakota for two weeks of rest, staff reshuffling and strategic planning for the fall campaign against President Nixon.

He left National Airport at 10:35 a.m. EDT on a chartered plane for Rapid City.

Small Staff

The South Dakota senator will be accompanied by a small personal staff. Starting later this week, his top political advisers, financial planners, and his running mate, Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, of Missouri, will come to the lodge for conferences.

The shape of McGovern's campaign organization is largely settled.

Gary Hart, the 35-year-old Denver lawyer who managed the senator's drive for the Democratic presidential nomination, will head the organization, with George Cunningham, a McGovern aide for 17 years and now his administrative assistant, as deputy.

The three regional coordinators are expected to be Eli Segal, who managed McGovern's California campaign; Harold Himmelman, number two man in the Ohio primary; and Rick Stearns, who supervised the senator's efforts in non-primary states. Their exact roles are scheduled to be worked out later in the week when Hart and Frank Mankiewicz, the senator's national political director until now, return from a brief Virgin Islands vacation.

Traveling Advisers

Mankiewicz and Frederick G. Dutton, who joined McGovern in California and has been at his side since, are scheduled to be the top traveling advisers.

Dutton and Richard Dougherty, a former political writer and novelist who will be campaign press secretary, were the only top-level aides to accompany McGovern on the flight to Rapid City.

Dougherty, who has handled speech writing and other chores for McGovern until now, will replace Kirby Jones who is scheduled for a position in McGovern's campaign headquarters in Washington.

One major decision that will have to be made before the end of the South Dakota stay, expected to be July 29, is how to allocate the time of both McGoverwn and Eagleton in the five weeks between then and the traditional Labor Day start of the formal presidential campaign.

While Nixon was at the Western White House in California, Chairman Clark MacGregor of the Committee for the Re-election of the President and Sen. Robert Dole, GOP national chairman, took over the politicking.

Eagleton said Sunday that a McGovern administration would probably grant draft resisters amnesty on a case-by-case basis, and he added on taxes:

"I think at some time in the future, perhaps in the year '74 or so . . . if we are going to accomplish some of the things we must do domestically . . . we must have the added revenue to do it."

Income Redistribution

Eagleton, on the CBS television-radio program "Face The Nation," also said McGovern's proposal for a $1,000-per-person income redistribution plan is undergoing a complete overhaul.

Speaking up for the Republicans, MacGregor and Dole said their party is ready for any attempt to make the Vietnam war a campaign issue.

Both men said it is too early to tell how much of an issue the war will be. But Dole added: "If they want to make it an issue, we're ready."

MacGregor appeared Sunday on ABC's "Issues and Answers" and Dole on NBC's "Meet the Press."

MacGregor, asked how the President would counter McGovern's antiwar stand, said, "A lot depends on how much Sen. McGovern stands in the way of progress at Paris." He referred to the Paris peace talks.

The chairman of the Democratic National Committee, Jean Miles Westwood, said at her home in Salt Lake City that party "reforms so far have been good, but they have not had enough public input and study."

Discord Follows Boston Festival

BOSTON (AP) — Police blame "the heat and two much beer drinking" for a rock-throwing rampage involving an estimated 2,000 which broke out following a Spanish-speaking festival here.

Nineteen persons were hospitalized and at least 35 persons were arrested in the Sunday night disturbance, police said. Of those hospitalized, six were policemen, including one who suffered a broken arm when struck by a tire iron.

Two of those hospitalized, neither of them policemen, were in critical condition.

One fireman and four policemen were injured but were not hospitalized. Police said numerous other persons suffered minor injuries, mainly from thrown rocks.

Government Declines Comment

U.S. Surveillance of World Reported

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Government officials have declined comment on a Ramparts magazine article which says U.S. intelligence can pinpoint the location of Soviet military and space craft and monitor every transatlantic telephone call.

The Western White House in San Clemente, Calif., the Department of Defense in Washington and a spokesman for the National Security Agency at Ft. Meade, Md., would not respond to the article entitled "U.S. Espionage: A Memoir." The article, appearing in the August issue of the magazine which went on newsstands today, is based on an interview with a man purported to be a former NSA analyst.

The ex-analyst, identified by a spokesman for the magazine as "Winslow Peck."—a pseudonym—is quoted as saying flights over Russian territory are made routinely by jets "which climb high enough to reach the edge of outer space."

Flights Denied

Knowledgeable sources other than the Defense Department denied that U.S. reconnaissance planes fly over Russia.

Contacted in San Diego at a telephone number supplied by Ramparts, a man who said he was "Peck," 26, refused to give his real name but said he was employed by NSA for 3½ years after enlisting in the Air Force in 1966.

The Ramparts article said he quit because he was disillusioned in Vietnam.

He said he quit because he the United States monitors every government in the world, including its allies and listens in on all transatlantic telephone calls to or from this country, even those by private citizens.

"As far as the Soviet Union is concerned we know the whereabouts at any given time of all its aircraft, exclusive of small private planes, and its naval forces, including its missile-firing submarines," the former analyst said in the article.

Asked whether the United States makes surveillance flights over Russia, "Peck" replied:

Routine Trips

Routine, as a matter of fact, over the Black Sea, down to the Baltic. Our Strategic Air Force flies the planes, and we support them. By that I mean that we watch them penetrate the Soviet air space, then analyze the Soviet reaction—how everything from their air defense and tactical air force to the KGB reacts."

He said he also had indications that U.S. reconnaissance planes had flown over China.

He said he briefed then-Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey on the Soviet tactical air force in 1967 and once listened to a tearful conversation between Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin and a Russian cosmonaut about to be killed during re-entry.

Israeli Court Convicts Japanese Radical of Lod Airport Massacre

By MARCUS ELIASON

LOD, Israel (AP) — An Israeli army court convicted Japanese radical Kozo Okamota today for his part in the Lod Airport massacre but postponed sentencing him until later today. He is expected to get life imprisonment.

The 24-year-old defendant stood and listened impassively as the verdict of the three lieutenant colonels was read. After it was translated into Japanese, he sighed deeply.

He was found guilty of all four charges filed against him. Death is the maximum penalty for three of them, but Israel has executed but one person, Nazi war criminal Adolf Eichmann. And the prosecution asked for a life sentence.

Okamoto had pleaded guilty in court and before the trial signed a confession admitting that he and two other Japanese attacked the crowd in Israel's international airport on May 30 with machine guns and grenades, acting on behalf of a Palestine guerrilla organization. Twenty-eight persons were killed, including the other two terrorists, and 70 were wounded.

Continue Attacks

In a statement Thursday at the end of the four-day trial, Okamoto said his organization in Japan, the United Red Army, would continue its attacks in the cause of world revolution.

The president of the court, Lt. Col. Abraham Frisch, said Okamoto's declaration was "a mixture of unripened ideas concerning his and his friends' frustration with the modern world, its social structure and regimes."

He said Okamoto had taken on the massacre "willingly and in full consciousness."

In the early stages of his interrogation before the trial, Okamoto asked repeatedly to be executed or to be allowed to commit suicide. The military commander for the Lod area, Maj. Gen. Rehavam Zeevi, signed an agreement with Okamoto promising him the general's pistol to kill himself with if he made a full confession. Zeevi testified that he later told the young Japanese the agreement was dead because Okamoto had not provided "truthful information."

Okamoto's attorney appointed by the court, Max Kritzman, repeatedly asked the court for a sanity hearing for his client, but Okamoto said he would not agree to one, and the court rejected Kritzman's requests.

Pope Enjoying Summer Estate

CASTEL GANDOLFO, Italy (AP) — Pope Paul VI says the current rest he is taking at his summer estate in the Alban Hills will be good for him physically and spiritually.

The pontiff's praise for the "silence of the country" and the rest it would give him was contained in his Sunday noon blessing before a crowd of 3,000, the first of the year from his summer estate.

Vatican observers took the pontiff's reference to spiritual rest as reflecting his deep concern about criticism from within his own church, particularly on such matters as birth control, celibacy and papal infallibility.

Families Leave Belfast Battle Area

BELFAST (AP) — Nearly 4,000 Roman Catholic women and children camped overnight in a football field after leaving their homes in a Belfast battle zone to protest the British Army's occupation of the area.

Five more deaths Sunday pushed Northern Ireland's toll this year to 236, killed already the worst since 252 died in sectarian battling in 1922. A land mine killed two British soldiers at Crossmaglen, a policeman and a civilian were shot in Belfast, and an 18-year-old youth died in a riot in Strabane.

The Catholic women and children followed their priest, Father Jack Fitzsimmons, out of the Lenadoon Avenue area Sunday claiming the army's show of force was "endangering their lives."

The troops and gunmen of the Irish Republican Army have been squared off in the area since last Thursday. Despite army fears that the exodus was planned to clear the ground for a massive IRA attack, there were only sporadic incidents.

Father Fitzsimmons and other community leaders negotiated until after midnight with British officials in an attempt to get the troops pulled out. Meanwhile, the women and children bedded down in the open or in tents at nearby Casement Park.

The Lenadoon area is a modern housing development where the IRA's 13-day cease-fire broke down last week in a row over housing allocations.

Early today, troops claimed they had shot two gunmen in a squad of four that traded shots for two hours with the army across the Andersonstown area, of which Lenadoon Avenue is part.

rime Rate verestimated s Indicator

Banker Feels Level Of Interest Is Just Part of Picture

By LINDA RUBEY
AP Business Writer

EW YORK (AP) — The ne lending rate, now going is generally overblown as economic indicator or in- nce, bank economists say.

he prime rate, they say, lly only confirms the trend other rates involving much re money. And the current rease, they add, isn't likely affect the economy or con- ners' pocketbooks.

The drama tied to changes the prime rate has been real- overplayed," says Leif H. Ol- , senior vice president and nomist at New York's First tional City Bank, whose own me rate is now one of the hest in the country. "The me rate by itself is just not t significant"

'he prime rate is the interest nks charge on loans to their st corporate customers and it always lower than the rate longer and smaller con- ner loans.

The prime rate grew to be sely watched in years past cause it was changed fairly requently and the changes re direct decisions of bank- s who presumably had tested economic winds. But anges have come more quently in recent years and me banks have even adopted loating" rates which can ad- st themselves automatically ery week through formulas gged to other interest rates.

Floating Rate

First National City was the st to adopt a floating rate st year and its rate has sig- led every more widespread ange in the rate since then. led banks in boosting the te to 5¼ per cent last month d while other banks were ll catching up, moved on to s per cent.

Pittsburgh's Mellon National ank & Trust Co., which cently adopted a floating rate d moved with Citibank to 5⅜ r cent, boosted its rate to 5½ r cent starting this week. ankers say other bigger banks ll probably match that level fore long.

The rate had bottomed out at any banks earlier this year at ¼ per cent after generally de- ining from a record peak of ½ per cent in mid-1969.

"It is normal for the prime te to rise in a healthy econo- y when credit demand from isiness, consumers and the vernment is strong, and at's what we're seeing now," ys Olsen "But what is really ore significant is the rise in tes in the open market or ort term rates because a uch larger amount of credit affected there."

Business Borrowers

"The prime rate is of course key rate to business borrow- rs, who have to consider the ost of borrowing money into eir financial planning," says n economist at another major ew York bank. "But it is real- only a reflection of what has appened in the economy. It oesn't lead other rates up or own, but merely confirms a ate trend"

The short term rates involve uch instruments as com- nercial paper. Treasury bills nd federal funds. Commercial aper is an IOU issued by a orporate borrower and sold to nother corporation foundation r banks. Treasury bills are ecurities issued by the Treas- ury and federal funds involve orrowing of funds among anks

The prime rate changes to re- nain competitive with these ther money market charges. o keep potential customers lealing with banks for in- estments and loans.

One bank economist says the prime provides a pretty good indicator of economic activity if other short term rates are themselves mirroring the econ- omy.

Domestic Economy

"But sometimes, short term rates are affected by things that don't relate to the domes- tic economy, as they were last year when uncertainty about the international monetary situ- ation prior to the adminis- tration's Aug. 15 announcement of its new economic policy caused these rates to rise," he says

Economists add that slowly expanding credit demand in a more rapidly expanding econo- my can also keep the prime from being an accurate in- dicator. Corporations do not al- ways need to borrow heavily from banks in an expanding economy if they've already raised money other ways, as through stock and bond offer- ings

BY BILL LEACH
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

They came by car and on foot, on bike, trike and piggyback to hear the word and to get religion.

They sprawled on blankets and sat on the damply cool, clover-fragrant grass. Bright park benches, folding chairs and picnic tables formed an ever-widening crescent around the solitary building in Appleton's City Park Sunday afternoon as Fox Cities residents clustered around to "Pass It On."

The rally for Christ, sponsored by the Luther League of First English Lutheran Church, created a montage of Sunday-go-to-meetin' clothes, religious garb, cut off faded blue jeans, granny dresses, long hair, sandals, bare feet and clean shaven and hirsute countenances

It was a mini-Explo 72, an outgrowth of the recently completed youth evangelism crusade in Dallas, Tex., which drew approximately 80,000 young people to the Cotton Bowl.

There were about 300 people in City Park Sunday — some had even been to Explo. But the main difference between the Dallas get-together and the Appleton rally, besides size, was in the group make up.

A good share of "over-30s" had come here — perhaps out of curiosity or skepticism or just because it was too nice an afternoon to stay at home in front of the television set or in the back yard drinking

Regardless, they were there. Everybody together under the great vaulted canopy created by spreading oaks, elms, basswoods and maples.

Amid Flowers

They sat there amid the City Park flower beds, bright with red, white, blue and yellow blossoms, and shared the joy of song and holy word that echoed from the stage.

"Gimme a J," the youthful cheerleader in darkly patterned bell bottoms and blue T-shirt screamed from the podium. He got one right back. By the time the crowd of about 300 had gone through the remaining E-S-U-S and shouted, "Jesus," "Jesus," "Jesus," to his, "What's it spell?" the audience was warmed up.

Epithets of "Praise the Lord" and "Praise Jesus" echoed softly in the semi-circle around the stage with its backdrop of "Praise the Lord" in big orange and white letters on a red, white and blue ground.

They swayed to the hand-clapping, finger-snapping electric guitar and drum-beat music of the Leaguers and a group called JOY (Jesus first, Others second, Yourself last)

Electric Words

"If I had a hammer, I'd hammer in the morning. . . ."

"Amazing grace, how sweet the sound . . ."

"How many roads must a man walk down, before they call him a man?"

One Way, His Way, is the route to salvation. That was the word, in song and speech, Sunday afternoon in Appleton's City Park as approximately 300 Fox Cities residents gathered together to praise the Lord in a rally for Christ. Hands clasped with index fingers raised—the "one way" symbol—flashed around the park a few times during the get-together. 'Crime Index' Rises In Outagamie, State

The crime index, or number of crimes per 100,000 people, is on the rise in Appleton, Outagamie County and the state, according to a report released this week by the state Justice Department.

Figures released in the bulletin "Crime and Arrests — 1971," showed that from 1970 to 1971, Appleton's crime index rose from 1,134 to 1,598.5, which had a major impact on raising Outagamie County's index from 1,001.7 to 1,321.4.

The new index for cities in Appleton's bracket (50,000 to 250,000 population) stood at 2,357.9, while the index for the entire state was 1,747.9.

Burglaries, Thefts Up

Specifically, burglaries and thefts over $50 showed the greatest increases in the city and county.

Burglaries increased in Appleton from 393 in 1970 to 476 in 1971 and in the county from 610 to 792, while the thefts went from 259 to 358 in the city and from 453 to 643 in the county. In all cases, the county figures included the Appleton statistics.

Appleton Police Chief Earl O. Wolff said the rise in burglaries was due primarily to a change in definition as to what constitutes a burglary.

"Previously, persons entering an unlocked garage, shed barn, store house, etc. and taking a piece of property was classified as a theft rather than a burglary. At an orientation meeting with the new Crime Information Bureau to whom we now report our crime statistics, we were advised all such entries are to be classified as burglaries," Wolff said.

More Effective Reporting

Two reasons were cited for the rise in thefts. First, Wolff explained, more persons are reporting thefts in order to collect restitution from insurance companies, and second thefts such as bicycles that may not have been previously reported, are now being reported simply because the bikes stolen are much more expensive than previous models.

Sheriff Calvin Spice said the higher crime index for the county was due in part to Appleton's gains, and also because of the "much more effective crime reporting procedures as set down by the Crime Information Bureau."

But Spice agreed there has been a definite increase in burglaries and thefts, which can be best offset when the local law enforcement agencies increase their specialization in handling crime.

Solutions Lagging

Dist. Atty. James R. Long felt the rising crime index was of less importance than the rate of crime solutions, which he said is lagging here.

Long said the city council should give "serious reconsideration" to instituting a special felony squad in Appleton, which he proposed last year, as there are presently too few investigators working on too many varieties of crimes.

"Crime is increasing and will continue to increase as long as it is profitable," said Long. "And I think it is very profitable here."

Resident Dead, 2 Firemen Hurt In Apartment Fire

A 63-year-old Appleton man was killed and two fire fighters injured in a late Sunday evening blaze that gutted a six-unit apartment building at 705 N. Appleton St.

It was the city's first building fire death in several years. A six-year-old girl died of burns last year when her clothing caught fire while she was playing with matches in her basement.

Dead apparently of carbon monoxide poisoning in the apartment blaze was Clarence L. Herzfeldt, a retired Kimberly-Clark Corp. boiler room employe and watchman. He was found fully dressed on the floor of his second floor room.

Fire fighter William Schultz was taken to St. Elizabeth Hospital after suffering from heat exhaustion. He was listed in good condition this morning after being removed from the intensive care unit.

A second fire fighter, Thomas Buss, sprained a toe when he tripped over an object while searching the second floor for occupants. He said he had just helped remove two persons from the building.

Initial reports from Outagamie County Coroner Bernard Kemps and the fire department indicated that there were only two persons in the building when the blaze broke out. The second, Albert Krueger, 64, who lived in a room adjacent to the victim's, escaped injury.

According to Kemps, Krueger was awakened by nearby church bells about 10:15 p.m., after having fallen asleep during the evening radio news. Krueger then smelled smoke, grabbed his billfold and pushed out the window screen, crawling out on the porch roof, Kemps said.

"I hollered out to the neighbors to call the fire department," Krueger's statement to Kemps indicated.

Krueger stated further that: "While I was up there, I thought I heard Clarence groan. Black smoke was coming from his window." Kemps said that Krueger also said that Herzfeldt was in his room when Krueger came home about 8 p.m.

There apparently were six persons living in the two-story unit which included three rooms and three apartments.

Fire department officials said that the fire marshal had been called in to assist in further investigation of the cause. However, they reported that the most extensive damage occurred in the downstairs hallway near the bathroom.

Russell Luebben, deputy fire chief, said the downstairs front hallway was gutted, and there was a "lot of heat damage upstairs." He said the entire front entrance was in flames when fire fighters arrived.

Fire fighters, who apparently were called by a neighbor, had the fire out in minutes after they arrived but were hampered by heat and smoke in their search for victims. The department received the call at 10:58 p.m. and sent four major units, including a rescue squad. The last unit returned at 1:01 a.m. today.

Probably the first person on the scene was Charles McKendry Jr., 20, a neighbor, who had just returned home from work. He said he had been in his home "not more than two or three minutes" when he heard Krueger calling for help.

"I stepped outside and saw people standing outside," he said. "And then I saw Mr. Krueger on his roof."

Delegates Have Wrinkled Memories

Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Wrinkled campaign banners and once-jaunty straw hats, footprints of the Democratic convention, clutter Miami. Mimeographed reports, subjects of bitter fights, lay discarded. Memories survive. Memories of 50-cent coffee and three-hour waits for buses. Exhausted Fox Valley delegates see a kaleidoscopic picture of Miami, of exhilarating victory and violent dispute.

It was a time for high goals, for the tempering of a political machine and for frustration at hard chairs, lost sleep and snafu'd air conditioning.

It was a rematch of 1968 for Sandy Utecht, Oshkosh, who had worked in Chicago as a backer of Sen. Eugene McCarthy. The difference was that in 1968 "we knew we were lost," and this year the McGovern organization controlled the votes on crucial issues.

"God! Was I proud to be a Democrat," she says. In 1968 the issues were lost. This year, in a different city, in a convention unmarred by violence, Sandy's candidate won.

Reforms changed the party and brought new faces, different kinds of people to the convention. "People who were on the streets being beaten four years ago were plugged into the machinery," she says.

Security was tight. Everyone entering Convention Hall was checked and Secret Service agents and police were scattered throughout the hall. But the feeling in the hall was different. "In comparison to 1968. . .the security was less fascist, the people were less uptight."

If the convention was a happy one it wasn't because of outside accommodations. "The food stank and the prices were off the wall," she says.

Shuttle Bus

Delegates paid $8 apiece for a shuttle bus throughout the city to find the busses were often late, overcrowded, or simply nonexistant. Sandy paid $1.17 for a coffee and orange juice and a duplicate order to go.

In her hotel the "shower dripped at you but couldn't get itself together enough to run in a stream."

James Mulligan, Green Bay, got his introduction to Miami Beach while checking in to the hotel. "When I stepped into the room the bellman pulled the cord to pull the drapes and the whole thing fell down. . .It was never repaired."

Poor Service

Service in the crowded city was poor and prices inflated. Tapwater in Mulligan's room was "the color of orange juice." But the important place was Convention Hall and there the setup worked — at least for Mulligan as a McGovern delegate.

Every ten McGovern delegates shared a phone. Banks of parlimentarians staffed strategy trailers outside the convention center ready to do battle in a complex legalistic joust that never was started. "Within a matter of a couple of minutes this information on strategy could be relayed so every delegate on the floor knew what it was," he says.

A new attitude was stirring in the convention and aldline party members were disturbed. The "pot-bellied, bejowled, cigar smoking old men" just weren't there.

The mood was serious and when McGovern captured the California delegation Monday there was little doubt that he would win the nomination. "The whole ABM-Anybody But McGovern- movement collapsed," says Mulligan.

Neopit Indian

The convention was chance for Mrs. Shirley Daly, Neopit, a Menominee, to speak up for Indians on a minority platform plank.

"You felt like you were in front of the whole world," she says. Her speech, which advocated giving Indians first priority for allocation of federal surplus lands, came about 4:30 a.m. during Tuesday's marathon session. Brushing elbows with Lawrence O'Brien, national party chairman, actresses, and party leaders she stepped forward to appeal for support for the minority plank later adopted by the convention.

The marathon was exhausting for Mrs. Diane Krived, Green Bay. "I wasn't sure when I should be eating, when I should be sleeping."

Other Delegates

Members of other delegations wandered through the hall and delegates crowded together had a fight to find even a comfortable seat. "Space was at a premium."

She remembers incredible floor fights which paralyzed action of some delegations. Georgia Gov. Jimmie Carter was seated behind Diane and the split delegation was a

Dropouts Get Aid In Securing Jobs

The State Employment Service, 1313 Midway Road in Menasha, is expanding its program to find jobs for high school dropouts. Heading the project is Susan Otten, a recent UW-Oshkosh graduate in social work.

In five weeks at the center, Miss Otten has interviewed about 50 clients. She now is attempting to reach more sources in the community to help her contact dropouts, and offers to talk to either individuals or groups interested in helping the project.

The service she provides consist of primarily of helping dropouts find jobs, although they are also urged to re-enter high school. Clients either apply to the Job Corps for further training or are aided in finding jobs immediately, depending on their personal preference.

Miss Otten has attempted to contact dropouts through schools and through other social and state services, but has had difficulty in finding names of those who left school several years ago.

Because processing of applications for the Job Corps takes about two months, none of those who have applied through the Manasha office have been placed yet, but Miss Otten feels they will be in the near future.

The Job Corps is a federal program which began in 1964 to provide vocational training on a large scale for jobless men and women. Corps members live at training centers for a period ranging from three months to two years, depending on their abilities and needs.

At the Centers, corps members are provided with room, board, clothing, and medical care. While in the corps, they receive at $30 allowance per month, and at completion of their training they receive and additional $50 for each month in the corps.

Judges Rap Juvenile Court Prison Task Force Report

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — A poll at the National Council of Juvenile Court Judges convention showed members disagreeing 3-1 with the Wisconsin task force proposal that prisons be replaced by community-based treatment centers.

The poll, taken by Lt. Gov. Martin J. Schreiber at the meeting in Milwaukee this week found 22.8 per cent of the judges agreeing with the Task Force on Offender Rehabilitation view that prisons as they are known today have failed to do their job and should be replaced with a different system.

But 71.6 per cent of the 129 juvenile court judges attending a speech Schreiber gave Monday disagreed with the task force recommendation.

Criminal Sanctions

The juvenile judges took even a stronger stand opposing the removal of criminal sanctions against marijuana, a move recommended by both the Wisconsin task force and President Nixon's Commission on Marijuana and Drug Abuse.

The removal of such sanctions won the support of 16.2 per cent of the judges but the opposition of 75.1 per cent.

The greatest support of a task force recommendation came on the suggestion that probation and related instruments be used more frequently as an alternative to imprisonment.

Some Judges Neutral

That won the support of 73.1 per cent of the judges, while only 22.7 per cent disagreed.

On each question, some judges said they were neutral.

Schreiber said he circulated the questionnaire to sound out professional opinions on the proposals before they are submitted as legislation next year.

"Several of the findings of the task force are extremely controversial and unacceptable to many Wisconsin citizens," he said in releasing the results of the survey.

The lieutenant governor, who has not taken a stand on the recommendations, said Friday he thought the judges' "strong opinions" ought to be carefully considered.

Afternoon for Jesus

of Wisconsin-Madison, said the answer to racism, war and pollution could only come through Jesus Christ.

The change must start with Jesus coming into us, he said, and then working through us.

"Jesus Christ's the one to make the change possible," Jones told the crowd.

Just a Start

He said Explo was the "beginning of a massive spiritual change across the country. We'll saturate the entire State of Wisconsin with the Gospel by 1976 at this rate."

Cool, refreshing breezes wafted through the trees and caressed the people in the park each time the clouds moved in front of the sun.

"Shur'nuff, Jesus, send me where you want me," the people sang. "Jesus Christ, the sinners' friend has a place for even me."

And then Pastor Elden Davis of Calvary Baptist Church in Neenah took over the podium.

"Christ is the answer," he exclaimed. Do three things, he said, and salvation can be yours:

"Recognize that Jesus Christ died for you."

—"Recognize the fact that you are a sinner."

—"Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ and you will be saved."

Small Groups

"Jesus needs you to pass it on," the Neenah pastor said, and with that, the assembly broke up into small groups to talk about how Christians can put their faith into action, spread the word and recruit others for Christ.

Young people from the Fox Cities who had participated in Explo in Dallas conducted the action groups, illustrating their approaches with literature received at that big rally and urging their listeners to "receive Christ by personal invitation."

Tiny youngsters became restless as the afternoon wore on, whimpering more forcefully. Elderly folks began to shift uncomfortably in their lawn chairs. Enough sitting is enough sitting.

Slowly and in a manner undictated by any set pattern, the crowd started to disperse. Some held hands and others put arms around shoulders and nuzzled in a way that may have been influenced by what they had heard and seen that afternoon.

It was a lovely feeling. The atmosphere was relaxed and smooth. Not a ripple of harsh discontent

A few more songs — "Kum ba yah, my Lord, Kum ba yah," "Allelu! Allelu! Everybody sing Allelu!"

"I wish for you, my friend, this happiness that I've found: I want to pass it on."

It was obvious they pretty much had come to realize that "Jesus Christ is the ultimate solution," as a tieless Appleton Mayor James Sutherland had told the crowd earlier in the rally.

It was over and the park was quiet again.

McKendry Sr., 709 N. Appleton St., said he brought a ladder to the roof where Krueger was trapped."

"I got up there and then he (Krueger) said there was a man in the next room. I had my father hand me an ax, and I broke the window (of Herzfeldt's room).

"I tried to get in but the heat and smoke drove me back," he said. There was no possible way I could get in."

McKendry said his "only fear was getting Mr. Krueger, a big man, down without getting both of us knocked off." Fire fighters assisted in getting him down when they arrived.

Several neighbors had come over near the burning apartment building at that time, McKendry said.

The building is owned by Orville Myse, 1432 S. Memorial Drive. It reportedly had been rewired, at least partially, a short time ago.

Kemps said today that he had ordered further tests to determine the exact cause of the death of Herzfeldt. He said that the victim had first, second and third degree burns over 75 per cent of his body. He was dead on arrival at St. Elizabeth where he was taken by the fire department rescue squad.

Kemps said that the police department, fire department, coroner's office and the fire marshal would be involved in further investigation.

Riverside Learning Community

The School of Alternate Education

By Elizabeth Gall
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

"In a Democratic Society, public schools represent one of the biggest monopolies. Parents have little choice where to send their kids and who will teach them."

It's this philosophy, expounded by Joel Ungrodt, that is keeping the concept of an alternate education opportunity in the Fox Valley alive. In its organizational stages since May, the Riverside Learning Community has recently been incorporated and hopes to open its doors in mid-September. Ungrodt is one of its 16 member board of directors

Appleton Response

Considerable organization is needed in order for the "community" to begin operations in September. Number one on the list is obtaining a building. A number of churches have adjacent buildings which could serve the purpose and the possibility of using the old vocational education building in Appleton also is being looked into. One problem, according to Ungrodt, is finding a facility which meets the stringent codes the staff requires of a school building.

The board of directors is interested in locating the school in Appleton since it is the area from which the greatest response has come and it would provide the most resources for the Learning Community.

Response to the concept of the alternative education has been good with attendance of interested parents increasing at most meetings. Ungrodt said the school should have no trouble enrolling 50 or 60 students.

Staffing the school will be three or four full-time paid teachers. However, resources will apparently be the major tool of the Riverside Community. Ungrodt said they are seeking assistance from people in the Fox Valley proficient in some skill and willing to work with children. Responses already have come from many people who are willing to contribute their time. Besides students from Lawrence University, there are many retired people in the area who welcome the chance to become active.

'Refuse of Society'

As far as materials go, Ungrodt claims, "any school can operate on the refuse of society." All it takes is a little scrounging around. Recently the community received 30 boxes of books a local school was discarding from its library. A sewing machine and a variety of tools have also been promised.

The Riverside Community will not be associated with the public school system and will be self-supporting. Tuition will be the primary income. Ungrodt said a ball park figure is about $300-$400 per year. He hopes that as the program gains more support and financial stability, part or all of a child's tuition could be foregone so that enrollment won't consist only of children with wealthier parents.

The cross-section of interested persons represents a broad area of backgrounds. There are a number of people on the board of directors who are associated in one way or another with Lawrence University or Education in general. However, there also are housewives, students fresh out of high school and even an Internal Revenue employee.

All of them recognize the need for a school which offers a choice to both parents and students. Ungrodt believes the Riverside Learning Community will foster a respect for students and allow them the dignity of choich which is often ignored in the public system. He believes that children can't be "turned on" to education when teachers and administrators make learning an imposition.

The Riverside Community will offer a "fantastic number of alternatives" for study, Ungrodt said. While one student may attend the school on a very structured time schedule, others may not appear in the building for some time. Instead, they will be pursuing a project for which the walls of a school building are not a prerequisite.

"We're getting away from group paste things," Ungrodt said. Students will be allowed to make many of their own decisions about what they want to learn. The relationship between the student and teacher will be one of respect rather than overlord and subject. The primary aim of the teacher will be to convey to his pupil that he is worthwhile and education is meaningful.

Riverside Learning Community will be open to students of all ages above five. Conceivably, an adult could attend if he so wished. There will be no grade levels and no standard testing or grading system.

No rules and regulations regarding curriculum, scheduling or discipline have been established. Ungrodt said the whole program will be an evolving one. "We don't want to get locked into something that's not meaningful."

But after Monday the conclusion was sure, she says. Delegates were active and "fantastically enthused."

Humphrey Delegate

McGovern's nomination was disappointing to John Anderson, Stevens Point one of 13 from the state championing Hubert Humphrey. The nomination was a foregone conclusion, he says, after Monday's credentials fight. "We knew it was the end of the ball game."

But Anderson isn't displeased with Miami — even with the prices, as are other delegates — and he'll work for McGovern. "It's one thing to fight within your own family, but you don't leave home."

The McGovern delegates of the sixth and eigth districts have differing memories They're happy. As one says, "Honey, our machine makes the Kennedy machine look like pikers!"

Vice Presidential Candidates

In his choice of a running mate, Senator George McGovern continues to follow his "new politics" policy.

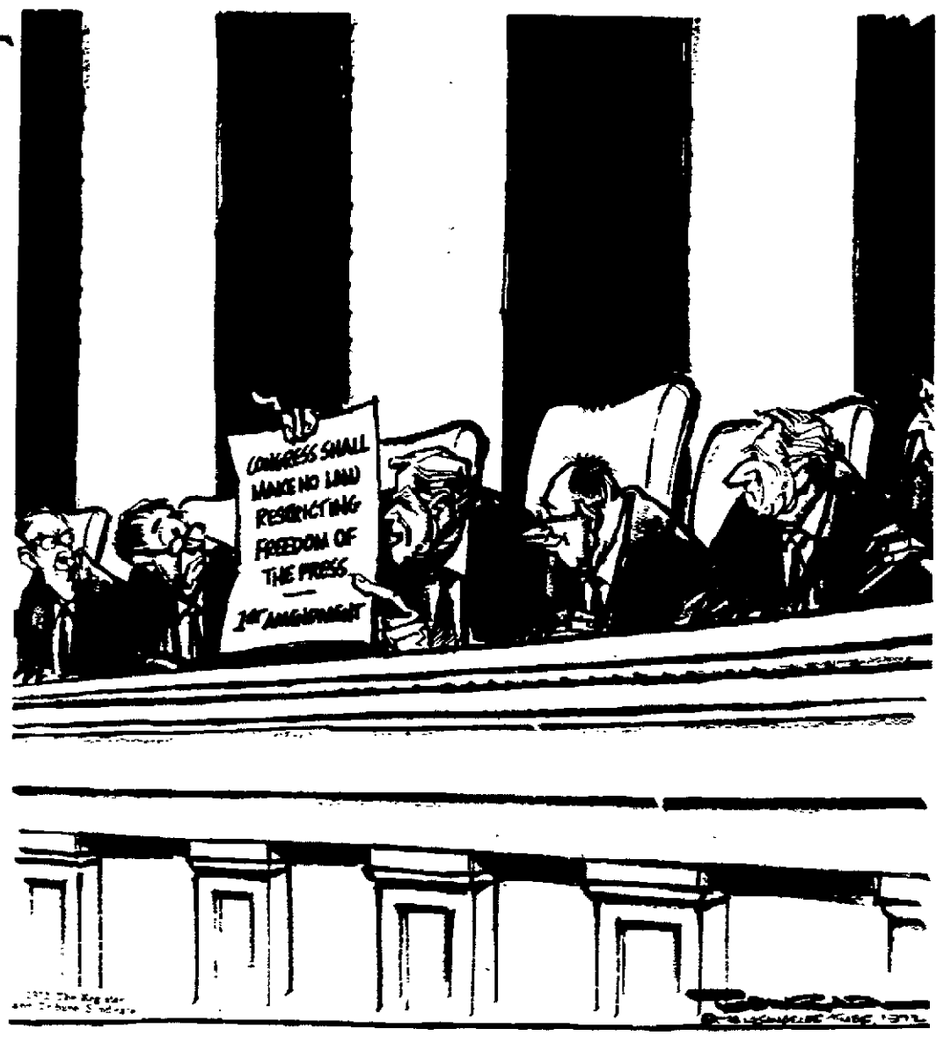
It is true that Senator Thomas Eagleton is of different religion from the presidential nominee of the Democratic party. He is a city boy, has approved ties with labor, and was a supporter of Senator Edward Muskie. But he was chosen quite obviously because of his philosophy of government, his attitude toward foreign and domestic affairs, his general so-called liberal point of view.

There is something uncomfortably undemocratic about the choosing of a vice presidential candidate. Except when Adlai Stevenson opened it up to the convention, the choice lately has been that of the presidential candidate and his advisors. In effect this means that a tiny fractional group of Americans has chosen a man who very possibly may be President of the United States some day. Lightning struck young Congressman Richard Nixon just 20 years ago and set his path for the White House.

Yet particularly in the convention that just closed shop in Miami, there could have been a frantic effort to "balance" the ticket if the choice had been completely open. The old qualifications of geography, religion and age would have been trundled out along with points of view on everything from amnesty to abortion to busing. A whole convention very possibly could have picked a man for the vice presidential slot who differed as much from Senator McGovern as Thomas Jefferson did from John Adams. The original system of electing the man with the second highest number of votes as vice president was scuttled because of that imcompatible situation.

It is apparent also that Senator McGovern is seeking out especially the young people who will vote the first time this year. This is a real unknown quantity. Whatever the age level of the new delegation to Miami, no one knows what percentage of those newly franchised will register and vote this year – and no one really knows for whom they might vote. In his choice of a young, articulate liberal who has had considerable contact with young people, Senator McGovern has made another pitch in their direction.

Will it work? After the protest votes that seemed to dominate the primary, it was worth the chance for Senator McGovern. The real answer will come in November.



"Notice, gentlemen, it specifically prohibits Congress... NOT the Supreme Court!"

Women's Lib Critical of TV

Advertisements, especially those on television, have been blamed partly for the increase of drug abuse in the nation. The ads don't of course advocate the illicit use of narcotics but they do tend to suggest that there must be a pill that will cure just about every ailment.

Now TV is being pilloried by Women's Lib – and pretty reasonably.

One article claims that TV advertising generally portrays women in only the role of a homemaker, the sweet, gentle soul who has trouble making good coffee and whose major and maybe only aim in life is to please her strong wonderful husband and make better lives for her children.

It is getting harder to find enthusiasm for the TV gals who get psyched up when the kitchen floor shines, husbands beam at hair with body, or the virginal looking lasses who apparently spend their entire noon hours shyly commenting about a new deodorant.

In spite of the usual man-talk sneering at women's lib, there now are women crashing the barriers in police forces, even the F.B.I., construction work, the race track and high school sports. But, reported Ellen Peck, author of The Baby Trap, at a recent population institute conference, those eleven of fourteen daytime soap operas highlight pregnancy. Now how is a housewife glued to her set all afternoon supposed to become dedicated to zero population control under those circumstances?

Images are pretty nebulous things. The way in which individuals and institutions want to appear sometimes seems to con them into believing that is the way they are. Public universities have frantically had a "what demonstrator?" look for the benefit of fund producing legislators. And readers of the People's Forum can easily find out how annoyed private college officials are to find out that someone suspects any coed of hanky panky. People do see themselves through other people's eyes, whether it is that of the neighborhood group or the television screen.

Advertisers have known this for probably centuries. They should be the first to discover it if the buying power of women is being slanted in the wrong direction.

Highway Department With a Heart

These are the days of thronged highway travel, the desired places to which it takes us, and also the frustrations, in the form of traffic problems, which attend it.

Highway construction and repair, with resultant slowdowns and detours, must rank high in that list of frustrations. Even the realization that such construction is a necessary price we have to pay if we want to retain our roads in good usable condition doesn't help too much when we're crawling around Chicago at 20 miles an hour. Or when our favorite highway to the cottage or campground suddenly confronts us with a barricade and the sign that bids us drive 10 or 20 miles around, because a bridge is being repaired.

There is one stretch of such road construction, out west, in the state of Oregon, however, which would probably trigger very few frustrations, if the motorists knew why completion of the job is being delayed.

That's the Central Oregon Highway where the Oregon Highway Commission has deliberately postponed paving in order to avoid a nest of two golden eagles. The eagles are nesting in a juniper tree in the rock quarry which is to be the source of material for the construction job.

Golden eagles are an endangered species, and since the young do not leave the nest until July, that's how long this particular road construction has been delayed.

Somehow, in this era of mechanization, computerization and dehumanization, it's a good feeling one gets from reading about the respect which the Oregon officials who control highway construction scheduling are showing for two golden eagles and their young.

Looking Backward

Who Owns Edgarton Property?

100 YEARS AGO
Quoted from the Appleton Crescent for July 27, 1872.

The City assumes the ownership of the Edgarton property. The Second Ward School District claims that it was purchased for school purposes, and that it belongs to the District.

We have given a slight examination of the subject and incline to the belief that when the City went back to the old-fogey school system the school property in the Ward was vested in the School District.

The Second Ward School Board should submit the matter to good legal authority. If they find on full investigation that we are correct, they should take immediate steps to enforce their rights.

It may and will be said that if our view is the correct one, the City is resppnsible to the Third Ward for the debt for building purposes which existed in that ward when the Union School System was adopted.

We never had any doubts, and we question whether the neglect of the School Board to enforce the re-payment to their district of that debt has out-lawed the claim.

These matters should be settled.

25 YEARS AGO
Monday, July 14, 1947.

Ralph Richardson won Clintonville's first soap box derby, attended by 2,500 persons the previous day. His prize was a bicycle and the right to compete in the state race in Milwaukee the coming Sunday. Other top winners were Joe Jersey, second; James Mech, third, and Tom Hunt, fourth.

James Theis received a cash prize for having the best looking car in the competition, and Larry Bricco won the "slow-poke" prize.

Other entries were Donald Miller, Lester Samz, Steve Bruley, Bob Hoffman, Jim Kaphingst, James Strong, Duane Olsen and Richard Schoenheide.

10 YEARS AGO
Monday, July 16, 1962.

Four young women introduced at North Shore Golf Club's 24th Assembly Ball the previous Saturday evening were the Misses Tina Anne Pertain, Barbara Lynn Buchanan, Jane Elizabeth Hyde and Mary Cameron Kellogg.

Winners of the mystery hole event at the Y Fashionette guest day at Reid Municipal Golf Course were players Mrs. David Hayden, Mrs. Everett Johnson and Mrs. Lawrence Van Zummeren.

Mrs. Joseph Keller was installed as president of the Hortonville Legion Auxiliary. Mrs. Wallace Barrington was seated as vice president; Mrs. George Drews, second vice president; Mrs. Irving Breitrick, secretary; Mrs. Anna Buchman, treasurer; Mrs. Robert Schneider, historian; Mrs. Eva McMurdo, chaplain, and Mrs. Robert Conn, first sergeant.

Back-Country Parks On Trial Programs

WASHINGTON (AP) – A trial program to protect some fragile back-country areas, by limiting each area's use to the number of persons it can accommodate without environmental damage, has been started in three national parks.

The three are Kings Canyon National Park in California, Rocky Mountain National Park in Colorado, and Great Smoky Mountains National Park in Tennessee and North Carolina.

The program applies only to the back-country of the three parks, not to normal visitor usage of developed areas within the parks.

A Word Edgewise

Political Doings in Korea Will Help Get U.S. Out of Asia

BY JOHN P. ROCHE

There is a story about a young American Maoist who, seething with rage at our repressive, imperialist society, took refuge in Red China. He was welcomed with open arms – and immediately put to work erasing anti-American slogans from the walls of Peking. President Nixon was coming to town.

The moral is that Communist nations do not permit their policies to be influenced by "petty bourgeois emotionalism." The most recent example if, of course, the reconciliation between the two Koreas. Kim Il Sung, the head of the Communist Peoples Republic, did not wake up one morning and observe to himself "Wouldn't it be nice to end the tension with Seoul?" Quite obviously his actions were based on self-interest, and – more broadly – are part of a worldwide pattern of reconciliation between the divided states of the Cold War. First, the two Germanys. Now Korea. Who will be next? Vietnam, or the two Chinas?

Worthless Rhetoric

The key lesson that some American commentators and politicians will hopefully learn is that Communist rhetoric isn't worth a plugged nickel. Radio Pyongyang's treatment of South Korea's President Park made Radio Hanoi's views of President Thieu sound like a lovesong. North Korea may not have a high level of production, but when it came to vituperation, they took first prize in a pretty stiff league.

Moreover, until the sudden breakthrough, the North Korean's reiterated day in, day out, that absolutely no headway could be made towards detente until the American troops were pulled out, until the United Nations repealed its resolutions of 1950 condemning Communist aggression, etc., etc. These positions were, it seemed, absolutely non negotiable. Then. . .zingo! They simply vanished from the discussion as if they had never been there at all.

Recall also that there are now far more South Korean combat troops in Vietnam than American. Surely a fraternal nation like North Korea would have helped Hanoi out by demanding that these be withdrawn as a precondition for detente. However, the issue seems to have slipped Kim Il Sung's mind. And not just Kim Il Sung's mind, but also those of his big brothers in Peking and Moscow. Without for a minute suggesting that world Communism is "monolithic," one can suggest with sound empirical foundation that Kim would never have taken the steps he did if either Peking or Moscow had blown the whistle.

Why would neither object? Possibly because each power, for its own reasons, wants to see an American exit from the Far East. With an end to the confrontation in Korea and the war in Vietnam, the United States would unquestionably disengage from those areas and from Japan, leaving the Japanese protected by the nuclear umbrella but little else. Rational men in Moscow or Peking have Japan at the top of their agenda for assistance in economic development. If it is necessary to get the North Koreans to swallow a few words to hasten detente, they can manage that diet.

Which brings us to the next candidate: Hanoi. Peking is clearly sick and tired of the whole business and it seems that the Soviets have decided that their interests will gain more from American cooperation than from our involvement in the Indochinese quagmire. They obviously supported U. N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim's initiatives in the Korean rapprochement and now Waldheim is talking about reconvening the Geneva Convention. Since Britain and Russia are the co-chairmen of the Geneva powers, we should perhaps look to London, not to Paris, for the next signal.

Why Did 8th District Allow Byrnes to Retire?

Editor, The Post-Crescent:

My letter is from a Tennessee "Rebel" Independent to the residents of the beautiful State of Wisconsin, living in the 8th District. I am so puzzled, so lacking in understanding, that I seek answers as to the real reason you fine people could allow the Honorable John W. Byrnes to retire?

Please tell me, because I don't want such a thing to happen here. Could it be a case of not knowing when one is well off? Or not "counting your blessings"? I am fortunate in having the Hon. LaMar Baker as my congressman, and I know it. Those of you who have allowed Mr. Byrnes to slip away have my deepest sympathy in your great loss. I would urge you to ask your new congressman to follow in Mr. Byrnes' footsteps. If you are one of those who did not seek the return of Mr. Byrnes, I would urge you to read The Congressional Record of June 21, 1972, H. 5885, available in your local library. His views on "revenue sharing", "fiscal relief to states and cities" may become a document of historical value.

I, as a Tennessee taxpayer, am indebted to Mr. Byrnes – as are all Americans, but most of all his constituents. If you have not been in the habit of following the young record of your representative, I would urge you to begin – for your very future and existence is placed in his hands. If you believe in adding to the deficit approaching 500 billion, 113 billion and more in the last three years – if you are sick of hearing the Republican President blame the deficit and state of America on the Democratic-controlled congress, and vice versa – if you are sick of doing without to pay the ever-increasing taxes – I urge you to do more than just register, vote, following the crowd.

Know the man you vote for, by his voting record in Congress. Read The Congressional Record, ask your new Congressman to place you on his Record mailing list, if you cannot afford the $45 per year. After all, you pay taxes to have this $150 per page record printed – and it is the only way you can find out what kind of congressman you really have. You will know what you have lost by retiring the Honorable John W. Byrnes.

Yes, I am an "Independent", having learned my lesson the hard way – and I will vote for men like Mr. Byrnes who seek election and reelection to offices of public trust. It is sad that I cannot have this printed with a large black border, for you have my deepest condolences in your great loss of an honest man on The Hill. If you agree with me, write Mr. Byrnes and send him this clipping, with your comments and words of appreciation for his service to you and to the Nation.

"IT'S GOOD TO HEAR FROM YOU, JOHN. HOW'S THE "FREE MARTHA" CAMPAIGN GOING?"

Wisconsin Report

Rep. Busby Leaving State Legislature After Long Service

BY JOHN WYNGAARD
Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON – These reports on the public men and public affairs of Wisconsin were designed to maintain a kind of antiseptic objectivity, but there are occasions, editors may agree, when a more personal response to events on the movable stage and its fluid cast is pardonable.

Such an event is the unexpected retirement of Allan J. Busby of suburban Milwaukee. He is the dean of the Wisconsin Legislature by a comfortable distance after 40 years there, the last 36 of them in the senate where he is senior by a comfortable margin.

No Wisconsin man has ever responded to as many roll calls or listened to more arguments about state legislative policy or has had less difficulty in persuading his constituents about the worth of his service, it may be surmised with reasonable confidence without an examination of the record of tenure of the thousands of men who have been sent to legislative seats since 1848.

High School Principal

Allan Busby, a quiet and deliberate man whose habits and style betray a blend of the professional training of the teacher and the lawyer, is the only man now surviving in the legislature who was there when this reporter checked his hat there upon his arrival as a youngster.

But we had a slight acquaintance some years before our baptism of fire in the political furnace of legislative politics. I was a young boy in a little Fox Valley village. Allan Busby was principal of its high school. Had the school not been closed, it may be that the solemn but youthful principal would have remained in professional education and suburban Milwaukee would have lost one of its favorite attorneys and most durable spokesmen.

Allan Busby's political career represented a conviction that is becoming more rare in statehouse politics, namely, that the legislature offers an opportunity for honorable and dignified career service in politics that can be accommodated within the responsibilities of the professional man. Memory does not recall that he ever confided any other ambition, although his career spanned some of the most uncertain times in the partisan political structure of the state.

Progressive Party

He started his political life as an adherent of the old LaFollette Progressive party establishment, which was plausible enough in its time. Busby's involvement in LaFollette politics for a man of convictions less than orthodox conservative, and of normal ambition, was as natural in his time as it is natural for a young Busby of 1972 to seek a nook in the Democratic machinery of today.

Unlike some of the other old line Progressives who switched to their original Republican identities with the downfall of the LaFollette structure, he retained the philosophical attitudes of his old allegiance.

That was the origin of the "maverick" tag sometimes applied to him by younger politicians who regard it as a word of disparagement, and newly assigned reporters who don't know that in his case it simply means that when he switched parties and became a Republican 25 years ago he didn't feel it necessary to revise his convictions.

Unhurt By Change

It is fair to observe, however, that the posture and reputation of wearing no party collar was useful in his constituency, where the voters of Republican adherence were glad to have him and Democrats were never able to mount a sufficiently credible case to challenge him.

In four decades as a contented politician, Busby demonstrated some useful convictions and practices to those beginners who were attentive enough to pay heed. He spoke well but infrequently, because he knew what many politicians never seem to learn – that while they are speaking, they are not listening or learning. He was unfailingly polite.

He regarded legislative office as dignified and honorable. When he arose at long intervals to address the house, he had something to say and got a hearing.

Writer Concerned Over Closed Schools

Editor, The Post-Crescent:

This is the time of each year when all schools are closed down tight while industry and farming goes on as usual. It is also a 3-month vacuum for all school teachers, administrators and personnel who are drawing salaries for "doing nothing" for education. Each year we thus procrastinate 25 per cent of our educational facilities. Each year our legislators and school boards give our school administrators and teachers generous salary increases. It all comes out of property taxes.

It is no wonder then why our property taxes keep going up each year. All the complaining in the world will do no good until we eliminate this cancerous situation. Our school teachers and administrators will do nothing to alleviate this situation as they know when they have a good thing going. Instead they demand more and forever talk strike if they don't get what they want. We cannot depend on the present school boards either as they are too closely aligned with the school people.

Our only alternative then is to elect independent thinking and courageous school board members who could and would stop the present wasteful educational pattern and-or persuade our elected legislators to legislate some common sense into our school system and-or face a tax revolt which is inevitable if this pattern continues...and this can't come too soon to help the already overburdened property taxpayers. So let us quit complaining and do what is necessary to help ourselves.

Handling Fast Learner Also Has Special Responsibility

BY DR. ANNIE L. BUTLER
Early Childhood Specialist
Indiana University

Sometimes it is obvious to parents that they have a fast learner in the family, a child who learns to do things earlier than other children his age.

This is wonderful, yet it carries with it a special kind of responsibility. As parents of such a child, you will need to remind yourselves frequently that what you want your child to do is develop his full potential. NOT fulfill your ambitions for him.

Don't try to make your gifted child a reading, writing, musical or mathematical genius at the expense of his other interests.

There are a number of ways in which early learning manifests itself. Sometimes it is through the use of words unusual for the child's age, and an early and eager interest in books and reading. Sometimes it may be the ability to pick out tunes on the piano or carry a tune at an early age. Quite often the child will be unusually curious, asking endless questions and using materials in unusual ways.

Generally, all the things we have said about all preschool children in this series apply to the early learning child. However there is a difference in pacing and degree.

Here, then are some things you should do:

— Don't pressure the child Encourage and help him, by all means, but make this stimulating and fun, never a chore. You may surround him with material and experiences in which you think he might be interested, but there is a point at which you must let him decide how they are to be used. Sometimes they will not be used at all. Accept this.

— Enlarge his interests through new experiences. Seek experiences which you know he has not had before, particularly the kind which will support earlier learning. For instance, he knows something about milk. But does he know that both milk and butter come from a cow? Does he know how milk gets into a carton?

— Encourage his curiosity Keep his experiences coming so that he has frequnt opportunities to ask questions and gain new information. Look for things that are new to him.

— Encourage his creativity Some children have an unusually novel approach to materials such as clay and paint. Some are particularly responsive to music. Some create all kinds of buildings out of blocks, or play for hours under a card table covered by a blanket.

Encourage Their Creativity. Some children display an unusually novel approach to such things as form and color.

— Provide for social contact with other children. The years between two and five are those in which children begin to be interested in playing with other children, and during which they learn such essentials as sharing, and taking leadership roles. Children who have had only limited contacts with other children their own age may be at a disadvantage when they enter school. This applies especially to early learners because, in view of their other interests social contact may seem less important.

And now, the inevitable question: what about early reading? By all means, encourage your child's interest in reading, but not to the exclusion of other things in which he should be interested Don't give him the idea that reading is the only thing that matters.

Prior to kindergarten, many bright children do not show the slightest interest in reading, although they do like being read to. Give your child time. The important thing is that he learns to like books, and understands the important role books play in life.

If he does show an interest in reading, help him But always keep your teaching at an informal level. It is more important that a child start school with a good vocabulary and a wide range of experiences than that he have formal reading instruction beforehand.

Much the same thing can be said about writing

The first thing a child will want to write is his name You can show him how to do it, using the large capital letters which are easier for him to make A child's muscular coordination may not be well developed enough for him to write very much or very well. Do not be surprised, then, if his interest in writing is short lived, and if he is happy with letters spread all over the page Quantity and quality can wait, but help your child feel satisfaction in however much he chooses to write

Early learning young children are a real delight because they can do so many unexpected things

Help them go to school as enthusiastic learners, no matter what the area of learning and help them be considerate of others who may not learn quite so rapidly as they.

Land Transfer To Indians Anticipated

Coast Guard Station In Milwaukee Had Been Abandoned

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The federal tranfer to the American Indian Movement's Milwaukee chapter of the abandoned Coast Guard station which it took over nearly a year ago is expected by the organization within a few days Chapter chairman Herb Powless told a weekend new conference a special assistant to the President had informed the group that the site is to be turned over to the Office of Economic Opportunity, which will in turn lease it to the Milwaukee AIM chapter

Final approval must come from the Office of Management and Budget, he said, but no problems are anticipated and it is expected within a week

Powless said Saturday he believed the Indians were allowed to stay at the site because of "the support we received from the community" after they took over the property last August

"We would like to thank the community of Milwaukee who supported us with food clothing and money," Powless said

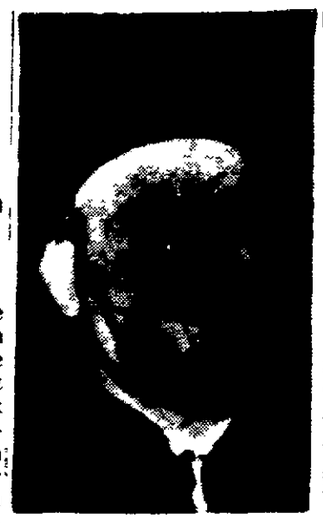
OEO Bid

When federal property is designated surplus, it first is offered to other federal agencies. Although the Universty of Wisconsin-Milwaukee and Milwaukee County had expressed interest in the site, OEO—which has responsibility for urban Indian affairs—put in a bid on behalf of AIM

A halfway house for recovered Indian alcoholics was started a few days after the AIM occupation, and an Indian community school was moved to the site

Powless said AIM would submit Neighborhood Facilities applications for $1.5 million to the U.S Department of Housing and Urban Development to finance buildings and programs.

If the grant is approved, he said, AIM will build a gym, provide recreational activities for the elderly, start a sheltered work industries program, and conduct programs on Indian heritage.



Metropolitan Demetrius is the new prelate of the Eastern Orthodox Church.

Man, Wife Seek Job of Party Leader

WEST ALLIS, Wis (AP) — Frederick Smith and his wife Joan, are both battling to become the Democratic party committeeman from the 4th Aldermanic District here

Smith, a painter at Milwaukee County institutions, persuaded his wife to run when he had trouble getting clarification on whether his government employment prohibited him from doing so He entered the race himself after obtaining a civil service ruling in his favor, and convinced his wife to stay on that ballot

"I didn't think it would be fair to the people who signed her papers if she withdrew," Smith said "eBsides, I'd like to know how many people in the ward would vote for a woman We have nothing to lose

Smith also said he hoped the contest would stir up enough interest so more voters would learn that the office of party committeeman existed

Committeemen serve on statuatory party committees which fill vacancies in nominations and recommend names of voters for appointment as election officials

Eastern Orthodox Prelate Selected

By RODNEY PRIDER
Associated Press Writer

ISTANBUL (AP) — Metropolitan Demetrius, the new Ecumenical Patriarch of the Eastern Orthodox Church elected Sunday, is expected to lean heavily on the advice of Metropolitan Meliton whom the Turkish government blackballed.

Demetrius, 58, will be enthroned as Ecumenical Patriarch and Archbishop of Constantinople in St George's Church on Tuesday As archbishop of Constantinople, his patriarchate includes the Orthodox churches in Western Europe and the Greek Ortnodox Church in America

Demetrius succeeds Patriarch Athenagoras I who died July 7 at the age of 86 During his 24 years as the symbolic head of Eastern Orthodoxy, Athenagoras worked constantly for reunification with the Roman Catholic and Protestant churches and for closer relations among the 15 independent Orthodox churches

Demetrius in his enthronement address Tuesday is expected to announce his dedication to the goals of his predecessor Athenagoras had planned a Great Synod of Orthodoxy to update the church and draw it together, and his successor is believed certain to go ahead with this project

Demetrius was said to have been favored for the throne by Meliton, the dean of the Holy Synod which elects the patriarchs, and informed sources said in most matters Demetrius would be guided by him. Meliton is also a strong advocate of church unity and an outspoken progressive.

Meliton had been considered the leading candidate to succeed Athenagoras, but the Turkish government struck him from the list of acceptable candidates, apparently because it considered him too strong. Demetrius by contrast is essentially a pastoral cleric, with little experience in matters of state, and has been a metropolitan and archbishop only five months

Three metropolitans were nominated in the election Sunday Demetrius, Nicholas of Anneon and Gabriel of Colonia

Demetrius, at the far end of the line of metropolitans because he was the most junior, seemed calm when his selection was announced But as Meliton and the other prelates filed past to kiss him on both cheeks he was visibly moved

He was born Demetrius Papadopoulos in Istanbul, attended a Greek primary school and then went to the French lycee of Galatasaray He began theological studies at the age of 17 at Halki the island monastery and seminary that has produced most of the Orthodox church leaders in this century

On Feb 15, 1972 he was appointed metropolitan archbishop of Imbros and Tenedos, tiny islands in the Aegean Sea A theological scholar and a former teacher of classical Greek, he is described as self-effacing and of great spirituality

Genovese Family Underboss

Another Gangland Figure Shot Down

Eboli, 61, was found sprawled on a sidewalk early Sunday in the quiet Crown Heights section of Brooklyn far from his usual haunts in New Jersey and Manhattan There were five bullet holes in his face and neck

The killing was at least the 15th gangland slaying since the June 28, 1971 wounding of Joseph A Colombo Sr., identified by authorities as the head of the Profaci Cosa Nostra family in Brooklyn

Included in that string of killings was the Little Italy clam bar rubout of Joseph 'Crazy Joe' Gallo last April

Investigators concluded that Eboli was shot as he sat in a car, probably his own late-model Cadillac then struggled out and collapsed on the sidewalk

He must have been lured over here," said one detective

Saw Flashes

Witnesses told police they heard shots and saw flashes near a truck that went by at the time. The truck, apparently stolen, was found about a block away abandoned with its engine running

Police also found a stolen car with an m-3 machine gun in its rear seat The gun had not been fired and detectives theorized that it had been a backup weapon

The car Eboli had been in was gone when police arrived and they broadcast an alarm for the vehicle In the right hand pocket of Eboli's jacket was more than $2,000 in cash mostly in $100 bills.

Mob Gunmen

Despite the strong indications that Eboli had been hit by mob gunmen, detectives said there was no evidence that he had been feuding lately with fellow members of his Genovese underworld family

"Most of the time when these fellows get in trouble with each other, it's because they're starting to get greedy—and there was no sign that Tommy was doing that," said one official

Federal authorities have identified Eboli as an underboss in the Genovese family while the late Vito Genovese himself, known as the "Boss of Bosses," was in prison for bankrolling a narcotics smuggling operation

After Genovese's death in prison in 1969, Eboli's poor health prevented him from gaining the top spot and reportedly much of the family's traditional territory was siphoned off by other families

Thomas Eboli has been slain in New York City.

Milwaukee Alderman Calls Lucey Bigoted, Becomes a Republican

MILWAUKEE (AP) — A black Milwaukee alderman, Orville Pitts, accused Gov Patrick Lucey of being a "bigot" Sunday and said he was switching his affiliation from the Democratic party to the Republican party

Pitts, who said he had worked for the election of the Democratic governor, said he had written to Lucey asking why he had never been called upon to serve on any of the governor's task forces or committees He said Lucey had not placed blacks on his staff or in key positions in his administration

"In his language he is a liberal In his actions, he is a bigot," the alderman said at an impromptu news conference held in conjunction with a Milwaukee branch meeting of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People

Pitts said "it was a Republican administration which initiated" inner city programs on Milwaukee's Third Street and noted Secretary Charles Hill of the state Department of Local Affairs and Development was the highest ranking black official in Lucey's administration

The Democrats at the national, state and local level have failed" Pitts said I am willing to give the Republicans a chance"

The black Milwaukee alderman said he had never been thanked for his efforts on Lucey's behalf and only received a form letter from the governor thanking him for his correspondence in reply to his letter

Report of Biased TV News Coverage Riles Study Director

NEW YORK (AP) — A former president of CBS News has announced that he is resigning his post as a director of the American Institute for Political Communication in a dispute over the release of an institute press report charging bias in network television newscasts

Sig Mickelson made public Sunday his resignation from the organization in a letter to Edward M Glick, the AIPC's managing director He said he was unaware of the study's methods or the base of the bias charge though the report was issued on stationery bearing his name along with those of other members of the board of directors

The report said the institute's study had found "a significant degree of bias" against the Vietnam war and in favor of Sen George McGovern in the programs monitored during the first half of June

"The story effectively committed me to endorsing a number of conclusions which are a complete surprise to me," Mickelson said He said he was obviously unable in any way to endorse the project or its findings' because of his lack of information about the study's methods

Beware of Bargains In Buying Bulk Beef

BY SYLVIA PORTER

No matter what additional moves will be made in coming months to hold down beef prices — and more moves are on the way — beef prices are certain to continue climbing over the long-term. Thus, no matter how casual a shopper you are, it's increasingly likely that you will try to curb your meat costs by buying beef in bulk and storing it in your home freezer.

Okay, it's a good way to go — IF you are on guard against the estimated 30 or so "bait and switch" beef swindlers in the U. S. today . . . IF you instead patronize one of the 7,500 entirely ethical freezer meat operators situated all over the country. Also IF you know and scrupulously obey the rules when you buy beef or other types of meat via the wholesale route. To give you specific guides:

Do not buy a side of beef in hasty response to a tempting ad. If you really want and need as much beef as this and if you can arrange to store it properly, plan your purchase ahead, then shop intelligently for the meat

Beef Charts

Before you buy, decide whether you will want a large quantity of steaks or whether your family will be happy with less fancy cuts or whether you would prefer to have a wide variety of cuts, including plenty of stew meat and hamburger.

To help yourself reach these decisions, study the beef-cut charts posted in your butcher shop or available from the U. S. Department of Agriculture in Washington.

As an additional guide on cuts, in general if you want more steaks and roasts, you'll probably want a hind quarter. A typical trimmed beef hind quarter originally weighing about 200 pounds consists of 53 per cent steaks and oven roasts, 18 per cent stew, ground meat and pot roasts and 24 per cent waste.

If you want a lot of stew beef and hamburger, you'll probably be best off with a front quarter. A typical trimmed front quarter, originally weighing 215 to 220 pounds, breaks down into 25 per cent steaks and oven roasts, 32 per cent pot roasts, 37 per cent stew and ground meat and 16 per cent waste.

If you want a wide variety of cuts, a half carcass will probably be the purchase for you. The usable meat from a whole beef carcass breaks down into approximately 25 per cent steaks, 25 per cent roasts, 25 per cent ground beef and stew, 25 per cent waste.

When buying in bulk, figure not only what you are paying per pound for the actual meat minus fat, bones, etc., but also what price you are paying for cutting, packaging and quick-freezing. These procedures can easily add 8 to 10 cents a pound to the net cost of your meat if they are not included in the basic price.

Wary of Bonuses

If the ads include such terms as "steak package" or "steak bundle," find out precisely what these terms mean and cover.

If unbelievably low-priced extras or "bonuses" are thrown in to sweeten the deal — say, 10 pounds of frying chickens for 50 cents or five pounds of hot dogs for one dollar or 30 pork chops for free — use your head. No butcher could afford giveaways such as these.

And never forget for a minute that the bait-and-switch racketeers use this sort of lure — for instance, ads for sides or quarters of beef at such fantastically low prices as 33 cents a pound — in order to bait you and then switch you to a much higher priced carcass.

If the deal involves payments by you on time, check whether the terms are spelled out as required under the Truth in Lending law — the total finance charge, the yearly percentage interest rate, the number and schedule of payments. Also, which bank or finance company will actually hold the paper you sign?

Learn well the key guides to fresh, good quality beef. For example, the bone should be ivory white, the sign of a young steer, not yellowed; the fat should be white as against yellow and there shouldn't be an excessive amount of fat. The most tender beef is well "marbled," meaning it has streaks of fat throughout the meat, but marbling also means calories and cholesterol. The best meat is cherry red in color as against darker colored meat of an older animal.

Finally, here's a guide to typical costs of various cuts. Assume, for illustration, that a going rate is 45 cents per pound for a whole or side of beef, based on carcass weight. The price per pound would be: hind quarter, 56 cents; front quarter, 38 cents; round, 55 cents; loin, 80 cents; rib, 60 cents; square-cut chuck, 39 cents.

New York City Should Become Quieter Soon

NEW YORK (AP) — Noise control legislation that would muffle a multitude of sounds ranging from tinkling ice cream truck bells to heavy construction air compressors has been unanimously approve by a City Council committee.

The bill would generally prohibit any "unnecessary noise," set specific decibel limits for some equipment and ban some noises outright.

The proposed regulations would be backed by civil penalties ranging from $50 to $1,000 and by criminal penalties of up to 45 days in jail and fines up to $5,000, the Environmental Protection Committee said.

If approved by the full council and signed by Mayor John V. Lindsay, the code would take effect Sept. 1.

Specific noises to be banned include outdoor loudspeakers to advertise a business's wares or plug a political candidate. Use of automobile horns would be banned except in an emergency.

THE WORD IS OPTIMUM

Wallace Poses Greatest Threat By Not Launching Third Party

BY ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

MIAMI BEACH — The underpinnings of Gov. George Wallace's secret plans for this autumn, which menace Sen. George McGovern's uphill battle, were revealed by the remarkable scene on the convention floor late Tuesday night when Wallace made his dramatic appearance.

The wildest demonstration came not from Alabama, Florida or Texas but from Michigan, symbol of liberal-labor power. Michigan delegates representing Wallace's May 16 sweep there erupted in a frenzied, arm-waving demonstration.

Such sentiment in the industrial North is the rationale for a new Wallace strategy of campaigning this fall in carefully selected Northern areas for Democratic candidates fearful of being dragged to defeat on the busing issue.

"George remembers Richard Nixon's 1966 campaign for a Republican Congress," a key Wallace strategist told us. Similarly, Wallace plans to campaign for embattled Northern Democrats to "save" them from the pro-busing party platform and simulaneously accumulate IOUs for Wallace's ambitious design to run for President in 1976.

Under no conditions will Wallace endorse either the McGovern or Nixon Presidential tickets. He will politely treat McGovern as a renegade Democrat who has deserted his party, with Wallace campaigning as a national Democrat fighting to safeguard the party's traditional base among blue-collar workers. So, McGovern confronts an active Wallace autumn campaign spouting the same line that gave him the Michigan Presidential primary victory and a total vote in all the primary states approaching McGovern's own.

Evans

Moreover, Wallace's failure to endorse the Democratic Presidential nominee threatens McGovern with massive defections from Wallaceite Democrats even if Wallace never leaves Alabama this fall. That explains elaborate efforts by McGovern agents here, and during preliminary work on the platform and credentials in Washington, to smother Wallace with kindness and neutralize him for the fall campaign.

For example, McGovern's operatives privately told Wallace strategists that McGovern's flattering second visit to the hospitalized Wallace July 6 was to get the answer to this question: How could Wallace win an absolute majority of the primary vote in liberal Michigan?

In his hour at the hospital, McGovern told Wallace he had been amazed during primary campaigning to be turned aside by factory workers who said they could not back McGovern because they were for Wallace.

Similarly, McGovern's convention-floor tacticians held back their delegates from unseating Wallaceites in the Alabama credentials fight. Alabama delegation leaders sent private messages of thanks to McGovern.

During frenzied politicking on the crucial California credentials vote here, McGovern praised Wallace for correctly gauging the depth of alienation among American voters. "Both of us are painfully dissatisfied with the status quo," McGovern told Texas delegates last Monday.

And breakfasting here at the Fontainebleau Hotel Wednesday morning with six Southern and border governors, McGovern emphasized his desire to win Wallace's support and intent to confer at length with him sometime before his acceptance speech.

But none of this arduous courtship makes much difference. Even if McGovern forces had toned down the pro-busing plank in the platform (which, instead, they successfully defended), the course Wallace is now programming would not have been altered.

That was made clear Tuesday morning when Wallace conferred with fellow governors in his suite at the Four Ambassadors Hotel. He stressed his desire to remain inside the party but conditioned his endorsement of nominee McGovern on (1) his platform and (2) his Vice Presidential choice. Nobody there doubted that both would be unacceptable to Wallace.

Ironically, Wallace inside the Democratic party is far more dangerous to McGovern than Wallace leading a third party. While Wallace's refusal to endorse McGovern could influence Wallaceite Democrats to vote for Richard M. Nixon, third-party candidate Wallace would predictably detract many more voters from the President.

How much active campaigning Wallace actually does for Democratic candidates depends, of course, on his health. But his calculated calm and courtesy in his role of national Democrat at this convention, coupled with vast sympathy over his escape from assassination, has given him even more national prestige than he gained in his amazing primary victories.

With other anti-McGovern Democrats, Wallace is convinced McGovern faces disaster in November and wants to lead in "restructuring" the party. Whatever the accuracy of those predictions of disaster, Wallace's coming campaign will promote just that result.

Spanish Galleon To be Excavated

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — A team of archeological technician-divers will start excavating a sand-and clay-covered sunken Spanish galleon off Padre Island this week.

Carl Clausen, the state's underwater archeologist, announced Friday that the first state-sponsored excavation of several vessels that sank in May 1553 would start "on or about" Monday.

The project is sponsored by the Texas Antiquities Committee, which the 1969 legislature created after Platoro, Ltd., recovered treasure from a shipwreck site in 1967.

Ownership of those articles is being disputed in court by Platoro and the state.

The first site to be worked is about five miles north of the Mansfield Cut on Padre Island, Clausen said.

Why Mercedes-Benz Diesel owners insist that it's all those other people who are out of step.

How strange: a little lamp on the instrument panel glows ruby red when the 220 Diesel is ready to start.

How odd: the engine makes a "pocketa-pocketa" sound when idling.

The 220 Diesel is no ordinary automobile. It is almost eccentric. What saves it is a penchant for paring down running costs. For instance, Diesel owners sidestep all these expenses:

1. Tanking up on gasoline—a fuel that can cost 49 cents a gallon for the more exotic "premium" blends.

2. Tanking up often—Diesels seldom drop below 20 miles per gallon in average driving if properly tuned. And with a light foot on the throttle, you'll be amazed how much better than this you can do.

3. Replacing spark plugs—or adjusting carburetors, or fiddling with distributors and condensers, or installing new points. Costs that mount in a year's driving.

No wonder Diesel owners say it's everybody else who's out of step.

Why Diesel owners have the last laugh

Pop open the hood of the 220 Diesel. You'll see an engine minus carburetors, minus spark plugs, minus points or condenser or distributor.

A Diesel engine simply doesn't need these often irksome items. It does away with the traditional, delicate electric system, and it exchanges carburetors for direct injection as a means of feeding fuel to the cylinders.

Parts that aren't there will never have to be repaired or replaced.

Next, start the engine up. That odd click and clatter at idle is the sound of fuel being compressed in the combustion chambers, rather than ignited by spark plugs as in ordinary cars.

The Diesel uses a "compression-ignition" system. It means an engine compression ratio of 21.0:1 a powerful Cadillac V-8 has a compression ratio of 8.5:1. And that means more horsepower squeezed from every drop of fuel.

Now, rub a blob of diesel fuel between your fingertips. It's a crude oil, cheaply refined. Not even stiff taxes can raise its cost above premium gasolines. In many areas it is lower even than regular grades.

Finally, note this: Most of the world's trains run on Diesel power. The same holds for huge transport trucks. Such industries depend for survival on low running cost and rock-solid reliability—strange, isn't it, that where economy and reliability really count you usually find a Diesel engine?

Perhaps it isn't so strange after all. Perhaps the 220 Diesel isn't such an "oddball" after all. It well may be the most rational automobile yet devised.

Where the economy stops

Enjoying Diesel economy means no comedown in your standard of driving comfort. In fact, if you have never owned a Mercedes-Benz it may mean a step up.

Try spotting this "economy" sedan in a showroom full of Mercedes-Benz cars. It won't be easy; from the engine compartment rearward, the 220 Diesel is almost identical to several sister models.

This means that the money-saving 220 Diesel measures 5 feet wide inside. The seats, designed with the aid of orthopedic physicians, utilize not cheap foam rubber but hand-woven coil springs and natural fiber padding.

This sturdy machine weighs over one-and-a-half tons. It is welded more than 6,000 times, painted 4 times, sealed beneath with 24 lbs. of undercoating.

"Impeccable" is a feeble word to describe that traditional Mercedes-Benz finish. Ten minutes' browsing and you will coin your own superlatives.

Saves money—and nerves

People often enthuse about the pleasure of driving their 220 Diesels. It is the pleasure of driving a car engineered up to a standard, not down to a price.

Each wheel on your 220 Diesel is sprung independently on its axle. Only a test drive can show the difference this makes on bad roads and sharp curves. The car behaves with masterful calm. As a result, so do you.

You stop squarely, because each wheel—not only the front ones—carries its own disc brake.

The engineers even tucked a shock absorber into the steering system to block road thumps from reaching your hands on the wheel.

Suggestion: Bring your wife along when you test drive the 220 Diesel. She'll be delighted at how easy and relaxing this machine is to drive. She'll discover that this roomy 5-passenger sedan actually turns in a tighter circle than the little VW 1100 "Beetle."

Burying those Diesel myths

Over two decades, Mercedes-Benz has refined Diesel engine performance to a point where many familiar old criticisms are nothing more than myths.

"Diesels are noisy!" Have you heard a Diesel lately? Due to that combustion process, it does click and clatter at idle—especially when cold. But once it's under way the sound fades. By the time you hit 30 mph, it is actually hard to tell by the noise that you're riding in a Diesel.

"Diesel fuel is scarce!" Have you talked with a Diesel owner lately? The fact is, diesel fuel is scarcer than gasoline. But it's available wherever Diesel trucks stop, and that's thousands and thousands of places across the U.S.A.

"Diesels don't go fast enough!" Not fast enough to win a drag race, true. But fast enough to cruise comfortably on any highway (and faster than the posted limits in 48 of the 50 states).

Mercedes-Benz motor cars: from $37,928* to $6,020*

Mercedes-Benz offers a vast range of models. Here are suggested retail prices for 7 of the most popular types:

350SL Roadster	$10,540
280SE 4.5 Sedan	$10,076
280SE Sedan	$ 9,503
250 Coupe	$ 8,069
250 Sedan	$ 7,218
220 Sedan	$ 6,267
220 Diesel Sedan	$ 6,020

*Exc. tax and dlv. Optional equipment, exclusive of transportation, additional dealer options, taxes and local items. Copyright 1972, Mercedes-Benz of North America, Inc.

A Diesel is undeniably "different." But not as different as many people think—and not different enough to prevent more than 35,000 Americans from buying Mercedes-Benz Diesel sedans in the past 10 years.

A $6,020 investment

The Diesel comes fully equipped at a basic price of $6,020. You can order extra equipment, e.g. automatic transmission and air conditioning and a sliding sun roof, to suit your special needs.

See your authorized Mercedes-Benz dealer soon. He will gladly arrange a thorough test drive in the 220 Diesel.

Consolidated's Sales Growing

Increase Over 7 Per Cent During First Six Months

Sales at Consolidated Papers, Inc., Wisconsin Rapids firm with an Appleton plant reached $72,648,434 for the first six months of 1972, an increase of 7.6 per cent over the first half last year when sales were $67,536,485.

Earnings were $2,951,184, or $1.16 per share, for the first six months in 1972 compared with $2,014,644, or 79 cents per share a year ago.

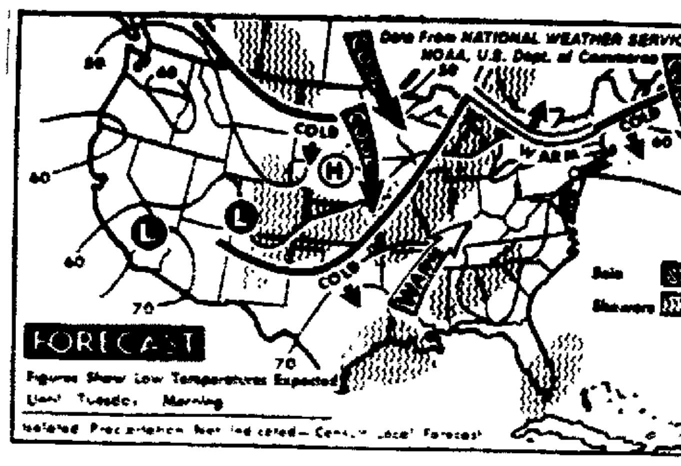
George W. Mead, II, chairman, and Harold Murtfeldt, president, said "The sales increase reflects generally improved demand for most company products and some modest upward price adjustments over a year ago. The improvement in earnings was not unexpected as we continue our cost reduction program and other efforts to bring our return on sales and investment to more satisfactory levels."

Orders for enamel printing paper, the company's principal product, were up over last year. The company officials said that some orders had to be turned down when two mills could not operate on Sundays.

"Since the first week in April, the company has had 30 meetings in an effort to arrive at a new labor agreement with unions covered under our joint labor agreement," officials said. "Since April 30 the unions have refused to work on Sundays unless we agreed on their demands as to how we should man our enamel paper mills when we operate on Sunday. As a result, we have lost eight Sundays at two of our enamel paper mills in May and June.

"We are deeply concerned about the loss of new business, loss of orders from our regular customers, and our inability to give our customers the fast, effective service our reputation has been built on. Negotiations are continuing under the auspices of the federal mediation and conciliation service," Mead and Murtfeldt said.

The company reported sales of DuraBeauty laminated plastic and specialty papers were well ahead of last year and paperboard, paperboard products, and corrugated container sales also increased.



Warm, Humid Weather continues over the eastern third of the nation tonight. Cooler weather is forecast from the Plains to the Rockies. Showers are forecast over much of the country from the Plains to the Atlantic. (AP Wirephoto Map)

Oshkosh Man Faces Charges In Stabbing

Incident Occurred Early Today Over Bill in Restaurant

OSHKOSH — A 48-year-old man was to be arraigned in Winnebago County Court Branch 3 at 1:30 p.m. today for conduct regardless of human life in the stabbing of a 30-year-old Oshkosh man.

The Oshkosh man, Harvey Ehrgott, 821 Ridge Lane, was stabbed shortly before 2 a.m. today in front of the George Webb Hamburger Parlor, 452 N. Main St.

He is listed in serious condition at Mercy Medical Center with puncture wounds to his abdomen.

According to Oshkosh City Police reports, Ehrgott and the other man were eating in the restaurant when the man got up and left without paying his bill.

The man has a meal ticket from the Winnebago County Welfare Department for eating at the restaurant but he didn't follow the usual procedure in using it, according to reports. He was supposed to tell the waitress before ordering that he would pay by means of the ticket and then pay no cash. However, he allegedly did not do this and therefore thought the bill wasn't taken care of.

Ehrgott, thinking the man was running out on the bill, followed him outside and, according to his statement to police officers, told the man to go back inside and pay. The man threatened him and swung at him with a knife.

When police arrived at the scene, they were told by a waitress that she recognized the assailant as someone who ate at the restaurant regularly using a welfare meal ticket. She remembered the man's name after questioning and police went to the Oshkosh Hotel, 106 Ceape Ave., to arrest the suspect.

He was taken back to the restaurant for identification and was booked at 3:03 a.m.

Pucinski, who is challenging Percy for the Senate seat, wrote Mrs. Sharon Rockefeller, who participated in the Democratic fund-raising telethon July 8-9, that he read with great interest that she will be working to put a Democrat in the White House this fall. And Pucinski said he would be most grateful for whatever assistance she could give him in his campaign.

Sharon is married to John D. Rockefeller IV, secretary of state of West Virginia, who is the Democratic candidate for governor.
